GAMING DEVICE RAIDS TO GO ON WITH NO 'LETUP', TAX AGENTS SAY

They Promise Further Action After Surprise Sweep in 33 Places in Central and Southern Illinois.

Officials of the Internal revenue service today promised "no let up" in raids against operators of restaurants, taverns and pool halls which have pinball and slot machines without the $250 federal tax stamp required for all coin-operated gaming devices.

This announcement followed surprise raids yesterday on 33 establishments suspected of having such devices in 19 central and southern Illinois communities by special agents of the intelligence division of the service.

Forty-nine pinball machines, on which pay-offs were alleged to have been made, and four slot machines were seized by the agents. They are to be destroyed, it was said.

Assistant United States Attorney Robert B. Oxtoby at Springfield said prosecutions "undoubtedly will follow" against those who had the machines in their establishments. He estimated that the Government is losing $500,000 a year in Illinois through evasion of the tax on coin-operated machines.

Gov. William G. Stratton today made this statement concerning the raids:

"Gambling is basically a local problem. There is less of it now in Illinois than there has been in the last six or seven years. Whenever gambling is observed by a state police officer, it is to be reported to State Police headquarters for action."

"Whenever this office receives any report or complaint on gambling it is referred to the state police for action immediately."

Frank Hudak, supervisor of the intelligence division in East St. Louis, said the raids "should serve notice that unless $250 special tax stamps are purchased for all coin-operated gaming devices, regardless of whether the pay-offs are automatic or over the counter, violators may expect further enforcement action."

Comment by Beebe.
Russell T. Beebe, East St. Louis police commissioner, commenting on the raids, said: "Any assistance I get from anybody is appreciated."

He said East St. Louis police have been hampered in trying to find pinball machine pay-offs, because all the owners and operators recognize the investigators as policemen.

Two new officers, who did not know the operators or suspected establishments, were greeted by name when they went into them last spring, Beebe said. Any East St. Louisian who buys gambling tax stamps or gambling device tax stamps will be investigated by the police, he added.

"As long as I am at City Hall," he said, "there will be no green light on gambling."

State's Attorney Richard T. Carter of St. Clair county noted that all the pinball and slot machine seizures were made in incorporated areas of the county. He said the first responsibility for getting rid of them lies with local officials.

33 Places Raided.
Agents made simultaneous raids on 10 places in St. Clair county and 23 places in other central and southern Illinois communities, participating, starting at about 2:30 p.m. and finishing at 5 p.m. At Scoville's Cafe in the Na-

PILOT BAILS OUT, M'DONNELL JET CRASHES IN IOWA

Demon Flies 215 Miles
After Tester Para-chutes — Was Made for Navy.

A Demon jet fighter plane manufactured by McDonnell Aircraft Corp. crashed today near Monticello, Ia., after a 215-mile flight without its pilot, the company announced. Monticello is northeast of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

McDonnell test pilot George Mills notified the company he bailed out of the plane at about 9:15 a.m. near Carrollton, Ill., about 40 miles north of St. Louis. He said he was unhurt.

On a routine test at the time, the pilotless plane continued north with a McDonnell Banshee pilot lost the Demon in the sun and its whereabouts were unknown until air traffic control at Kansas City reported the crash and gave the time as 10 a.m.

Mills was testing the plane before it was to be delivered to the Navy. It is designated as an F3H-2N. Mills, 33 years old, lives at 4315 Boswell avenue, Overland.

Mills told McDonnell officials he had "experienced difficulties" with the plane but he did not elaborate. He said he was about 20,000 feet above the Illinois river and 12 miles west of Carrollton when he bailed out.

Landing on the farm of Ralph Albrecht, five miles west of Carrollton, Mills was driven to Carrollton by Mr. and Mrs. Albrecht. He was met there by McDonnell officials to whom he reported that the only injury he had suffered was to his pride.

The company said Mills was making routine spin tests required by the Navy before it will accept delivery. The abandoned plane landed in a cornfield about five miles west of Monticello and about one mile from a road. It was destroyed by flames before firemen could reach the scene. No injuries were reported.

The crashed plane is a new model of the Demon. The first model, the F3H-1X, is the center of an investigation into Navy procurement practices because deliveries of the plane were continued for many months after its Westinghouse engine had proved inadequate. The F3H-2N uses an Allison engine.

HOUSE HEARINGS
SET FOR OCT. 24
By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (UP)—Public hearings in an effort to find out why delivery of McDonnell F3H-1X demon jet fighter planes to the Navy continues, long after the engines were known to have insufficient power, will begin here Oct. 24, it was announced yesterday.

Shower Ends in Half an Hour—Throngs Line Curbs 7 Miles to See New Queen.

By GARY W. FERGUSON of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

A rain-washed and surprisingly large crowd of determined parade watchers saw a good one here last night.

The Veiled Prophet, concluding his brief annual visit to the city, led a glittering procession along a seven-mile route, with light reflected from wet pavements and buildings adding to the parade's color.

Adults revived their childhood dreams as they watched the floats with a viewpoint that appeared to differ little from that of the youngsters along the way.

And there were children everywhere, thousands of them—sitting on curbs, peering between grown-ups' legs, perching on shoulders and some clinging precariously on tree branches and other vantage points.

Behind the Prophet, seated high in his magnificent chariot, were 17 floats intended to help answer a dominant question of childhood: "What will I be when I grow up?"

Along with papier-mache figures on the floats, some rising 16 feet above the street, were members of the Prophet's Krewes to enliven the proceedings.

Davy and Presidents.
There was a papier-mache Davy Crockett, of course. But the "King of the Wild Frontier" had been competition from two other papier-mache characters, themselves no strangers to the wilds, who wound up being merely Presidents, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. They occupied a float together with a figure of President Eisenhower.

Following the Presidents was a float bearing the Prophet's new Queen of Love and Beauty, Miss Audrey Faust Wallace. She waved gaily to the crowd throughout the two hour and 42 minute procession and remarked when it was over that her "arm was a little tired."

Showers were falling when the parade started, moving east in Lindell boulevard from Kingshighway. At 7:08 p.m., three minutes late.

Despite the rain, however, only a few persons straggled away. The crowd was eight to 10 deep at the starting point and was only lightly armed with umbrellas and raincoats. Most of the onlookers just let the drops soak in.

Barefooted Boy on Curb.
A temperature in the mid-70s made this boon to the dry cleaning industry not unpleasant, and one young boy sat barefooted along the curb.

NIXON WILL FLY TO DENVER ON SATURDAY, VISIT WITH PRESIDENT

Invited by Eisenhower
—Adams, Dr. White and Chief Executive's
Son to Go Along —
Limit on Topics.

DENVER, Oct. 6 (AP)—Vice President Nixon will fly here Saturday at President Eisenhower's invitation for a hospital visit with the President, the Denver White House announced today.

Nixon will fly here with Sherman Adams, the President's chief assistant; Maj. John Eisenhower, the President's son, and Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist, for the weekend.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said he did not know what Nixon would discuss with the President but he added it would not be "a visit where controversial policies" would be taken up.

The announcement came at a press conference which brought another cheerful bulletin on the President's condition. Hagerty said that the President had sent an invitation to Nixon to visit him through Adams at the time he wrote the Vice President a few days ago to continue presiding over Cabinet and National Security Council meetings.

The conference, Hagerty made clear, would be limited to topics cleared in advance by the presidential physicians. Secretary of State Dulles may visit the President sometime next week for a talk before going to the foreign ministers' meeting at Geneva, but this has not been definitely determined.

Bulletin Quoted.

The latest medical bulletin said: "The President's condition continues to be satisfactory without complications. He had a good night's rest and feels comfortable and cheerful. His morning examinations show his temperature, pulse and blood pressure to be normal. His cardiogram shows the expected flow evolution."

"For breakfast the President had stewed apricots, oatmeal, beef bacon, whole wheat toast and a glass of skimmed milk. Mrs. Eisenhower joined him at breakfast and read him letters from the family."

"The morning medical bulletin said: "The President had another good night. He slept soundly and almost continuously for 9:30 p.m. to 6 a.m. "He awoke feeling refreshed and relaxed. The President's condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications."

The private opinion about Mr. Eisenhower's recovery which one would put into words for quotation, was that the crisis had passed, and that the President soon will be taking a firm hold on Administration affairs.

The President, who will be 65 years old Oct. 14, is doing so well that Adams, who flew to Washington yesterday no longer hesitates to take him documents for signature. Mr. Eisenhower signed four such papers yesterday, and initiated two others.

Adams left for Washington after a 10-minute conference with the President. But even Adams, who has been Eisenhower's confidante more than any other man in official position, limited his discussion to non-controversial matters with the President was familiar before his coronary thrombosis Sept. 24.

The documents Adams asked Mr. Eisenhower to sign were recess appointments, subject to Senate confirmation later, for: 1. Wesley A. D'Ewart, former Republican Congressman from Montana, to be assistant Secretary of the Interior.

2. Francis A. Cherry, former Democratic Governor of Arkansas, to be a member of the Subversive Activities Control Board.

3. John Edward Mulrooney.

FOUR MINISTERS, INCLUDING PINAY, CALL ON FAURE TO QUIT OFFICE

Intend to Resign If He Doesn't—Four Gaul-lists in Cabinet Ousted Earlier by Premier for Criticism.

PARIS, Oct. 6 (AP)—Four Independent Republican ministers—including Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay—went to see Premier Faure late today, with the intention of getting Faure to resign or to quit themselves.

Earlier in the day Faure fired four De Gaulle ministers. He then went ahead with plans for debate, starting tonight, in the National Assembly on Moroccan problems.

The Independents, following a meeting of party leaders, were reported to have two demands to make to Faure. The first was that the Premier ask for postponement of the debate. If the work remaining to be done was going to suggest that Faure should quit. If this was refused, then the ministers were prepared to submit their own resignations.

Others With Pinay.
In the party of Independent ministers in addition to Pinay were Roger Duchet, Minister of Reconstruction; Paul Antier, Minister of the Merchant Marine, and Jean Sourbet, Minister of Agriculture.

Faure apparently felt he had enough strength to face the debate without the Gaullists who resigned. It was extremely doubtful, however, whether he could weather another wave of resignations.

A fifth minister from the Gaullist Social Republican party remained in the cabinet, Gen. Pierre Koenig, the Defense Minister, led the dissidents kicked out by Faure.

Faure asked for and obtained the four resignations at a long session in his office prior to a cabinet meeting.

The Premier's friends said he would now defy the Gaullists by going before the National Assembly and demanding a vote on the policies of his government.

Besides Koenig, those fired from the cabinet were: Gaston Palewski, special minister; Raymond Triboulet, minister for veterans affairs, and Maurice Bayrou, secretary of state in the Ministry for Overseas Territories. Public Works Minister Edward Corniglion-Molinier, a Gaullist, remained in his post.

Will Keep Premiership.
Faure announced his intention to stay on as head of the government after a cabinet meeting with President Rene Coty in the Elysee palace, France's White House.

The premier appointed Gen. Pierre Billotte, a former Gaullist now a member of the Republican Action Group, to succeed Koenig as defense minister. The other dismissed cabinet members were not immediately replaced.

Faure also announced after the brief session with the president that debate on North African policy would begin tonight.

It is expected that the debate will go on nonstop until Faure either wins a vote of confidence or is thrown out.

THIRD STREET HIGHWAY TO OPEN OCT. 15

Sodding and Fencing
Will Be Done Later, Work Won't Interfere With Traffic.

The Third Street Interregional Highway will be opened to traffic Oct. 15, the State Highway Department announced today.

Work on the two-mile expressway, which extends from Washington avenue to the intersection of Twelfth street and Gravois avenue, will not be quite complete then, it was explained, but finishing touches can be applied thereafter without interfering with flow of traffic.

Workmen expect to complete sodding of shoulders and erection of light standards in a few days. With this done, the highway can be put into use. The work remaining to be done, consisting of some fencing, a little sodding and final clean-up, will be carried out later.

No Ceremony.
City officials indicated that the new traffic artery will be opened without ceremony.

The expressway has been under construction for four years, completion having been delayed more than a year by a long strike and other labor troubles. There was a two-year delay in starting the work, due to passage of a state law blocking demolition of residential property during the housing shortage.

Construction cost $10,000,000 in state and federal funds. Right-of-way cost approximately $3,500,000, with the city paying one-third.

The expressway runs at ground level from Washington to the Terminal Railroad's elevated tracks. From this point to Eighth and Barry streets it is elevated, the 3800-foot viaduct passing under the approach to MacArthur Bridge and over several streets including Broadway. Then the highway continues to its southern terminus as a depressed roadway.

Ramps for Bridge Traffic.
As it nears the northern end, the six-lane highway widens to eight lanes to feed traffic into and out of the downtown district. Electric signals govern streets. There also is a turnoff at Park avenue, where ramps provide a connection for MacArthur Bridge traffic.

A 12-block section from Poplar to Washington has been in use since the spring of 1954, but the function as an expressway skirting the eastern edge of the downtown district will be realized only when the remainder of the artery is put into use.

Ultimately the Third Street Highway will be linked with the Mark Twain Expressway on the north and the Ozark Expressway on the south.

13 APES BURNED TO DEATH
NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (UP)—Thirteen apes died last night in a fire on the third floor of an animal store annex. More than 200 wild and domestic animals in the adjoining main building were saved by a neighbor who turned on ventilating blowers to keep the smoke from their cages.

The dead animals were four gorillas, four orangutans, four chimpanzees, valued at a total of $39,000, and one rhesus monkey.

Male Officer in Nurse Corps.
NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (UP)—An Army private became the first male officer in the Army nurse's corps today when he received his commission as a second lieutenant at First Army headquarters on Governors Island. "Somebody's got to be first," said Edward L. T. Lyon of Kings Park, N.Y.

SEARCH PILOT SEES HUGE BLACK SPOT INDICATING PLANE EXPLODED

5 Members of Mormon
Choir Aboard — Crash Is Possibly Worst in U.S. Civil Aviation History.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 6 (UP)—A United Air Lines DC-4 air coach smashed into 12,500-foot Medicine Bow peak in the Rocky Mountains today, almost certainly killing all 64 persons on board. It may have been the worst disaster in United States civil aviation history.

The worst previous crash was when a Northwest Air Lines DC-4 went down in Lake Michigan, Jan. 24, 1950, killing 58 persons.

Col. E. R. Weed of the Wyoming Air National Guard spotted the wreckage of the United Air Lines DC-4 today.

He saw a huge black spot—perhaps caused by an explosion—where the plane had hit the rugged, snow-covered peak. The wreckage then slid down the east side of the peak to a plateau.

Weed emphasized that there was no sign of survivors. The plane, carrying 61 passengers and a crew of three, was a little west of its course to Salt Lake City when it crashed, but there was no indication of what caused the crash. It had been snowing in part of the Rockies, but there was no way to tell whether it was snowing at the point of the crash.

Started in New York.
The peak is 35 or 40 miles west of Laramie, Wyo., in the southern part of the state. The plane, air coach flight 409, left International (Idlewild) Airport in New York at 7:10 p.m. yesterday. Its destination was San Francisco.

Weed, who spotted the wreckage from an F-80 jet fighter plane, said there was a burned area where the plane crashed. He said there was no doubt as to the identity of the plane and no survivors.

Parachute medical teams aboard the first air rescue planes sent to the scene were not allowed to jump to the wreck site.

One Air Force pilot radioed Maj. Marshall Frederickson, commanding officer of the Forty-fourth Air Rescue Squadron at Lowry Air Force Base, that "we got in there just as close as we possibly could and still couldn't identify the largest portion of the plane intact."

"I doubt if anyone got out alive," the pilot reported to Frederickson.

Doubts Anyone Survived.
Capt. Melvin E. Conline of Cheyenne, co-pilot of a jet said he doubted anyone could have survived.

Conline said the DC-4 apparently smashed right into the top of the peak and then slid 200 feet down the sheer rock face. Parts of the wrecked plane were strewn over a large area in the deep snow on the mountain.

A burned portion could be seen as far away as Centennial, Wyo., about 12 miles south of the crash scene.

The plane should have skirted the mountains, passing over Rawlins and Rock Springs, Wyo., before it got to Salt Lake City, where it was due at 9:06 a.m.

Weather was reported clear in the vicinity of the peak but high winds created a dangerous turbulence for planes flying close to the mountain.

Scene of Earlier Crash.
The area where the DC-4 crashed is the same sector in which a United DC-6 went down in June 1951, killing 50 passengers and crew members near Fort Collins, Colo.

Crew members in today's crash: Pilot C. C. Cooke of San Francisco, 33 years old; First officer Ralph D. Salisbury of San Francisco, 33, and Stewardess Patricia Shuttleworth, 22, of Salt Lake City.

At least five members of the famous Salt Lake City Mormon Tabernacle Choir also were on board, their families in Utah said. The choir members were Mrs. Eldon C. Schow of Bountiful, and Mrs. Donald A. Kirk, Mrs. B. Ray Seare, Mrs. Charles Smartwille and Mrs. Victor J. Beck, all of Salt Lake City.

The 379 members of the Tabernacle Choir went to Europe by ship late in August for concerts in key Western European cities and dedication of the Latter Day Saints new Swiss temple. Some returned home immediately after the last concert Sept. 17 in Paris.

PENTAGON PUTS GAG ON BASE SITE LISTING AFTER COPIES GET OUT

Document Now Marked
'for Official Use
Only' After Reporter
Calls Attention to Slip.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R.
PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The recently published "official table of distances" which for the first time gives the exact locations of all Army and Air Force bases overseas as well as in the United States, has now been marked "for official use only."

The Pentagon has refused to permit unclassified publication of a compilation of United States bases overseas, holding that this could be of assistance to an enemy. Such compilations were in fact marked "secret." It was admitted that no base locations could be kept really secret, since it was impossible to hide the presence of American troops or aircraft. The contention of the present administration in the Pentagon has been that while the location of individual bases can not be kept secret, there was no use helping an enemy by giving him an official listing of everything. The theory has been that at least it should be made hard to get the information.

The "official table of distances" is a compilation of distances between major points of travel and from the nearest of these to each Army and Air Force base and station. The table has been in existence for a great many years. It is used by the finance officers of the Army and Air Force to pay mileage to military personnel for official travel.

First With Overseas Bases. Previous editions have included the list of bases and stations in the United States and United States possessions overseas, but not of United States bases in allied territory overseas. This is the first time that all overseas bases have been included.

The lack of exact information on the distance from ports of debarkation overseas to the various stations made it difficult for different finance officers to pay the same amounts for identical travel.

In all innocence, the finance officer of the Army attempted to clear up this lack in official information. The tables had never previously been classified and apparently it did not occur to him that they should be now.

As is usual in official documents used jointly by the Army and Air Force, the tables were signed by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chiefs of staff of the Army and Air Force and issued by the adjutants general of the two services. Maj. Gen. John A. Klein and Maj. Gen. E. E. Toro.

Storm in Pentagon. The publication of the compilation was first brought to public attention by the Associated Press Pentagon reporter, Elton C. Fay, yesterday. It immediately raised a storm inside the Pentagon. Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Public Relations R. Karl Honaman conferred with officials of the Army and Air Force.

Honaman decided to lock the main door after the horse was stolen. Late yesterday afternoon the "Official Table of Distances" was marked "for official use only."

This is the lowest security classification and means simply that its use is limited to persons in Government service whose duty requires them to use it. It is not expected to be shown to persons outside the Government service.

On the other hand, each copy is not required to be accounted for, nor must copies be kept locked in safes when not in use. If an enemy wished to obtain possession of one it would not be difficult and the missing copy would not have to be accounted for.

The document pinpoints bases in Great Britain, Germany, France and North Africa. Installations in Japan are not located precisely, but instead only their distance from Tokyo is given.

Red Base Sites Concealed. Such a compilation of military establishments in the Soviet Union, China and the satellites would be of tremendous value to the United States armed forces. Our intelligence agencies have been unable to locate all of them and, in fact, have no very good idea of the percentage they know about.

This sort of secrecy is made possible in the Soviet Union by almost complete limitation of the entry of foreigners and by strictly limiting their movements after they arrive. This is done at enormous cost in manpower and in restrictions on freedom of movement of Soviet nationals themselves.

Such methods are impossible in the United States or in any true democracy. It is questionable in the minds of many in the Pentagon whether our efforts to establish a type of security that is incompatible with democracy not only fail to accomplish anything, but also make us ridiculous.

32 Guns and 20 Nightsticks Are Found In Struck Plant at New Castle, Ind.

Union representatives and Indiana state officials conferring in Perfect Circle Corp. plant at New Castle, Ind., following clash between strikers and non-strikers yesterday. Weapons were surrendered by non-strikers and the company. In conference (from left) are: DAN BEDELL, E. J. KUCELA and FLOYD ABSTON, union leaders; ATTORNEY GENERAL EDWIN K. STEERS, CAPT. ROBERT F. DILLON, state police; LT. GOV. HAROLD HANDLEY and LOREN HOUSE, union spokesman.

600 Guardsmen Take Posts at Perfect Circle Corp. After Fight in Which 9 Are Injured—Chrysler Plant Involved.

NEW CASTLE, Ind., Oct. 6 (UP).—Six hundred national guardsmen, backed up by tanks and half tracks, took command of New Castle today with orders to end the bloody violence at the strikebound Perfect Circle Corp. plant.

Gov. George Craig sent the guardsmen into New Castle before dawn to put down any sequel to the wild gunfight in which nine persons were wounded or injured yesterday. Four pickets and four non-strikers were shot and a state police captain was hit on the head before state police ended the two-hour battle at the plant.

State police found 26 rifles and shotguns, six pistols, ammunition, 20 nightsticks and stacks of pipe lengths in the plant basement. A company attorney said, however, that company executives did not know the workers were armed.

Charge by Union. (The Associated Press quoted William F. Caldwell, international representative of the CIO United Auto Workers, as charging at a meeting today that Perfect Circle flew guns and bed clothing in to the non-strikers within the plant by a helicopter.

Caldwell accused the company of coercing non-strikers into going through the picket lines and added that yesterday "company representatives shot at pickets first." After these initial shots, Caldwell claimed, the demonstrators "went home for guns and came back."

In a conference yesterday, the A.P. pointed out, company executives did not deny that the first shot came from inside the plant. Company and union versions of just what touched off the outbreak differed.

Truce efforts collapsed late today.

Guardsmen Take Up Posts. Armed guardsmen took up posts today outside both the Perfect Circle plant and a Chrysler Corp. plant where violence had also been feared.

Meanwhile in Washington, the Associated Press said, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks announced that Lathair Teetor, former board chairman of Perfect Circle, is resigning as Assistant Secretary of Commerce, effective Nov. 30.

Teetor, who has been under attack from the CIO for his public statements on labor matters, is being dropped, the A.P. said, via the resignation route. Weeks said the published reports that Teetor is being dropped are "just 100 per cent not so."

Teetor quit as chairman of the piston ring company in 1953 to become Assistant Secretary and his federal resignation apparently has been in the works for weeks. Teetor said he has no direct hand in management of Perfect Circle now and has not talked to company executives since the strike began.

There were no new outbreaks early today, with 75 guardsmen at Perfect Circle and the 50 at the Chrysler plant. Police, meanwhile, said there had been no reports of violence in this city of 18,000, forty-five miles east of Indianapolis, since a shotgun blast ripped into the home of a non-striker late yesterday.

(A meeting of company and UAW negotiators was called today, the first in more than a month. The public meeting was opened by Mayor Paul F. McCormack, with a Bible quotation, from First Romans, second chapter: "Therefore you have no excuse, oh man, whoever you are, when you judge another."

other. . . He called yesterday's strike, "the darkest day New Castle has had since the tornado in 1917." That was the last previous time the National Guard was called in.

(The company said at the meeting that it has had no intention of keeping the foundry closed. "We are just not in a position to close that plant," said the company attorney, Clyde Hoffman.

The UAW retorted that it could not guarantee against a repetition of yesterday's uprising if the plant reopens.

Insists on Working. Hoffman said that despite yesterday's gunfire non-strikers, including at least one of the injured, are insisting on returning to work.

(McCormack offered a compromise suggestion. That the union permit management personnel and non-strikers who were hired before the walkout to enter the plant and that all persons hired since the strike—regarded as strike-breakers by the union—be barred from the premises.

(Caldwell said he felt confident union members at the foundry would agree but that outside sympathizers would not. Hoffman told the Mayor he thought the union could control its people. "The affair yesterday was called for the calculated purpose of imposing this plan. If they can't make a commitment, why should we?"

It was reported that Gov. Craig, himself in the Bahamas on a vacation, ordered the troops into New Castle lest new battles break out if the conference meeting failed.

The guardsmen at Perfect Circle were backed up by two 49-ton M-47 Sherman tanks, each armed with a 90-millimeter gun and three machine guns.

At the Chrysler plant, the troops stationed themselves across the street, with two half tracks. The 4000 Chrysler employees had stayed away from work yesterday in a sympathy demonstration and it had been feared that violence would break out between workers who wanted to return and those who wished to stay out.

The threat appeared ended, however, when most of the 1700 early shift Chrysler employees reported to work.

SOME MOROCCO VILLAGES RAISE WHITE FLAGS

But French Officers in Rebellious Border
Area Are Not Optimistic.

RABAT, French Morocco, Oct. 6 (AP).—White flags went up today over small villages in the mid-Atlas mountains and along the Spanish Moroccan frontier, indicating that some rebel tribesmen in the zone of the current uprising are ready to call it quits.

French officers on the spot were not optimistic that all trouble was ending. Fighting continued at Tizi Ouzi, in eastern French Morocco near the Spanish Zone frontier.

Although the military situation seemed to be getting slightly better, the political situation worsened. In Paris Premier Faure fired four Gaullist critics of his North African policy, and there was speculation whether the Cabinet could survive.

Colonists Claim Promise. In Rabat, a French colonial group known as the "French Presence" insisted they had a promise from Resident General Pierre Boyer de Latour that he would not put fully into effect the reform program outlined by the government in Paris.

There was no confirmation from the Resident General, who was touring the troubled areas in the vicinity of Fez.

Troops from Boudou and Tizi Ouzi fought through ambushes and past mountain markers yesterday and finally linked up with Moroccan cavalry from Aknoul.

The French still were menaced by the rebels holding positions in the surrounding mountains. Both sides apparently had been reinforced for a hard fight in the area where Abd El Krim scored successes in the Rif war more than 30 years ago.

Taza, a city of 29,000 population 45 miles south of the border, was crowded with hundreds of refugees from isolated outposts.

Mostly Women and Children. Most were women and children, and some were from villages to the south and west, indicating the French feared the fighting would spread to heretofore peaceful areas.

The three menaced outposts, Boudou, Aknoul and Tizi Ouzi, are in a triangle formed by the Rif and Middle Atlas ranges and control one of the few roads linking Spanish and French Morocco.

The rebels swarmed in mass attacks on the three border points Saturday night. They

Contracts Let for Artificial Space Satellite That Will Girdle Earth

Object to Make Elliptical Orbit Every Hour or Two, at Least 200 Miles Away, for Several Days.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP).—"Project Vanguard"—the creation of an artificial space satellite—is now under way with the award of two contracts, the Defense Department announced today, confirming a published report.

The prime contract "for a major part of the project," the rocket launching vehicle, has been awarded to Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore aircraft firm.

The General Electric Co. "will supply the rocket motor which will be used in the first stage of the launching vehicle and an important portion" of the system, the department said.

The contracts are being handled by the Navy Department, the agency chosen to manage the military part of the scientific research project. Army and Air Force facilities also will be used, the announcement added.

Although the exact shape and size of the satellite itself has not been decided, the announcement said, it will be small but large enough to contain a number of instruments and to be "tracked" from the ground by optical and radio devices.

Official reports when the project was announced last July by the White House described the probable size of the satellite as about that of a basketball.

The announcement gave this description of the project:

"Vanguard, the first man-made satellite, will be established in its orbit around the earth in this general manner: 'The first rocket will start the entire assembly vertically on the first part of its flight. When its fuel is exhausted, the first stage will drop off, and the second rocket, deflected from the vertical, will continue the satellite upward.

were beaten off. Taking their dead and wounded with them, they retreated to the mountains where they continued to fire on anybody attempting to use the winding roads.

Aknoul, a village of 300, was cleared of all civilians.

Mastermind Suggested. Simultaneous attacks at Imammer, Des-Marmoucha and Berkine, southeast of Fez, suggested to French authorities that a mastermind outside Morocco was seeking to unite the Rif tribes with the warlike Berbers.

Refugees at Taza said the rebel columns came from Spanish Morocco and carried Spanish and British-made submachine guns.

The French apparently were

"The third rocket, carrying the satellite proper, will accelerate to a top speed of about 18,000 miles an hour, which will establish the satellite in its orbit, where it will continue under its own momentum.

"This high velocity is required to balance the centrifugal force of the satellite against the earth's gravitational pull.

"The satellite's orbit will be elliptical rather than circular, and, at its nearest approach to the earth, may be approximately 200 miles distant.

"The satellite will circle the earth once every one or two hours, for several days.

Eventual Disintegration. "The cumulative effect of the drag of the earth's atmosphere, thin though it is at a 200-mile altitude, will be sufficient to bring the satellite gradually closer to the earth.

"The friction of the air as the satellite enters the denser atmosphere will cause it finally to disintegrate in much the fashion of a shooting star."

"The purpose of this scientific satellite project is to augment the upper atmosphere research which will be conducted by the United States during the international geophysical year (July 1957-December 1958), a scientific program which will utilize rockets, balloons, and rocket-balloon combinations.

"Accordingly detailed information of the satellite itself, including the instrumentation and its orbit, will be shared with the scientists of some 40 nations participating in the international geophysical year."

The Defense Department announcement gave no estimate of the costs of the two contracts. The Baltimore Evening Sun, in a report yesterday, said the Martin contract was a $20,000,000 item.

determined to defend the strategic northern triangle at all cost. French officials said they had several thousand troops in the area.

In Paris, Rene Massigli, permanent head of the French Foreign Office, was reported to have used "firm language" in a talk with the Spanish ambassador in which he asked that the rebels be prevented from using Spanish Morocco as a base.

DEFENSE COUNCIL FOR WEST REICH OK'D BY CABINET

BONN, Oct. 6 (AP).—West Germany today formed a National Defense Council to wield supreme authority on defense questions. The cabinet approved the creation of the council, patterned after its American counterpart of the same name.

With Chancellor Adenauer as chairman, it will prepare cabinet decisions on military legislation, civil defense and economic and financial questions relating to rearmament.

The council will be superior to the Defense Ministry in all significant matters. It is intended to insure ironclad civilian control of the 500,000-man force West Germany is to create in the Atlantic alliance.

The inspector general and supreme commanders of the three branches of the armed forces are expected to attend some of its meetings, but they will have no vote.

PUPPY THAT BIT 3 PERSONS IN FERGUSON FOUND RABID

A post mortem examination of a 10-week-old stray puppy, which bit three Ferguson residents Sept. 26, has revealed that the dog was rabid. Dr. D. L. Harris, rabies consultant to the city and county, announced today.

Those bitten by the puppy were Mrs. Theodore A. Smentkowski, 846 Carson road, and her son, Teddy, 3, and Neil Campbell, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Campbell, 858 Carson. They all are taking antirabies shots and Dr. Harris said he did not believe they were in danger because the lacerations were not deep.

Dr. Harris joined the Ferguson police in advising any one else who may have been bitten by the dog to begin taking treatments. The dog was taken to the Humane Society shelter at 1705 South Hanley road on the date the three bite cases were reported and died there last weekend. Four dogs and a cat bitten by the puppy also were taken to the shelter for treatment and observation.

ITALIAN LEATHER RATE CUT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP).—The United States put into effect yesterday lowered tariff rates on several leather items imported from Italy.

The reduced duties were set to compensate Italy for cutting tariff rates on some Japanese products during triangular negotiations conducted earlier this year.

AIRLINERS BEING MADE SAFER AS RESULT OF CRASH AT FORT WOOD

Fire Resistant Materials, Protection Devices Installed—Steel Replacing Aluminum Alloy Parts.

By CARL R. BALDWIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 6.—Manufacturers are making changes in Convair planes and Pratt & Whitney engines to improve safety of their operations as a result of studies made of an American Airlines plane crash at Fort Leonard Wood Aug. 4, witnesses told a Civil Aeronautics Board panel here yesterday.

William W. Eddington, assistant project engineer for Convair, a division of General Dynamics Corp., testified new fire resistant materials and protection devices already are being installed in Convair 240 and 340 models at the San Diego (Calif.) factory.

Aluminum alloy parts are being replaced with steel, and asbestos linings and additional shut-off valves are being added, Eddington said. Members of the CAB board of inquiry had previously expressed concern at the speed with which the American Airlines Convair burned through the wing, causing the plane to fall and killing all 30 persons aboard.

Testifies on Stud Failures.

Another witness, Robert W. Stanley, service engineer for Pratt & Whitney, a division of United Aircraft Corp., said even before the crash his company had been trying to overcome the problem of "hold-down" stud failures. Engines manufactured by Pratt & Whitney are used in Convair planes.

The Aug. 4 plane crash is believed to have been caused by a broken cylinder in the engine. The cylinder previously had been damaged by the breaking or loosening of seven of its 15 "hold-down" studs. It was inadvertently installed in the engine of the plane which crashed, although it should have been scrapped in whole or in part, witnesses testified.

Twenty-six witnesses testified at the two-day public hearing, completed yesterday at the Greene county courthouse. William K. Andrews, director of the CAB's Bureau of Safety Inspection, who presided, said the CAB would announce its findings in the crash investigation later.

Stanley testified engineers in Pratt & Whitney's Hartford (Conn.) factory had been working for a long time on "hold-down" stud failures. The problem of these studs, which hold the cylinders to the crankcase and permit individual mounting of cylinders in engines, has been a chronic one, Stanley said.

Some of the newer engines are being redesigned so that longer bolts can be used to secure the cylinders, the witness said. However, the manufacturer will have to conduct more tests before the new engines can be released for general use, he added.

Cylinders Tested.

Stanley said 21 of the 22 defective cylinders, which previous witnesses testified were inadvertently put back into service, are now being tested at the Pratt & Whitney factory for evidence of "fatigue cracks," or signs of excessive wear.

"Fatigue cracks" were found in the other cylinder, which had been installed shortly before the crash of the American Airlines plane. Investigators have expressed the opinion that the cracks joined in one large circumferential fracture which permitted high octane gasoline to escape from the engine. The gasoline then became ignited and burned through the wing.

Stanley said before 1953 Pratt & Whitney had recom-

Tax Agents Loading Van After Raid

Internal Revenue Service agents loading pinball machines into a van in East St. Louis yesterday. The machines were taken from Walsh's Tavern, 1755 State street, one of many places raided in 10 southern Illinois communities.

Gambling Device Raids To Go On, Agents Promise

ational Hotel Building, National Stockyards, just outside East St. Louis, they found four slot machines and four pinball machines, none of which had the $250 federal occupational tax stamp required for coin-operated gambling devices. The pinball machines, bearing large placards stating: "For Amusement Only," did display the $10 federal tax stamp for amusement devices.

Scoville's is owned by Jack Scoville, who lives in the hotel building.

Among the slot machines was one operated by 50-cent pieces, one 25-cent, one 10-cent and one 5-cent machine.

All the slot machines and pinball machines seized in St. Clair county were loaded on Government vans and impounded at the Federal Building in East St. Louis. Disposition of them will be decided by the United States District Court there.

List of Places Raided.

Places raided in East St. Louis and the number of pinball machines taken follow:

Wes Teel's Tavern, 315 Missouri, avenue, owned by Charles Wesley Teel, 1570A St. Clair avenue, one machine; the C.T. Restaurant, 318 Missouri avenue, owned by Christ Georges of St. Louis, two; Walsh's Tavern, 1755 State street, owned by Emmett Walsh, who lives above the tavern, three; Holycross Tavern, 1481 State, owned by Harold Holycross, who lives on the premises, two.

Babe & Joe's Madhouse Tavern, 1331 North Fourteenth street, owned by Anthony J. Jackewitz, who lives upstairs, two; England's Tavern, 807 Exchange avenue, owned by Charles S. Rasin, 4916 North Park drive, Washington Park, two.

In Belleville: Zack's Circle Tavern, 10 North First street, owned by Marshall Zack, 115 North Pennsylvania avenue, Belleville, two.

In Mascoutah: Hund's Tavern, owned by Hund's Tavern, Inc., one, and Cluck's Red Hen, owned by Raymond D. Cluck, 25 East Main street, one.

Raids also were made on three places in Quincy; one in Taylorville; one in Pana; seven mended replacement of any cylinder subjected to two or more stud failures. The recommendation was relaxed in 1953, he said, and the company adopted a rule that cylinders with stud failures could be re-used if warpage of the cylinder flanges was less than .005 of an inch. This tolerance later was reduced to .003.

"Reports from the field have indicated that we should tighten up on this provision again," Stanley said. "We found in many cases that distortion probably would accompany stud failures."

Policies Now Adequate.

Stanley said he believed inspection policies adopted by American Airlines maintenance supervisors since the crash would prevent any recurrence of the errors which permitted the 22 cylinders to get back into service.

The barrels of all cylinders subjected to even one stud failure are now mutilated at the time of discovery in the company's engine overhaul plant at Tulsa, Okla. Other safety measures also have been taken.

S. B. Atkinson, Civil Aeronautics Authority aviation safety agent at Tulsa, testified that 14 American Airlines engines had been removed from planes in the past six months because of stud failures, nine from Convairs and five from DC-6s.

Testimony was given by another witness, Thomas J. Harris, director of American Airlines' power plant engineering branch, that the company's record of premature engine removals for stud failures was better than that of the industry as a whole.

One in 48,000 Hours.

American Airlines' average of premature engine removals for this reason is one in each 48,000 engine hours, he said, and the industry's average is one such removal in 41,000 engine hours. Atkinson said CAA agents had failed to note that American Airlines was not following some of its own manual recommendations in its inspection practices before the crash.

He said there had been differences of opinion expressed by CAA agents and company representatives in interpreting regulations issued by the Civil Aeronautics Board. He agreed with Presiding Officer Andrews that enforcement by the CAA of CAB regulations would be

TWO WOMEN GIVE INFORMATION ON POLICE 'PAY-OFFS'

Names of Former Brothel Inmates
Learned by Prosecutor on Trip West.

Two young women have been found in St. Louis who have given valuable information in connection with the circuit court grand jury inquiry into reported pay-offs to some police officers by brothel operators. Circuit Attorney Edward F. Dowd said today.

Identity of the two young women, former inmates of disorderly houses here, was learned by Dowd on his recent trip to the west coast, he said. It is expected the women will be taken before the current grand jury after it resumes sessions next Monday.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Ethel Clift, former brothel operator, has added the name of a fourth police officer to the three previously named by her as demanding and receiving pay-offs from her for the privilege of operating without police interference.

She said she paid the fourth officer $50 a month for a period of years while she ran an establishment on the South Side.

Began Pay-Offs in 1945.

Mrs. Clift has said she began making pay-offs in 1945 when the payments ran from $25 to $50 a month, she was quoted as saying, although sometimes the payment was doubled, and with other officers participating totaled $350 a month at times. She is being kept in protective custody after expressing fear of being killed for her disclosures.

Helped materially if new regulations would be accompanied by an interpretation furnished by CAB staff members.

At the close of the hearing, William B. Whitacre, Chicago, regional operations officer for American Airlines, pledged that his company would do everything it could to put into effect every safety measure recommended by the CAB and other agencies.

MAYOR SENDS CHARTER BILL TO ALDERMEN

Measure Calls for March 6 Election of Freeholders—Board Convened Tomorrow.

A bill calling for a special election next March 6 to choose 13 freeholders to draft a new city charter or revise the present one was transmitted today to the Board of Aldermen by Mayor Raymond E. Tucker.

The aldermen will reconvene tomorrow after being in summer recess since June 24.

The Mayor's earlier efforts to obtain a modern charter for St. Louis have been blocked by maneuvers in the board. Bills for election of freeholders have languished in the aldermanic committee on legislation. Last spring the aldermen passed a bill calling for election of freeholders last June 21, but the Mayor vetoed the measure, contending it was an attempt to confuse the issue with the bond issue for municipal improvements voted last spring.

The measure transmitted today provides that candidates for the board of freeholders may be nominated by petitions signed by 250 registered voters. The petitions would have to be filed by next Feb. 6.

Names of all qualified nominees would be placed on the ballot. The thirteen candidates receiving the greatest number of votes would become freeholders. They would have one year in which to draft a report proposing either a new charter or amendments designed to modernize the present charter, which was adopted in 1914.

The recommendations of the freeholders would be submitted to the voters for adoption or rejection.

On direction of the Board of Aldermen, the legislation committee has drawn up nine proposed charter amendments. The chairman of the committee, Alderman Anton Niemeyer, Democrat of the Eighth ward, has stated the proposed amendments are on "non-controversial" matters.

Numerous other bills are to be introduced tomorrow. These will include routine improvement measures which have been prepared in the various city departments since the board went into recess.

Two measures awaiting action by the board would officially confirm the routes of the proposed Daniel Boone and Ozark Expressways. These bills were introduced last spring, but no public hearings have been scheduled on them yet.

BRIDGE GROUP'S FEES TO CARM FIRM UNDER FIRE

Head of Commission Is Also President of Publishing Company Named in Report.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. (UP)—The General Accounting Office today questioned the propriety of payments by the White County Bridge Commission to the Carmi, Ill., Publishing Co.

Roy Clippinger, manager of the bridge, is also president, editor, and general manager of the publishing company, which publishes several newspapers in Illinois.

The bridge commission operates a toll bridge across the Wabash river from New Harmony, Ind., to White county, Ill.

Congress in the last session set up a special committee, headed by Representative Winfield K. Denton (Dem.), Indiana, to investigate expenditures by the commission.

The commission, of three members with lifetime appointments, floated a bond issue of $945,000 and since has taken in $3,200,000 in tolls. Denton's committee was set up to determine what was done with the toll revenue and why the bridge has not been freed of tolls.

Report by GAO.

In a report to the Denton committee, the GAO said that its examination of the commission's expenditures "disclosed that business between the commission and the Carmi Times was not always conducted on an 'arms-length' basis."

"In the commission's business relations with various commercial suppliers," the report said, "we observe that the Carmi Times Publishing Co. has frequently acted as a middle man and has obtained unnecessary mark-ups from the commission."

"The commission is so organized as to be fully capable of avoiding payment of these mark-ups by dealing directly with commercial suppliers."

The GAO specifically raised the question of the propriety of commission payments to the publishing company for toll ticket books, pamphlets, and the use of commission property by the publishing company.

Payment to Clippinger.

It noted also the commission had paid Clippinger about $3000 a year for traveling expenses since 1950. It said the relationship of some of these trips to bridge business "was not always apparent."

In testimony before the committee, taken yesterday behind closed doors and released today, Clippinger defended his actions. He said he saw nothing wrong or improper about the transactions between the commission and his publishing company.

The GAO report said three employees of the commission put in at least part of their time working on the business of the Carmi Times Publishing Co.

It said the net effect of this arrangement was that funds of the commission "are being used to pay salary costs applicable to the Carmi Times Publishing Co. to the extent of about $8000 a year."

It also criticized the purchase of $55,000 copies of two pamphlets by the commission from the Carmi Times Publishing Co. at a cost of $17,853.

The GAO report also noted that the Justice Department had been asked by the States of Illinois and Indiana in 1953 to audit the books of the commission and investigate the propriety of its disbursements. But it said the department decided against any such action.

SHOT TO DEATH BY WIFE WHEN ASLEEP IN HOME

Kimmawick Resident Killed Accidentally, She Says at First, Then Changes Story.

Alvin L. Bell, an employee of Fisher Body Division of General Motors Corp. here, was shot and killed by his wife yesterday when asleep in the bedroom of their home at Kimmawick, Mo., Jefferson county authorities reported today.

Manual Wisdom, a neighbor, told Sheriff Leo Church Mrs. Bell had informed her she accidentally shot her husband with a .22-caliber rifle and asked Wisdom to call police.

After re-enacting the shooting in front of the Sheriff and Highway Patrol officers, Mrs. Bell was taken to the county prosecuting attorney's office at Festus where she changed her story under questioning and admitted she had shot her husband "intentionally," Church said.

Mrs. Bell was quoted as saying she and her husband had quarreled frequently over domestic troubles, but had not quarreled yesterday. Bell, 42 years old, was shot once. "The bullet entered his back at the shoulder, passed through his neck severing a jugular vein and lodged in his left arm, Church said.

Two of the Bell's five children were at home when the shooting occurred. The family had moved to Kimmawick last week from Gads Hill, Mo. Bell stayed with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bell, 2819 St. Louis avenue, during the week when working at Fisher Body.

Bell was employed as a body trimmer at Fisher Body plant since November 1954. He had been laid off this week because of a change in assembly line operations but was expected to return next Monday.

Mrs. Bell, 35, is being held at the Jefferson county jail at Hillsboro on suspicion of first-degree murder. An inquest will be held today. Kimmawick is on the Mississippi river in Jefferson county just south of St. Louis county. Gads Hill is in Wayne county, in southeast Missouri.

Encouraging Report Given By Mansfield on Indochina

Senator, Back From Tour, Says Premier
Diem Has Provided Viet Nam a Chance of Staying Free.

By GEORGE H. HALL
Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—Senator Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), in an encouraging report on the three former Associated States of Indochina, recommends a review of United States aid programs to determine the most effective means of assisting South Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

Mansfield recently completed the third study mission he has undertaken in Indochina in the last three years for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. His report, made public last night, placed special emphasis on Viet Nam, the largest and most important of the three states.

In the case of Viet Nam he suggested that the United States consider the exchange of special missions with the Vietnamese or the appointment of a special United States mission to review economic difficulties in Viet Nam.

He said, would be aimed at speeding the economic recovery and development of South Viet Nam by a more effective and coordinated use of American assistance and at redesigning the aid program with a view of creating a self-sustaining Viet Nam over a period of time.

Red Tide Slackening.
Up to now, said Mansfield, the Viet Nam program has been conducted on an urgent, or "crash," basis, which has resulted in waste and ineffectiveness.

It was Mansfield's observation that the "tide of totalitarian Communism," which a year ago was on the verge of overrunning all of Viet Nam and most of Southeast Asia, has slackened, and that there now is a reasonable chance of the survival and development of a free Viet Nam.

It should be emphasized, however, Mansfield said, that what has been gained in the last year is a chance and not a guarantee, and that the chance has become possible "largely through the dedication and courage of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem."

It was Diem, an honest, patriotic but inexperienced man, who took over the task of running South Viet Nam after last year's Geneva truce split the country in two, leaving the northern portion under the control of the Communist-led Vietminh. Diem has managed to muddle through, despite gloomy predictions, particularly by military observers.

In the Diem Government, which is backed by the United States, there now exists for the first time, Mansfield said, a genuine alternative to the authoritarian regime of Ho Chi Minh, boss of the Vietminh. But the Diem Government is faced with the monumental task of constructing a free nation from the ground up under difficult circumstances and as fast as possible. The task involves, Mansfield said, these specific seven jobs:

The holding of elections in South Viet Nam to choose a constituent assembly.

The completion of the political unification of South Viet Nam by resolving the problem of the many dissident groups, religious and otherwise.

The strengthening and improvement of the armed forces. The charting of a program aimed at the unification of Viet Nam by peaceful means.

Prompt dealing with problems of reconstruction, particularly with problems of farmers. Reduction of reliance on foreign aid.

The encouragement of free countries to co-operate in building Viet Nam.

Possibility of Force.
Warning that the threat of Communist domination remains hanging over the three free areas, Mansfield said that the coming year is likely to be decisive.

There is some expectation in the South Viet Nam capital of Saigon, Mansfield reported, that instead of relying on peaceful methods of dealing with the problem of reunification the Vietminh may once more resort to force to achieve control of the entire country.

The Vietminh have been demanding inter-regional consultations on the nation-wide elections which are supposed to be held, under terms of the Geneva agreement, in July of 1956. The position of the Diem Government has been that it did not sign the Geneva agreement and is not bound by it.

Ho Chi Minh is popular personally throughout Viet Nam and it has been held likely he would win a free election if a vote should be taken in the near future.

Diem Sets Conditions.
Diem has endorsed the principle of elections for unification, but has insisted on prior conditions, including assurance of democratic liberties. An election to choose a Constituent Assembly for South Viet Nam would be a different matter.

If the Ho government feels its power and popularity are waning, Mansfield said, it might resort to force. This might take the form of an uprising of the Vietminh underground in South Viet Nam, or an invasion of Vietminh forces from the north, with or without the support of the Chinese Communists.

Regardless of its form, any Communist resumption of hostilities would be a serious threat to world peace, Mansfield said.

The position of the underground Vietminh in South Viet Nam should be weakened progressively as the Saigon Government builds up free political institutions and assists farmers, Mansfield said, but he noted at the same time that there would remain a need for a substantial military force capable of dealing with Communist uprisings in the south if they should occur.

The Diem government also must be prepared for a major conflict if the Vietminh should open an offensive from the northern side of the dividing line, Mansfield said.

Economic Dislocations.
The dissolving of the economic links among Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos has resulted in widespread dislocation in Viet Nam, Mansfield noted, but there does not appear to be a danger of an immediate breakdown. The present difficulties can be overcome only if the government continues to take a keen interest in the economic situation and if it makes effective use of foreign aid and technical advice.

Mansfield estimated the United States has provided Viet Nam with $100,000,000 in economic and technical aid and $56,000,000 for assistance to refugees from the north. Far larger sums were supplied French forces and are being furnished the Viet Nam army.

Mansfield is not an advocate of overly-large economic assistance. In the case of Cambodia, for example, he said: "It seems to me essential to emphasize that unless caution and restraint is exercised in administering American assistance it will produce not only an inexcusable waste of American funds but serious dislocations in Cambodia. Aid can act to the benefit of our relations with that country but it can also act to their detriment; it depends on how the program is handled."

Influx of Americans.
Mansfield pointed out that a year ago there were less than 12 Americans handling United States relations in Cambodia, and that there are now about 100. In 1953 there were two American officials in Laos; now there are 45.

The government of Laos, a country with a population of only about 1,500,000 is still trying to cope with a dissident group called the Pathet Lao which has occupied two northern provinces and is said to be infiltrated by the Communist-led Viet Minh.

Mansfield said the Laotian government has protested repeatedly to the International Control Commission, and at the commission's urging has tried unsuccessfully to negotiate a settlement with the Pathet Lao. The commission, charged under the terms of the Geneva agreement with maintaining the cease-fire, operates under the chairmanship of India.

While Laotian forces are being trained by the French, Mansfield said, the United States is paying the bill—about $50,000,000 this year, or a sum greater than the total personal income of all the Laotians. Mansfield pointed out that while Laos is strategically situated it can never, with its own resources, stem a major Asian Communist drive into Southeast Asia over the Laotian invasion route. This can be done only by other countries interested in maintaining the independence of Laos.

Mansfield warned Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos to be cautious with respect to their nationalistic feelings and to seek as quickly as possible, among themselves, with France, their former colonial master, and with other free nations "a new pattern of equal relationships in the realm of trade, defense and culture."

"In a world in which totalitarianism and freedom are constantly engaged in struggle, no nation can expect to stand apart and dwell upon the bitterness and suspicion of the past and still retain its liberty," Mansfield said.

RUSSIANS ASK U.N. TO PRESS RETURN OF WAR REFUGEES

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch
Special Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 6—Russia proposed in the United Nations General Assembly yesterday that the U.N. make greater efforts to return Russian refugees of World War II.

Soviet Delegate Y. Y. Matulis introduced in the Assembly's social committee a proposal that the U.N. high commissioner for refugees "promote by all available means" and "facilitate" the "rapid repatriation" of such refugees. The proposal conceded that the commissioner should be guided by the principle of "voluntary" repatriation.

Matulis said the refugees are not now "properly informed" and called for "necessary explanatory work" by the commissioner.

United States Delegate Jacob Blaustein warned that "the United States is firmly opposed to forced repatriation in any form, whether by direct or indirect steps." He said he would have more to say about the Soviet use of the word "voluntary" later in the debate.

Man Killed by Metal That Fell From Training Plane in Illinois

Craft Crashes Later at Shattuc and Pilot
Bails Out Safely—Victim a Sandoval
Rail Section Hand.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CENTRALIA, Ill., Oct. 6—A railroad section hand was killed today when he was struck by a piece of metal falling from an Air Force training plane that later crashed near Shattuc, Ill., about 55 miles east of St. Louis.

The pilot, Lt. William F. Andrews of Webb Air Force Base, Big Springs, Tex., parachuted to safety shortly before the crash. The victim was Victor O. Bright of Sandoval, who was struck by a section of the plane's canopy apparently released from the cockpit to enable the pilot to bail out.

Bright was killed as he stood beside a handcar near Perrin, seven miles northeast of here and about five miles west of the crash scene. He was a member of a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad work crew. Another member of the crew said the object "seemed to come out of nowhere."

Lt. Andrews was taken by helicopter to Scott Air Force Base at Belleville where he was under treatment for injuries suffered in landing. The extent of his injuries was not immediately determined. The plane, a T-33 trainer, burned after the crash on the farm of Harold Heinzman about four miles north of Shattuc. Wreckage was scattered over an area of 250 square yards.

ILLINOIS RULING ON ANNEXING DRY AREAS TO WET CITIES

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 6 (AP)—Attorney General Latham Castle filed yesterday that if a wet city annexes an area formerly within a dry township, the annexed area remains dry. On the other hand, he said, when a dry city annexes an area formerly within a wet township, the annexed area becomes dry.

Castle's opinion was given to Loren B. Sackett, chairman of the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

EISENHOWER HAS 'GOOD NIGHT,' DOCTORS SAY

an Iowa Supreme Court justice, to be a judge of the United States tax court.

4. Walter S. Gordon, Berkeley (Calif.) Negro, to be Governor of the Virgin Islands.

It was the third day in a row, and the fourth time since his illness, that the physicians have allowed the President to do such paper work.

If all shows-up well at the weekend examination by Dr. White, the extent of the President's return to active control of Government will be increased.

The doctors may even approve conferences with Cabinet members or other key officials for some time late next week.

One fortunate factor in the President's illness was that it occurred while Congress was not in session and at a period of comparative quiet in the presidential schedule.

Most matters which have required his attention are those which have been processed through the departments and approved by Adams under the chain of command procedure which Mr. Eisenhower inaugurated as President.

Last night's bulletin from the President's bedside said he had spent a comfortable day with satisfactory progress.

In the normal process, the President's damaged heart last week should have been clearing away the tissue injured by the blood clot in an artery. This week it should be forming scar

Get Well Greeting From Grandson

Drawing sent to President Eisenhower by his grandson, Dwight David Eisenhower II. The drawing was one of several by the boy and his sisters, Barbara Anne and Susan, included in a get-well gift box of bubble gum, playing cards and a Western story. The box was received last week, but was opened, and enjoyed immensely, by the President for the first time yesterday.

tissue around the injured area, which, Dr. White said is about the size of a half dollar.

Press Secretary Hagerty said yesterday the "healing process is taking place." A more elaborate report may be forthcoming after Dr. White's weekend examination.

It is too early to say whether Secretary of State Dulles will fly here for talks with the President before he takes off for the foreign ministers conference at Geneva. There may be some word on that within a few days.

Meanwhile, the President is listening to music on a tape-recording machine in his room and taking things easy.

FAURE FIRES FOUR GAULLISTS FROM CABINET POSTS

The Assembly would leave him without a majority.

Premier Under Fire.

The Premier is under fire from both those who believe he has compromised too much with Arab nationalists and those who feel he has not moved rapidly enough to obtain a solution to the continued terrorism and guerrilla warfare.

Social Republican leaders last night called for replacement of Faure's cabinet by a "national union government." Although such a government elsewhere means all parties, in France it means all except the Communists.

On learning of the Gaullists' criticism, Faure called the four ministers to his office this morning and bluntly told them to get out.

Corniglion-Molinier, however, apparently was not asked to go, and accompanied Faure to the later Cabinet meeting.

The Gaullist defection appeared to threaten Faure's majority in the Assembly once it reaches a vote. By forcing a vote on his entire Government program, however, the Premier may be able to stave off the reckoning until after the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference in Geneva late this month.

The Associated Press quoted State Aeronautics Director George Nelson as saying a severe turbulence was reported early today at 8000 feet over northern Colorado and southern Wyoming.

The general area for which the plane was flying. The area is very rugged, steep and precipitous.

Until today United Air Lines had flown more than four years and almost 12,500,000,000 revenue miles without a passenger fatality.

Robert E. Johnson, vice president and assistant to the president said.

Problem of Regency.

The Cabinet at its meeting had to consider what to do about replacing Sultan Mohamed V. The Gaullist majority in the Assembly once it reaches a vote.

The question now is whether the government can go ahead with its plan for a three-man regency, or whether the Sultan has blocked such a move by his delegation of powers.

Faure's plan called for creation of a new government including nationalists under the regency and revision of the relationship between Morocco and France.

France now exercises almost absolute control over the protectorate.

The Gaullist ministers forced out of the Cabinet contended there was no possibility of settling up the regency. However, the Sultan was reported to have told a French official that his cousin would not stand in the way of the regency plan.

French colonial backers of the Sultan, however, have made no such concession.

Jacques Chaban-Delmas, one of the Social Republican leaders, said the situation in North Africa is of "exceptional gravity" with "bloody rioting."

Threatening to become a full scale war against France.

'Absence of Authority.'

He blamed France's trouble on "an absence of authority" and said the procession of premiers and governments "could lead to catastrophe."

"Because of this," he said, "the Social Republicans have informed the President (Rene Coty) that hereafter they will work toward a single objective: the immediate formation of a government of national union."

which is the only way French authority can be maintained and the necessary reforms carried out in Africa.

"This government will be placed under the direction of an uncontested national authority," he said.

He named no names but Social Republicans were reported to be thinking of Gen. De Gaulle or former Premier Pierre Mendes-France as suitable premiers.

The national union government would include "all factions of a national opinion," Chaban-Delmas said. However, it was understood that Communists would not be included.

8-YEAR TERM FOR TELLER
WHO EMBEZZLED $63,700

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—A bank teller who embezzled $63,700, then fled with his family and escaped arrest for 10 months, was sentenced today to eight years in jail.

John Calvin Siemer, 23 years old, tried in vain to avoid a jail term by offering to pay the bank 10 per cent of his income for the rest of his life.

Judge Matthew Abruzzo in United States District Court, rejecting the offer, expressed belief Siemer had stashed away more than $25,000 that still has not been accounted for.

Siemer, with his wife and three children, were picked up by the Federal Bureau of Investigation last July in South Amherst, O. That was 10 months after he had fled from his job in the Staten Island National Bank & Trust Co.

FLYING TIGER STRIKE ENDS

BURBANK, Calif., Oct. 6 (AP)—A strike by the AFL-International Association of Machinists against the Flying Tiger line ended yesterday after 114 days, one of the longest strikes in national air line history.

A joint statement by the company and the IAM, said the wages of some 418 striking mechanics in six cities were increased by three to five cents an hour, retroactive to Aug. 15, with another two cents to be paid next Jan. 15. The union had asked about six and a half cents an hour.

General manager Lloyd Bruff of the Los Angeles traffic department said there have been 56 short circuits in six weeks.

PLANE CARRYING 64 HITS PEAK, ALL BELIEVED DEAD

Baby on Board.

Others reported aboard the U.A.L. plane includes Mrs. Darrel Tucker of Ogden, Utah, and her 21-month-old daughter, and Mrs. Georgia M. West of Salt Lake City and her son, Earl.

United Air Lines passenger agents said a sister-in-law of Mrs. Kirk and a man named Hanks were believed to have boarded the plane for Salt Lake City.

Before Weed spotted the wreckage on Medicine Bow Peak, one of the highest in southern Wyoming's Snowy range, there had been a report that the missing aircraft had been sighted on Elk mountain immediately to the north of Medicine Bow. The latter report turned out to be unfounded, however.

Both peaks lie in the vicinity of the route the plane would have taken from Denver to Salt Lake City, which follows north from Denver among the eastern edge of the Front range of the Rockies, past the Snowy range, and then makes an abrupt left turn for an almost direct flight into the Salt Lake City airport.

Although no radio contact from the airplane was received after it left Denver, a spokesman for the airline in Salt Lake City said none was required en route if weather conditions were good—as they were believed to be today.

Customarily, the pilot might have radioed to check points on the way, but the next required contact would have been for his approach to the Salt Lake City airport, as he crossed over the rugged Wasatch mountains just east of the Utah capitol.

The Associated Press quoted State Aeronautics Director George Nelson as saying a severe turbulence was reported early today at 8000 feet over northern Colorado and southern Wyoming.

The general area for which the plane was flying. The area is very rugged, steep and precipitous.

Until today United Air Lines had flown more than four years and almost 12,500,000,000 revenue miles without a passenger fatality.

Robert E. Johnson, vice president and assistant to the president said.

AUTO, AMBULANCE COLLIDE,
POLICEMAN IS INJURED

A police officer accompanying an electric shock victim to City Hospital was injured today when a city ambulance collided with an automobile at Twelfth boulevard and Chestnut street during a brief rainstorm.

The shock victim, Earl Meade, 1815A South Jefferson avenue, had been knocked unconscious when he came in contact with an underground electric cable while digging a post hole at the 1400 housing project, Twenty-third street and Cass avenue.

He was placed in an ambulance driven by William Longo, and Patrolman Vincent O'Neill rode beside him in the rear.

O'Neill suffered lacerations and contusions of the right leg when the ambulance, with siren sounding, collided with a machine driven by Harold Comensky, 8356 Richard avenue, University City. Comensky said he did not hear the siren because he had closed his car windows when it started raining.

WOMAN, 68, IS AWARDED
HER MULTI-ENGINE WINGS

TETERBORO, N.J., Oct. 6 (UP)—A 68-year-old great grandmother, who took up flying three years ago "just for fun," has won her multi-engine wings.

After completing a test run in a twin-engined Cessna owned by a friend from her home in Palm Springs, Calif., Mrs. Vaddie R. Bunker was presented with a multi-engine certificate yesterday by a Civil Aeronautics Authority examiner at the Atlantic Executive terminal.

The certificate qualifies her for any type of multi-engine aircraft, the official said.

"My great great grandson will be happy. He loves to fly with me," Mrs. Bunker said.

FOR BUILDING IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO (UP)—The large loop office building of a utilities firm will undergo a $2,000,000 air conditioning job, but it won't be with electricity.

The Peoples Gas, Light & Coke Co. will live up to its well-known slogan, "You can do it better with gas." Engineers figured out how to air-condition the 20-story building by using a gas flame. The job will be completed by 1956.

The heart of the system will be in the sub-basement where three gas-fired boilers rated at 375 horsepower will generate steam to operate a turbine. The turbine drives a centrifugal compressor, cooling the water used in the air-conditioning system.

JUDGE CAN THROW THE BOOK
AT THIEF—DIARY LISTS LOOT

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Police found plenty of incriminating evidence when they halted and searched a suspicious looking man in Taipei yesterday—a diary listing more than 40 thefts.

Ho Ta-Wan, 28 years old, had noted everything—dates and places, articles stolen, the prices they fetched, the names of buyers, and how he had spent the proceeds.

He was taken to the Taipei detention house.

A Small Bigamy?

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A man called the cops and wanted to know why his friend was jailed. The jailer said there was a suspicion the fellow had a wife in Mexico as well as Houston.

"Oh," said the caller. "I was afraid it was something serious."

PILOT BAILS OUT, M'DONNELL JET CRASHES IN IOWA

Navy jet airplane procurement, I believe the best interests of the Navy and the public would be served by public hearings on the matter," Hollifield's telegram said.

"Such hearings should help clear up confusion and misunderstanding as to the facts, clarify Navy policy and procedures, and establish the responsibility of the parties involved. The subcommittee plans to hold public hearings."

"We will want to hear Navy and other witnesses concerning the F3H, J-40 and related airplane programs. It is my belief the relevant facts should be publicly disclosed to the greatest possible extent consistent with national security. I have instructed the subcommittee staff to provide you, as soon as possible, with hearing details and arrangements."

Two subcommittee investigators who had previously been at the Westinghouse plant in Kansas City, where the J-40 engine for the F3H-1 Demon, much manufactured, left St. Louis last night after spending the day interviewing Navy and company personnel at the McDonnell Aircraft Corp. plant here.

It is understood that much of the information that has been furnished to investigators in Washington and elsewhere, including St. Louis, is still classified for security reasons and will not be released to the public for the present. The problem of declassification of as much material as possible is to be disposed of before the hearings.

About 50 F3H-1 Demons powered by the J-40 engine, which cost the Government more than $87,000,000, have never been flown away from the McDonnell plant after they were accepted by the Navy. The Navy has announced they have insufficient power.

MOVE TO SHELVE ALGERIAN ISSUE IN U.N. OPPOSED

Arab-Asian Group Will Fight for Debate if
forts Come Into Open.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 6 (AP)—Leaders of the Arab-Asian group in the United Nations, whose campaign to bring the Algerian case before the U.N. Assembly sent France walking out of the Assembly, made known today they will fight any move to bypass debate on the issue.

Ahmad El Shukairy, head of the Syrian delegation, told a reporter he was aware that behind-scenes plans were in the making to avoid debate on Algeria at this session in the hope this would persuade France to return to the 60-nation body.

"We certainly will oppose any such move if it comes out into the open," Shukairy declared. "Algeria is a vital question that must be considered fully."

The Assembly's Political Committee postponed setting a date for the opening of the debate on the explosive issue. At its opening meeting yesterday, the committee decided to lead off its debate with the atoms-for-peace program and to avoid at this stage scheduling the other items assigned it for debate.

Israeli Suggestion.
Israel was reported working on a plan to sidetrack debate on Algeria and ask the World Court to rule whether the U.N. is competent to deal with the issue. It was considered doubtful, however, that such a move could get sufficient support.

The French government insists Algeria is an integral part of metropolitan France, rather than a colony or protectorate, and therefore outside the competence of the U.N. Assembly.

The Asian-Arab bloc contends it is the Assembly's duty to discuss Algeria under the principles of the U.N. Charter in favor of freedom of peoples.

However, Shukairy, India's V. K. Krishna Menon and other leaders of the group publicly expressed regret that France decided to walk out. They said they intended no slight to the French in pushing the item's inclusion on the agenda.

Shukairy said in an interview temporary postponement of the Algerian debate was agreeable to his colleagues because they were willing for priority to be given such paramount topics as atomic energy and disarmament.

Atomic Energy Debate.
It was the general feeling that the next three or four weeks of Political Committee debate would be taken up with atomic energy and the related issue of atomic radiation.

This would carry the committee past the Oct. 27 opening of the Big Four foreign minister's meeting in Geneva.

The anti-colonial powers won another victory in the U.N. yesterday over a resolution involving territory under French administration.

The Trusteeship Committee voted 36 to 11, with nine abstentions, in favor of granting representatives from the French Cameroons a hearing before the committee during the present General Assembly. France had no representative at the committee meeting.

The United States and Britain argued against hearing representatives of three organizations in the French Cameroons, a trust territory. However, the Asian-African bloc, a large group of Latin American nations, and the Soviet bloc supported the proposal to hear representatives of the Union of Cameroon Populations, the Cameroon Democratic Youth Group and the Democratic Union of Cameroon Women.

French Walk Out of Trade Talks With Reds.
GENEVA, Oct. 6 (AP)—France has walked abruptly out of important trade talks with Russia and the other Soviet bloc countries, it was disclosed today.

The talks were sponsored by the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe. It was understood the walkout was a further French protest against the U.N. Assembly's Soviet-supported decision to place the Algerian question on its agenda.

Nearly all west European countries opened bilateral trade talks Monday with the eight countries of the Soviet bloc under the commission's program to expand Europe's East-West trade.

The entire French delegation at the talks returned to Paris yesterday without a word. A spokesman of the French permanent delegation in Geneva said today they had been "recalled to Paris," but declined to give any further explanation.

France was negotiating a trade increase with the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania, Albania and East Germany. The negotiations were scheduled to continue for two weeks. More than 100 bilateral trade talks between the Soviet bloc and west European countries other than France are continuing unaffected by the French walkout.

The French boycott also extended to simultaneous talks on possible new payment arrangements for facilitating East-West trade.

Pinay and U. S. Envoy Discuss France's U.N. Walkout.
PARIS, Oct. 6 (UP)—French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay told United States Ambassador C. Douglas Dillon that greater Western solidarity could have prevented France's United Nations walkout last Saturday, a United States embassy spokesman said today.

Pinay discussed the situation created by France's walkout with Dillon yesterday afternoon, the spokesman said.

MAYOR TUCKER TO CONFER ON $6 SEWER FEE

Water Bills Would Help Finance Metropolitan District.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker said today he would confer with city department heads on the proposal to finance Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District operations with a $6 fixed annual service charge.

Tucker said he had read part of the report of a Chicago engineering firm to the sewer district which recommended the fixed-charge method of financing.

After finishing his study he will take up the proposal with Director of Streets and Sewers Frank Kriz, President Frank J. McDewitt of the Board of Public Service and Sewer Commissioner Ernest Paffrath.

The sewer district has asked the Mayor to meet with its representatives for discussion of a plan by which St. Louis and county agencies would collect the sewer fees by adding the charges to water bills. The $6 sewer charge would be cut to $5.10 through a discount for prompt payment.

Mayor Tucker, who returned last week from a trip to Europe, said he still opposed any plan to obtain sewer district funds by a general property tax in the city and county.

He said he felt the recent flat increase in county assessed valuations still did not bring assessments up to city levels, and that it would be another two years before true equalization is achieved.

Indicating some displeasure with sewer district operations, Tucker said he thought the district board could have proceeded much earlier toward taking over actual operation of sewers.

He said the district had rejected a city offer some months ago to turn over its entire sewer operations equipment and facilities, together with the money usually budgeted for sewer operations. This would have permitted the district to get into operation immediately and a money adjustment could be made later, he said.

THOUSANDS SEE VEILED PROPHET PARADE IN RAIN

gan to clear, permitting a few stars to shine at the going on. The clouds were in full retreat as the procession swung left on the Lindell cutoff, where two boys looked down from their perches on an enormous bottle-shaped liquor advertising sign.

Although somewhat more precarious, their view certainly was no better than that of 10-month-old Terry Scarfino, who saw his first Veiled Prophet parade from a high chair atop a hotel marquee at Eighteenth street and Washington avenue.

Watching from a newspaper stand on Olive street, 5-year-old Sharon Hanneke thought the parade was "fine" and said the Queen's was her favorite float. Inasmuch as it had not yet come into her view, her opinion was about to be discounted heavily when she explained that she had seen the procession on television before coming downtown. The parade, which took 25 to 30 minutes to pass a given point, was carried on KWK-TV at 7 p.m.

Crowd at Twelfth and Olive. At 9 o'clock Post-Dispatch Station KSD-TV televised the procession, and the crowd swelled noticeably in the vicinity of the station's cameras on Olive street near Twelfth boulevard.

Beyond Twelfth, the number of onlookers began to diminish rapidly. However, the proceedings were enlivened by some happy beer drinkers who lifted their bottles in appropriate toasts as the Queen passed.

Nor did the drinkers forget the Queen's special maids of honor, Miss Kate Edmonstone Borders, Miss Mary Talbot Leland, Miss Eunice Whitney Olin and Miss Elizabeth Overton Busch, who rode in the last float in the parade.

The Queen and the special maids were crowned at the Veiled Prophet Ball Tuesday night, marking the opening of the fall social season. A separate float for the Queen was used for the first time this year. In recent parades she rode with her maids.

Small farm tractors were used for the first time this year to pull the floats. They replaced truck tractors which had been substituted for horses following World War II. The farm tractors worked well, and parade officials were pleased with the transition.

Occupations in Floats.
Occupations depicted in the floats between the Prophet's and Queen's were storekeeper, teacher, fireman and policeman, farmer, nurse and doctor, Davy Crockett, artist and sculptor, stage performer, lawyer-judge, mother, scientist, member of the armed forces, architect and engineer and builder, banker, athlete, clergyman and President of the United States.

At 9:50 p.m., precisely on schedule, the Prophet reached the end of the route, near his den at 102 Ranken avenue. Especially happy about the on-time conclusion were the eight trumpeters who marched in front of the Prophet's float. They, with 10 bands, provided music for the parade.

As he left his float to return to Khorassan until next October, His Majesty remarked, "I thought we had an exceptionally good crowd. There were so many children."

Acting Police Chief Joseph E. Casey said it was one of the largest and friendliest parade crowds he could remember.

Even the lads with pea shooters, an unwelcome part of the parade tradition, apparently got into the good mood that dominated the evening—or else their marksmanship was off.

LOW WATER AT ALTON LOCK MAY HALT BARGE TRAFFIC

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—Barge traffic between St. Louis and Chicago on the Mississippi river may be halted some time this winter because of the low level of water at the Alton lock, A. C. Ingersoll Jr., of St. Louis, president of Federal Barge Lines, said here today.

Addressing the annual convention of the Upper Mississippi Waterways Association, Ingersoll said continued erosion of the river bed in the St. Louis area has lowered water levels in the Mississippi so that towboats may not be able to clear the lower sill of the lock at Alton in low-water periods this winter.

Ingersoll urged Congressional authorization for a study of the situation that would lead to "prompt action" to raise water levels at the lock. Barge traffic in the last nine years has been hampered "seriously" a total of 204 days and 20 days so far this year, he said.

DELICATESSEN HELD UP

James Gross, proprietor of a delicatessen at 4000 Kennerly avenue, was robbed of $85 last night by two men, one of whom drew a revolver after the other had purchased steaks. The robbers were Negroes. The man with the pistol handed a note saying "this is a stickup" to Gross's wife at the cash register, and took the money.

ARGENTINA SAYS PARAGUAY MUST EXPUL PERON

Asserts Friendly Relations Between Them Are Imperiled After Interview in Asuncion.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 6 (UP)—The Argentine Government notified Paraguay today that it must expel former Argentine President Juan D. Peron if friendly relations between the two countries are to continue.

The Argentine action was the result of an interview given to United Press by Peron after he took up asylum in Asuncion. (In Asuncion, President Alfredo Stroessner said yesterday that the Government would not interfere with Peron unless there were special reasons for curbing his activities.

Rules of Asylum. (Stroessner said Paraguay intended to "abide strictly" by the rules of the Latin American conventions on political asylum and that it had entered into no secret deals with the new Argentine Government regarding Peron.)

An Argentine note to the Paraguayan Government said that Peron's residence in Paraguay, after statements made to the press, is not compatible with maintenance of harmonious relations between the two countries.

Peron on Tuesday answered a series of questions put to him in Asuncion by United Press Correspondent German Chaves and then continued the discussion for another 45 minutes.

In the interview Peron said that he still was "constitutional President" of Argentina since he never had resigned.

He accused his own generals of double-crossing him and forcing him into exile.

Return Mentioned. He said he would refrain from politics in Paraguay but did not rule out the possibility that it might "some day occur to me" to return to Argentine politics.

By the Associated Press. The way was open today for smashing Peronista rule of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT).

The CGT bosses, who ran the 6,000,000-member labor organization as the powerful right arm of ousted dictator Juan D. Peron, resigned last night and the provisional government announced new elections would be held in every union within four months. The elections will be supervised by the labor ministry. Among the labor chiefs who quit was the secretary-general, Hector Hugo di Pietro, who backed Peron in his feud with the Roman Catholic Church.

La Prensa Plan. As the result of the shake-up, it was reported the CGT-operated newspaper, La Prensa, may be taken over by a federal interventor. La Prensa, once Argentina's biggest independent newspaper, was handed over to the labor organization in Peron's rule.

The Government's move on the sprawling labor organization followed a one-day strike by 15,000 meat packers in four plants here, in Rosario and in La Plata.

President Lonardi also issued a decree dissolving the Peron-appointed supreme court, and reinstated five high ranking army officers who had been thrown out of the army for taking part in a previous revolt against Peron.

Six judges were formally ousted from the Supreme Court. Their replacements—announced earlier—will be sworn in tomorrow.

But Jeronimo Remorino, Peron's former foreign minister, denied reports he had been arrested. The arrest had been reported by Chilean diplomats in Santiago.

U.S. TAX APPEAL BY 2 HANDBOOK PARTNERS HEARD

David Fixler, Harry Inukai Dispute Refusal to Allow $90,000 Pay Out in Bets.

Appeals of David Fixler and Harry Inukai, former partners in a handbook at 5618 Delmar boulevard, from Government claims for delinquent income taxes and penalties totaling $29,052 were taken under advisement here yesterday by Judge Stephen E. Rice of the Tax Court of the United States. The partnership, known as ## Government Bets.

The Government, however, refused to allow $90,000 of the "pay out" claimed and notified Fixler, Inukai and a third partner in the establishment, identified as William Hadzick, they would each have to pay taxes on one third of that amount.

Inukai, who gave an address in the 7400 block of Trenton avenue, University City, is charged with tax delinquencies of $10,578 for 1949 and penalties totaling $2221. He testified the partnership "went broke."

"Two million dollars sounds like a lot of money in a legitimate business," Inukai said, "but in an operation of the sort we had, it is not as big as it seems."

Fixler, 1339 Montclair avenue, was charged with delinquencies and penalties totaling $16,252 for 1947, 1948 and 1949. The Government charged his distributable share of income from the operation of the West End Pipe Shop in 1949 was $29,702, but that he reported only $584 from this source. The Government also charged Fixler failed to report $3500 he retained from the partnership at the rate of $10 a day. Fixler contended this was not taxable, being an automobile allowance.

Earnings Report Charge.

He also was charged with having failed to report earnings of $3000 in each of the years 1947 and 1948 from the operation of a handbook.

"In view of the facts that I lost my automobile, cashed in my insurance policies and am without any assets or steady income," Fixler said in his appeal, "I cannot see how it can be determined that I earned more than $33,000 in 1949 and still have no assets."

Fixler and Inukai acted as their own lawyers at the hearing.

A hearing scheduled for today on the Government's claim for delinquent taxes and penalties totaling $7302 against Ira Coleman Roberts of Caruthersville, Mo., described by authorities as a gambler and confidence man, was canceled when Roberts' attorney filed a stipulation in which Roberts agreed to pay the delinquency.

The claim represented taxes due on unreported income of $28,735 from "gambling and other illegal activities" in 1948, 1949 and 1950, the Government charged.

Sound-Seeing Tours. LONDON (INS)—A new world for London's blind has been opened up by the inauguration of "sound-seeing" tours on the River Thames. The "voice" of London's famous river—ships' whistles, fog horns, the chugging of tugs, the clank of cranes—is giving new pleasure to hundreds who cannot actually see its picturesque reaches.

Visiting Russians Inspect Multiple Housing at Boston

They Buy Accordion-Type Door — Express Surprise at So Much Glass in Cold Climate.

BOSTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—A building but encourages and gives subsidies for private building.

Albert Oamer, Russian interpreter, explained that the emphasis in Russia is on rapid and inexpensive construction because the demand for housing is so great.

In America, he said, aesthetic aspects are emphasized to please the buyer and sell the house.

Single-home developments were visited in Braintree, Cambridge, West Peabody and Wakefield.

Tomorrow morning the group expects to head west on the next lap of their 30-day tour. The Russians were invited to the United States by the National Association of Home Builders under the auspices of the State Department.

Plans Made for 7 Russians to Visit U.S. Newspapers. WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (UP)—Plans shaped up today for the visit of seven top Soviet journalists to seven American cities.

The Russians will visit newspapers, other information outlets, and get a view of American life in general, officials said.

The State Department is coordinating the efforts of private committees in the seven cities who will make final arrangements for the tour. The Russians will visit New York, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Phoenix, and Washington. They are to arrive in New York about Oct. 17 on the French liner Ile de France.

The visit is the third official Soviet trip to the United States in recent weeks. Agricultural officials led off, and a Russian housing delegation currently is in the United States.

COMPULSION NEEDED TO GET RESERVE, LEGION HEAD SAYS

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP)—A new law passed by Congress to build a strong armed forces reserve is apparently not attracting a sufficient number of men, the national commander of the American Legion said yesterday.

Seaborn P. Collins, Las Cruces, N.M., said that a report indicated only 1038 men had volunteered since Congress enacted the reserve forces act in July.

"This obviously isn't enough," he said. The Legion supported the bill, he said, but would like to see more compulsory features written into the law.

WORLD TRAFFIC CONGRESS URGES DRIVER TRAINING

ROME, Oct. 6 (AP)—Highway and traffic experts from over the world urged yesterday that all would-be drivers take comprehensive training courses before they get behind the wheel.

Delegates at the closing session of the International Road Federation were told that each year more than 36,000 are killed and more than 1,000,000 injured on American highways alone.

The resolution adopted by the roads congress declared "it is well established that persons who have had training in the operation of motor vehicles are safer drivers than others who are poorly trained."

BUTLER RATES NIXON 'EASIEST' IN G.O.P. TO BEAT

Democratic Chairman
Predicts South Will Return Solidly to Party in 1956.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 6 (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon "is the easiest Republican to beat" for the presidency but the Democrats will win next year from anybody, says Chairman Paul Butler of the Democratic National Committee.

Butler, in Birmingham for a Jefferson-Jackson day dinner, discussed 1956 presidential possibilities at a press conference. His talk at the party rally was concerned mainly with a plea for Democratic unity and with an endorsement of Senator Lister Hill for renomination and re-election next year. The Hill endorsement drew heavy applause from the dinner throng estimated at 1500 by party leaders.

Butler said Nixon would be his choice as "the Republican candidate for President easiest for the Democrats to beat."

Butler made no direct reference to the dinner to the effort of E. D. Nixon, a Montgomery Negro, to buy a ticket for the meeting, but he did say he did not know why anyone would think he (Butler) would not come to Birmingham. He is on a tour of the South.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan decided not to come to Birmingham for the dinner after Nixon failed to get a ticket. Birmingham's segregation laws prohibit Negroes and white persons from dining together in public places.

Butler predicted that the Solid South, broken in 1948 and 1952 elections, would return solidly to Democratic ranks as a part of a Democratic sweep next year.

Butler said the illness of President Eisenhower had brought more appeals for re-admission into the Democratic party than at any time in 100 years.

Of the southern Democrats who supported Mr. Eisenhower in 1952, Butler said they would be welcomed back: "There are no membership requirements, and you don't have to be a millionaire. Everybody is entitled to one mistake."

He predicted also that "there will be no Democrats walking out of the 1956 convention," an obvious reference to the action of the entire Mississippi and half the Alabama delegation in the 1948 convention at Philadelphia. They left the convention in protest against the civil rights plank in the party platform.

Both states, together with South Carolina and Louisiana, gave their 1948 electoral votes for President to the States Rights ticket.

Carlson Says Eisenhower Could Win With 'Harding Campaign.' WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—Senator Frank Carlson (Rep.), Kansas, said yesterday that if President Eisenhower decides to run for re-election he "could make a Harding campaign on the front porch and win."

Carlson made the remark to reporters after a 30-minute conference with Vice President Nixon on farm problems.

Asked if he thought Mr. Eisenhower should run, Carlson said that decision is up to the President. Then he made the prediction of success with a Harding-type campaign.

The late Warren G. Harding was elected President in 1920 after a campaign in which he refused to make the usual country-wide stump tour and delivered his speeches from the front porch of his Marion (O.) home.

Carlson said he considered it "most indiscreet" at this time to discuss other candidates in the event the President, convalescing from a heart attack, decides not to seek another term.

Carlson said that in his conference with Nixon the Vice President displayed "a vital interest in the farm situation."

It was Nixon's second discussion of that politically sensitive subject with a midwestern G.O.P. legislator this week. Representative Arends of Illinois, assistant House Republican leader, talked over the farm situation in his state with the Vice President yesterday.

Hall Quotes Eisenhower on G.O.P. Victory in 1956.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall quoted President Eisenhower last night as expressing confidence shortly before his heart attack that the Republicans will win next year's presidential election.

Hall, who addressed a party dinner, said Mr. Eisenhower expressed his cheerful views about the 1956 election a little more than two weeks ago as Hall was leaving Denver following the President's conference there with G.O.P. state chairmen.

The national chairman said Mr. Eisenhower bade him goodbye with, "Len, be optimistic and keep smiling."

"And that, to me, is the spirit of the Republican party," Hall told the dinner group.

Hall added: "The Eisenhower philosophy, the Eisenhower program, the Republican philosophy, the Republican program, were synonymous in 1952, are synonymous this year and will be synonymous in 1956. And that's what's going to bring victory to the Republican party in '56."

The TRUMAN MEMOIRS

Senator Truman Defies Utilities Lobby, Backs Roosevelt Supreme Court Reform Plan, Helps Write Transportation Act.

By HARRY S. TRUMAN
Thirty-third President of the United States.

I T was a great day for me on January 3, 1935, when I entered the chamber of the United States Senate to take my seat for the first time. Although I was nearly fifty-one years old at the time, I was as timid as a country boy arriving on the campus of a great university for his first year.

Before I had left Kansas City for Washington, I had read the biographies of every member of the Senate and had studied every piece of information I could find on our chief law-making body. I was to learn later that the estimates of the various members which I formed in advance were not always accurate. I soon found that, among my ninety-five colleagues, the real business of the Senate was carried on by unassuming and conscientious men, not by those who managed to get the most publicity.

When I first moved my family to Washington, I rented a furnished apartment at Tilden Gardens, 3016 Tilden Street. In the years that followed we occupied several different apartments at the same address, and one in Sedgwick Gardens on Connecticut Avenue. Later, we moved to a new apartment building called the Warwick on Cathedral Avenue, and from there to 4701 Connecticut Avenue where we stayed until we moved to Blair House.

My ten years in the Senate had now begun—years which were to be filled with hard work, but which were also to be the happiest ten years of my life.

Cordially Received by Some, Not by Others.

I will always remember the cordial reception which Burton K. Wheeler, J. Hamilton Lewis, and Carl Hayden gave me at the beginning of my experience in the Senate. They did not have the attitude of some of the liberals in that august body—like George Norris of Nebraska, for example, and Bronson Cutting of New Mexico—who looked upon me as a sort of hick politician who did not know what he was supposed to do. This attitude did not bother me, however. I knew it would change in time.

Ham Lewis, on the other hand, came over and sat down by me during one of the first sessions. He was from Illinois and was the "Whip" in the Senate at that time.

"Don't start out," he told me, "with an inferiority complex. For the first six months you'll wonder how you got here, and after that you'll wonder how the rest of us got here."

Carl Hayden, of Arizona, was extremely helpful to me in matters of Senate procedure. More than most of the men I was to know in Washington, Hayden knew how to get the necessary action on any job that needed to be done. In every contact I had with him, I came to respect him as one of the hardest working and ablest men in the Senate.

Burton Wheeler was chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, and he welcomed me when I later asked him if it would be permissible for me to sit with him when the committee began holding its railroad finance hearings. As a result of this, I eventually became a member of one of the sub-committees and finally vice chairman.

McNary, Borah and Vandenberg.

I was closely associated also with some Republican Senators, and Charles McNary of Oregon was one of whom I became very fond. He and I used to discuss at great length the matters that were pending in the Appropriations Committee. I became well acquainted with William Borah of Idaho, as well. He was very able in committee and thoroughly understood legal language. He could analyze a bill as well as any man in the Senate.

Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, was another Republican for whom I soon came to have the greatest respect, and I believe it was mutual. One time I happened to enter the chamber when a heated argument was going on. Vandenberg saw me come in and called on me to speak. I happened to have the information that was needed to settle the argument completely.

"When the Senator from Missouri makes a statement like that," Vandenberg said when I had finished, "we can take it for the truth."

That was a remark I never forgot.

I have named a few, but it would not be possible for me to single out all the members of the Senate whose acquaintance I cherished. Among them were some of the finest men I have ever known. The percentage of "no goods" was small. I recall only two Senators with whom I would rather not associate and whose word I did not trust.

It was fascinating to study these men and to observe their public performances. One of the most sensational performers of that time, of course, was Huey Long of Louisiana. I was in the chair the last time Senator Long spoke. All the Senators left the chamber, for that was the usual procedure whenever Long took the floor, and afterward, I walked across the street with him.

"What did you think of my speech?" he asked.

"I had to listen to you," I told him, "because I was in the chair and couldn't walk out." He never spoke to me after that.

It was customary for Long to attack some connection of a Senator. He once attacked Pendergast, long before Pendergast ever got into trouble. Then he came around to me afterward and said he didn't mean anything personal—it was just for the effect in Louisiana.

Lot of Fun—and Work—Being Senator.

There was a lot of fun to be had in the Senate, but there was more work to do than ninety-six men could ever keep up with. I was not a good attendant at social affairs in Washington. I usually got to my office at seven o'clock in the morning and got home for dinner at 7:00 P.M. Out of the entire enrollment of the Senate, when I was there, there were thirty or forty who worked like Trojans; there were fifteen or twenty who worked pretty well, and the rest did comparatively little.

Ever since my experience as a member of that body, I have wanted to write a monograph on "The Working Senator" and his contributions in the public interest. Most of the Senators who really apply themselves never get much attention in the headlines. They have a hard grind and have no time to make personal attacks on other Senators or people outside the Senate. On that account they do not always make good news copy.

It was my good fortune to be made a member of two of the Senate's most important committees, each of which was in a field of legislation of particular interest to me. One was the Appropriations Committee, and the other was the Interstate Commerce Committee.

A minor committee to which I was temporarily assigned was the District of Columbia Committee. I soon got off, however, for I did not wish to become a part of local Washington politics. I was of the opinion, and still am, that the District should have self-government. It should be made a territorial government, or incorporated like any other city, perhaps under a city-manager form of government.

Pressure by Public Utilities Lobby.

During the first few months of the first session of the 74th Congress, a fierce battle was raging in Washington over the Wheeler-Rayburn bill, sponsored jointly by the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee in the Senate and Sam Rayburn, chairman of the corresponding committee in the House. This was the bill that later became the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, and its purpose was to destroy the cartels through which the power trusts were able to juggle securities involving the welfare of millions of people without any control by either the public or the government.

Naturally the public utilities organized a giant lobby, with unlimited financial backing, to fight this legislation. Wendell Willkie, president of Commonwealth Southern's public utility empire, was one of the leaders of the opposition. The lobby maintained expensive headquarters in the Mayflower Hotel, from which they proceeded to bring pressure on Senators and Representatives. Stockholders all across the country, as well as newspapers and various pressure groups, were used to the fullest extent to try to influence members of Congress.

As a member of the Interstate Commerce Committee which was sponsoring the bill, I found myself a target of the opposition within three months of the time I had taken my seat in the Senate. Representatives of the public utilities lobby came to see me and asked me to vote against the bill. I told them that I was personally opposed to the monopolistic practices which were squeezing the consumer to death and that I would vote in favor of the bill.

Next, the lobby sent people out to Missouri to get the Democratic organization there to exert pressure on me. That failed also. And finally, a propaganda campaign financed by the utility magnates was launched in the State of Missouri among my constituents, many of whom held securities. I was swamped with letters and telegrams urging me to vote against the bill. I did not let these messages alter my own convictions because I knew that the "Wrecking Crew" of Wall Street was at work behind the scenes and that it was responsible for the 30,000 requests which eventually piled up on my desk. I burned them all, and an investigation of this uncalculated propaganda barrage, which was aimed at many besides myself, was later undertaken by Senators Hugo Black, Sherman Minton and Lew Schwelbensch.

Willkie and Dulles Against the Bill.

The hearings on the bill were the most remarkable that I ever had anything to do with. Included among the financiers who came down to Washington to testify—in addition to Willkie—were John W. Davis, John Foster Dulles, the Whiteys of the New York Stock Exchange, Hopson, and numerous other Wall Street glamor personalities.

As the time for a vote on the hotly disputed bill drew closer, the pressure increased. The only metropolitan newspaper in Missouri that had never been politically unfriendly toward me—the Kansas City Journal-Post—was opposed to the legislation which I was supporting. On June 11, when the roll was called for the yeas and nays, fifty-six Senators voted for the bill and thirty-two voted against it. Unfortunately, I was detained on important business elsewhere and did not get to vote, although I had made advance arrangements to do so in case the margin in its favor gave evidence of being slender. Nevertheless, after the bill was passed, a two-column editorial on page one of the Kansas City Journal-Post continued on Page 4, Column 1.

Russia Sings
Siren Song
To Canadians

Holds Out Lure of Trade if Dominion
Loosens Ties With U.S.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Foreign News Analyst.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.
TORRENT of Russian advice greeted Canada's Foreign Secretary, Lester B. Pearson, on his arrival yesterday in Moscow. The solicitous words of Pravda and Izvestia brought into focus the aims of the many-pronged Soviet diplomatic offensive.

Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, advised Pearson that Canada should break out of her "deficit trade" with the United States and start taking advantage of the markets offered by the U.S.S.R., Red China and the rest of the Communist bloc.

Pravda told the visitor Canada was really a neighbor of the Soviet Union and should start thinking about cutting down arms expenses and ending the cold war against Moscow.

The Moscow press casually admitted that the Kremlin regards the arrival of Pearson at this moment as most fortunate in view of the "new marked improvement" in East-West relations. It then told Canada that it could sell surplus wheat to Communist countries and that it has an unfavorable trade balance with the United States.

The Canadian visitor is not the first to undergo this sort of treatment in Moscow since the smile offensive began. The Communists have decided it is high time for them to take advantage of the basic weaknesses of capitalism on the economic front to win more victories on the political front.

Canadians have been treated to a taste of what the new look might amount to. The Canadian Government this summer executed a couple of deals with European Communist countries to take shipments of Canada's surplus butter and wheat. Canadian business has been given to understand that this was only the beginning—that an almost limitless market awaits them.

But now, with the visit of the Foreign Secretary, the implication is that it is all up to the Canadian Government and the course of its future policy. Trade requires normalization of relations with the Communist bloc—including Red China—and normalization requires an end to the cold war. To end the cold war, Canada is given to understand, it must break

DRUMMOND
U.S. Has Given Russia Initiative
In Disarmament Propaganda

Stress on Eisenhower Plan Puts America in Position of Advocating Inspection
Only, No Cut in Forces.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON.

THE AMERICAN position on disarmament is proving itself exposed to effective Soviet criticism—and Moscow is taking full advantage. There is a serious hole in the line of argument which United States Delegate Harold Stassen has been making at the United Nations disarmament conference. It didn't take the Kremlin long to see it could drive a truck through the hole.

The Russians' record for blocking disarmament is longer than their record for promoting it. But right now, at on central point, they are making a good deal of sense in focusing their argument on the current American stand which, in effect, is: "Let's inspect without any disarmament at all." It gives the Soviets a propaganda initiative which Moscow is using to advantage.

Reds Shift Positions.

Here is the spot we have gotten ourselves into:

1. The United States has long taken the position that any agreement on disarmament must (a) be universal, taking in all the principal powers, (b) embrace conventional—that is, nonatomic—weapons and forces as well as nuclear weapons and (c) come into effect step by step.

2. For a long time the Soviet Union resisted what we deemed the essential ingredient of inspection and never assented to a plan which involved reduction of conventional military manpower. Then on May 10 of this year, at the U.N. disarmament commission meetings in London, the Soviet Union advanced concrete and detailed proposals for a world-wide reduction of conventional military forces on a percentage basis similar to what the United States, Britain and France had been advocating. At the same time the Soviets came nearer—though still some distance from—United States views on inspection.

3. Whereupon, when the U.N. commission reconvened in New York at the direction of the summit conference, the United States formally announced it was putting a reservation on virtually all past proposals it had made and began to center its discussion exclusively on inspection, particularly on President Eisenhower's plan for exchange of military blueprints with Russia and mutual air reconnaissance.

This left the Soviet Union advocating far-reaching reduction in armaments and some inspection. This left the United States advocating far-reaching inspection and no reduction of armaments.

Awkward Position.

It seems to me that the U.S. has thus maneuvered itself into an awkward, substantially untenable position.

It is a position which enables the Moscow radio to say that America is proposing "to divide international control and the arms drive into two parallel lines which would never meet."

It is a position which enables Pravda to say that "an inspection and control plan without actual disarmament would mean a blow to the nations which favor control, not for the sake of control but for the sake of reducing armaments."

It is a position which enables the Kremlin to proclaim that the United States is trying to substitute inspection for disarmament.

Assuming both sides want to reach an agreement, these conflicting positions can be constructively reconciled if these premises can be accepted:

That any far-reaching disarmament is unwise until inspection has proved its workability in practice.

That some disarmament need not be ruled out during the testing period of inspection. (Copyright, 1955, The New York Herald-Tribune, Inc.)

DIRKSEN RIPS KEFAUVER

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6 (AP)—Senator Dirksen (Rep., Illinois), last night ridiculed the Moscow jaunt of Senator Kefauver (Dem.), as a trip "to show off his coonskin cap and help internationalize our Davy Crockett."

Dirksen told 1500 party workers that the journey was at Government expense. He said the Democrats will try to omit Kefauver's mission to Moscow in their 1956 campaign oratory.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

As to 'Character Fitness'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It is, I suppose, a matter of general knowledge that good moral character is a prerequisite for admission to the practice of law.

In most states, including Missouri, character fitness is determined at the time the bar examination is taken.

In some states, however, a character examination is compulsory at the time applicants for bar admission enroll for their legal studies, as well as at the time of the bar examination.

In your editorial of Oct. 2 you criticized "approval in principle" of the latter plan by the Committee on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar of the Missouri Bar.

Admittedly, the determination of good moral character often presents formidable problems, especially where young men and women in their formative years are concerned, but it is also clear that there are some cases in which character unfitness is obvious.

In any event, these problems are present, except perhaps in some slight difference of degree, whether character fitness is determined at the conclusion of the educational process, or at both the beginning and end of that process.

There are many legislators, educators and lawyers who prefer the latter plan of warning persons of unfit character before they have embarked on a long and costly legal education.

While this point of view is one on which there may be differences of opinion, the committee approved it after serious consideration. The committee members among its members a present member of the local federal bench and the deans of the University of Missouri Law School, the University of Kansas City Law School, the St. Louis University Law School, and the School of Law of Washington University.

It is to be regretted that the Post-Dispatch should interpret the sincere efforts of such a committee as a dishonest scheme to limit the number of practicing lawyers.

THOMAS F. McDONALD.

'Rough Them Up a Bit'

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It is inconceivable that a Circuit Judge could make a statement to the legislative committee investigating the Police Department that "good policemen might induce crime in our youth of 17 to 19 years of age if they could get out and rough them up a bit!" What a statement to come from the bench of justice!

Our Police Board is to be commended for its stand against such a disgraceful approach to law enforcement.

ALLEN F. STEELE.

No Place to Vote

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

On Tuesday I was directed from one to another to finally a third St. Louis county polling place before I was able to cast my ballot. Instead of creating all this confusion, why doesn't the County Election Commission put the voting booths on top of greased poles and make the struggle really an endurance contest?

DISGUSTED VOTER.

No Churchill He

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It has been brought forcibly to my attention that one Sam Lewis is delving to homes in the Third Ward of Bellefontaine Neighbors a mimeographed sheet urging voters to support him for Alderman. His principal appeal according to this literature, is that he is opposed to the "Old Schumacher Administration."

The "Old Schumacher Administration" may be down to the gutter, but good for one more kick if it will help Sam Lewis get in as Alderman. A la Mark Twain, I'd like Mr. Lewis to know that rumors of my tremendous political power are greatly exaggerated. I was the one who got beat—remember?

In recent years Churchill, a modern Cassandra, was recalled from an earlier political defeat to lead England through its war-torn years.

Now with me, its different. I'm just plain Doc Schumacher, and no Cassandra or Churchill. I don't pretend to the gift of prophecy, and no crystal ball shows a grateful Bellefontaine Neighbors carrying belated laurel wreaths to my door.

I'm not a-tchin' and a-frettin' as Churchill did. Since the election I've just been a-sittin' and a-rockin' and a-watchin' the mud a-flyin' and I've been a-laffin' while somebody else gets it in the face.

"I've got to hand it to Mr. Lewis, though. He's brief. He doesn't waste words telling the folks who he is, or what he's done, or what he stands for, or what he promises to do. He's telling the world he's against me, and that ought to be enough for anybody," by George.

Even the "Old Schumacher Administration," had as Mr. Lewis says it was, never attempted anything like that. We were at least for something, and Mr. Lewis could be for virtue if he can't think of anything else. CHARLES H. SCHUMACHER.

Why Not in Winter, Too?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

When your working time and travel to and from consume 11 hours a day, daylight saving time isn't bad! Leaving home at 7 a.m., returning at 6 p.m. makes those extra hours of daylight valuable. The thing I never could understand is why change in the summer and not the winter?

The Great Railroad Debate

Should the railroads be freed of some of the existing federal regulation, to let them undersell competing forms of transportation when they can?

This question is being raised with more vigor than in many a year. Its answer will affect the pocketbook of every consumer of transported goods and the futures of whole industries, including the millions of jobs they represent.

In July of last year President Eisenhower created a Cabinet Committee on Transportation Policy and Organization, headed by Secretary of Commerce Weeks. That committee's report was made public last April.

These recommendations were considered in preliminary hearings by a House Commerce subcommittee last month, and are expected to become the basis of one of the great national debates in Congress when that body reconvenes.

One of the most significant innovations proposed by the committee would "suspend the requirement that prior approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission must be obtained before a railroad can establish a rate charging less for longer than for shorter distances over the same line in the same direction."

This would reopen the way to the abuses on the part of railroads which fired the Populist and Granger movements of the last century of the last century. Western farmers and tradesmen saw railroads placing their localities at a burdensome disadvantage by charging more to haul freight there than to the distant seaboard where there was competition.

The ICC already offers the railroads relief from the long-and-short-haul clause, as it is called, whenever necessary to meet (but not quash) competition. Is more than that desirable? Do we want to go back to wildly discriminatory rates which meant life for one section of the country and death for another?

Another major innovation proposed by the cabinet committee would limit to three months the time during which the ICC can suspend a new rate. At present such suspensions may be continued indefinitely. No doubt the railroads have a good case when they say that the competitive value of a new rate has often been dissipated by the time long suspensions are over and it finally becomes effective.

But if the ICC were compelled by an arbitrary time limit to end its suspension regardless of whether or not it were through considering the arguments for and against the proposed new rate, its regulation would become perfunctory. Expedient handling of requests for new rates is unquestionably desirable. But would not the better way be to augment the ICC staff so that it could do its work faster?

The cabinet committee has based its general case for reduced regulation on what seems a fallacy. It says regulation was necessary when the railroads were a monopoly but now the railroads have ceased to be a monopoly.

The case for regulation, however, rests on a broader base than that. Rate discrimination—which in effect is what the railroads are asking permission to practice—historically has been used, not just to meet competition, but to destroy it. Regulation is needed to prevent that from happening, whether the competition be between railroads and other forms of transportation, or between railroads and other railroads.

The continuing need for regulation of the railroads is succinctly stated in these words from "Railroad Regulation," by Leo Sharfman: "Railroad discrimination, like rate-cutting, springs primarily from the very nature of the railway business." And the nature of the transportation business so intimately affects the whole public welfare that its regulation cannot be disregarded or skimmed except at heavy public cost.

For Swift Criminal Justice

Some five months have elapsed since the St. Louis Circuit Judges finally decided to see what could be done about adding another trial court to the three currently handling criminal cases. They hoped the city would fix up an unused courtroom on the first floor of the Municipal Courts building. But nothing has been done.

Now the judges have formed a committee to meet personally with Mayor Tucker. If the Mayor would direct a sharp word or two to his buildings operation supervisor, perhaps the judges would get the extra courtroom that is so necessary to speeding up criminal justice. The criminal dockets are so overcrowded now that defendants who are unable to make bond must sit for months in City Jail before they can be brought to trial. This is disgraceful.

Loss of Face in Argentina

Anti-United States feeling is evident enough in Argentina to justify a review of American diplomacy there in the days of the deposed dictator, Juan Peron.

Some of the Argentine suspicion represents the traditional fear of the Colossus of the North. Buenos Aires even heard rumors during the recent revolt that Yankee warships were standing off the mouth of the Plata, and similar nonsense.

But the basic charge raised by anti-Peronists is that the United States was too friendly with the dictator, and is in general too friendly with most Latin-American dictators.

The fact is that we have done an about-face in 10 years in diplomatic attitudes. Former Ambassador Spruille Braden was so openly critical of Peron that he antagonized many Argentines. In 1952 Ambassador Albert F. Nufer, a career diplomat, set out to change all that and he succeeded. In fact, the Peronist press expressed unusual regrets when Mr. Nufer was about to be transferred in 1953, and Washington then agreed to leave him in his post.

For specific examples of North American friendship with the dictator, Argentine critics cite two big loans in 1950 and this year, and a contract with Standard Oil of California, to exploit Argentine oil lands.

This contract left Standard free of most Argentine controls and taxes, except for a 50-50 division of annual net profits with the government. By this contract Peron deserted his previous nationalism, but the contract aroused such bitter public antagonism that its fate is doubtful.

As Business Week said just a few days before Peron was overthrown: "Peron is continuing to play ball with the United States. Important business interests are at stake." Can the Argentine people then doubt that the United States was playing ball with Peron?

The State Department can say that our policy is one of non-intervention. But doing business with a dictator inevitably will look like intervention to the people who overthrow him.

Washington granted exceptionally prompt recognition to the new provisional government of Argentina. This should help overcome Argentine suspicion of our motives. And future relations can profit from the failure of a past policy which ranged from hostility to expediency. Sound diplomacy recognizes that dictators come and go.

A Convention Reaffirmed

Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall has reaffirmed in the strongest possible terms the party's intention to hold next year's convention in San Francisco starting on Aug. 20. He spoke so strongly, indeed, that switching either the time or place hereafter would be most difficult to explain.

Mr. Hall has the most difficult of assignments these days, and it is no wonder that he gives the harassed appearance, according to a Washington correspondent, "of a man greatly overworked." His job is to maintain the public position that nothing in the Republican picture has changed, although he and everybody else knows that the picture has in fact changed profoundly.

The extent of the change is registered by the fact that Gov. Goodwin Knight of California has put forward his own list of candidate preferences in case President Eisenhower does not run—a list full of fascination because Vice President Nixon is not on it.

Senators Kuchel and Bricker cry "shame" and urge an end to speculation about candidates, on the ground that such talk is disrespectful to the President. But even though all Republicans were to seal their lips, nothing could be done about their private thoughts, and there is no doubt whatever that intellectual energy in those quarters is pulsing at a high voltage.

But though the Republican outlook is now charged with uncertainty, it does not follow that convention plans must also be changed. The major reason for scheduling both party conventions in August instead of July still holds good. This is the fact that radio, television and the airplane have made shorter campaigns not only possible but imperative. The chance that one or both of the conventions may present a hard-fought contest among rival candidates does not alter that basic fact in the least.

As for the element of place, San Francisco is commonly supposed to have been chosen by the Republicans as a pleasant site for an outing, which is what the party leaders were looking forward to so long as they could hope that the President would be their nominee. Yet the possibility that serious and strongly competitive work may have to be done is not in itself a strong reason for moving to another city.

So Mr. Hall's announcement of "no change" is sensible, even though it stems from the fact that there has been a good deal of change in some respects.

Mystery of the Bad Cylinder

An airplane engine is admittedly a complicated piece of machinery requiring the greatest of care, yet rarely is an airliner crash traced to failure in an engine. But evidence that was presented at the Civil Aeronautics Board hearing at Springfield, Mo., indicates strongly that the human equation and an engine defect combined to cause the airliner crash that killed 30 persons at Fort Leonard Wood last Aug. 4.

Weeks of meticulous investigation by CAB experts plus sharp questioning at the hearing show that a condemned cylinder was put in the engine that developed the disastrous fire. Maintenance supervisors for American Airlines were at a loss to explain how the defective cylinder got back into service. An overhaul superintendent did suggest that a "condemned" tag might not have been put on, the tag might have been lost or not noticed.

As a result of the detailed checking into the condemning and the reusing of the bad cylinder, American Airlines now has any defective cylinder mutilated at the moment of discovery, thus preventing any similar occurrence. More pertinent facts undoubtedly will be revealed as the CAB follows up the hearing with further investigation. The facts thus far brought out serve as a warning against overconfidence. They show that anything less than 100 per cent perfect mechanical maintenance cannot be tolerated on the airlines.

A Postcard Would Do It

The widespread confusion attending Tuesday's election in St. Louis county ought to be a matter of much concern to the County Election Board.

Hundreds of voters are reported to have been turned away from their customary polling places with the explanation that their registrations had been shifted to other precincts. If the voter was unable to solve the mystery of where he was supposed to cast his ballot he was forced to forego the privilege.

The fault lay with the Election Board. Last spring it revised and consolidated precinct boundaries in six of the county's 14 townships in preparation for the use of voting machines. That was all to the good. But in the interim the Board failed to notify voters affected of the changes. This was inexcusable. The only thing that saved the Board from having a first-class fiasco on its hands was the fact that the turnout was extremely light.

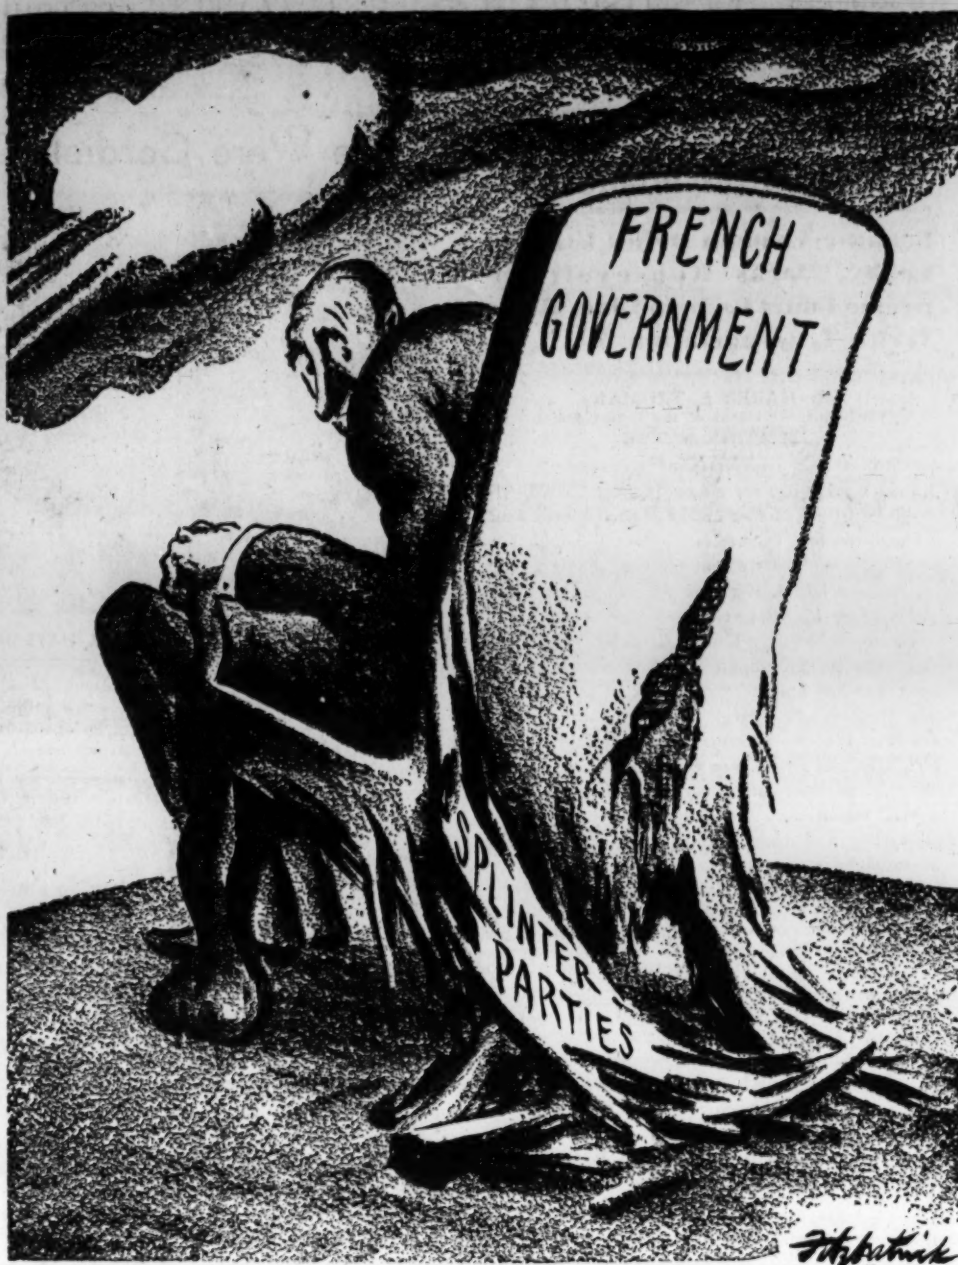

Between now and the Nov. 22 county bond election the Board ought to make sure that every voter whose registration has been transferred to a new precinct is informed as to exactly where he may cast a ballot. Likewise, as soon as the realignment of precincts in the remaining eight townships is completed, voters affected by the change should be notified in writing. A postcard would suffice.

Lady Luck Is Sometimes Jane

The winner of £70,000 in an English football pool confesses that he chose his teams by means of the letters that go to make up "Jane Austin" because his daughter happened to be reading "Pride and Prejudice." So we are informed by the eminent Manchester Guardian Weekly. A compatriot has even written a book about it, in which he reaches the sage conclusion that perhaps no better method could be devised. ("Pools and the Punter," by Hubert Phillips, published by Watts, 8s 6d.) This is written a new and (to one gentleman at least) valuable footnote to the caprices of Lady Luck.

On one occasion, at least, that much-sought-after but unpredictable female evidently was named Jane. On subsequent occasions she may have as many names as chance as there are women's whims. That the winner of the football pool was aided along by not knowing how to spell Jane Austin's last name seems inconceivable: he won. He need not be morose about being looked down on in some quarters for his ignorance in literary matters. Other quarters will look up to him more ardently still for his knowledge of winning £70,000.

Meanwhile, Lady Luck sashays on. If once her name were Jane, her name may next be Kathleen, for all we know. Norrus, that is.

ONE CRISIS AFTER ANOTHER

'Meet Me in St. Louis'

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Dispatch in British weekly surveys the city's reawakening, finds bond issue and redevelopment plans for plaza area impressive; credit given to Mayor Tucker's leadership, activity of Civic Progress, Inc., and 'Progress or Decay' campaign.

Missouri Correspondence in The Economist (London)

Is it possible for an American city to be both booming and gracious? There are those who consider the two qualities mutually exclusive. A choice must be made, they say, between the "go-getting" lively spirit that characterizes the fast-growing new cities of the frontier, and the atmosphere of settled culture, relaxed good living and faintly self-satisfied resistance to change that is to be found in the older community which has already carved out its niche.

Kansas City, for example, builds express roads, bridges and parking places in vigor and vim, while St. Louis, on the other hand, acknowledges the need for such improvements but is still debating how to make them. "Everything's up to date in Kansas City," said the song, and so it seems. Older, bigger, more charming, perhaps more sophisticated, St. Louis has looked at its brash western neighbor with mingled amusement and envy. Lately, however, St. Louis itself is trying to prove that urbanity and an aggressive civic spirit can, after all, be combined.

St. Louis Chooses Progress

Last May, the voters, by an overwhelming majority, approved a $110,000,000 bond issue to finance an impressive list of public improvements ranging from new traffic thoroughfares and wider streets to a planetarium, more libraries and an auditorium for the Art Museum.

This bond issue was voted just five years after the late Joseph Pulitzer's Post-Dispatch published a frank, even brutal, series of articles under the general title "Progress or Decay? St. Louis Must Choose."

The constructive campaign of a newspaper distinguished for its "crusading" made a deep impression upon the community, even though such exhortations to civic self-improvement are not infrequent in American urban life.

Though the city retains its place as the ninth largest metropolitan area in the country, it has not been keeping pace with the booming cities of the Southwest and Pacific coast.

Mindful of the historical tradition that St. Louis lost out to Chicago because it did not believe the railways were here to stay, and to Detroit because of a similar reluctance to accept the coming of the automobile, community leaders began to consider what was needed to make their city a more attractive place in which to live and work.

A Blighted Heart Is Remade

One of the first specific results of this awakening was the formation of the Urban Redevelopment Corporation by business firms, banks, newspapers and real estate owners in downtown St. Louis. They subscribed $2,000,000 of their money to assist in the physical reconstruction of slum areas immediately surrounding the central business district, the blighted heart which is found in many American cities today.

The corporation proposed to build a series of modern buildings containing flats for rental to people of medium income in this slum area. The city agreed to develop part of the district as a park, and finally last spring, after many legal and bureaucratic delays, the wrecking crews moved in and began clearing the site.

The "Plaza project," as it is called, will make a striking change in the face of the city. At one end of a square eight blocks long is the Union Station, a fine example of "nineteenth century American Gothic" which has even drawn the praise of Mr. Frank Lloyd Wright.

At the other end of the Plaza may be found what some St. Louisans think one of the ugliest structures anywhere. This is the Civil Courts building, a tall shaft surmounted by an Ionic temple topped by a pyramidical roof on which lie two aluminum griffins. This strange headpiece is said to be a replica of the tomb of Mausolus at Halicarnassus, but what is doing in St. Louis has never been explained.

Other buildings contribute to an architectural chaos which will be completed by the skyscraping apartment houses.

Non-Partisanship Leads the Way

If the Plaza project and other improvement financed by the bond issue prove to be the start of St. Louis's renaissance, much of the credit will go to its Mayor, Mr. Raymond Tucker, who has rallied long dormant civic energies. He is a Democrat, but plays a limited role in state and national politics and relies upon broad, non-partisan support to assert his leadership.

Equally important in the revival of St. Louis is an organization called Civic Progress, Inc., founded two years ago by 20 leading citizens and dedicated to mobilizing public opinion behind worthy enterprises such as the bond issue. Its chairman is Mr. August A. Busch Jr., the fabulous beer baron, who also owns the St. Louis Cardinals—not a college of church dignitaries but a well-beloved baseball team—and the roster of Civic Progress is the roster of the city's top business leaders.

The organization has no staff, no office and no agenda. It works informally and without publicity. Yet in two years its achievements have been impressive. It played a key role in persuading the state Legislature to give the city permanent authority to levy an earnings tax on all who work there; this makes it possible for St. Louis to derive some of its support from people who use its facilities but live in "dormitory" suburbs.

From Expressways to Music

Civic Progress also stimulated action toward the construction of three modern expressways to handle congested traffic, and it helped to put firmly on its feet the musically renowned but financially insecure St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Civic Progress has been so successful that it receives a constant stream of inquiries from other communities facing the same problems as St. Louis—problems of inadequate physical facilities for the automobile age; of an inadequate governmental structure for the new metropolitan community that has grown up around the old city; of decay at the center and new development on the unplanned periphery; of the demand for new public services set off against an inadequate tax system.

As the Post-Dispatch recently noted, all these queries ask the same question: "Is it true that St. Louis has a group of business leaders who are devoting to public affairs the same kind of thought and effort they put into their private affairs?" The answer, says the newspaper with pride, is "Yes."

Irwin Edman's Last Work

JOHN DEWEY. HIS CONTRIBUTION TO THE AMERICAN TRADITION, by Irwin Edman. (Bobbs-Merrill, 322 pp., $3.50.)

This fourth volume in the new "Makers of the American Tradition" series is doubly interesting: it is both the able presentation of a great philosopher and the final editorial task of Irwin Edman before his death. The illuminating introductory essay, therefore, is the last work we shall have from the graceful pen of Mr. Edman, who was the logical person to do this book. He was both student and colleague of John Dewey, and the result is sympathetic and discerning.

"The Makers of the American Tradition" series is neither biography nor anthology, but a judicious combination of the two. This volume is prefaced with a chronology, selected bibliography, and a 14-page essay of interpretation. Then follow almost 300 pages of text chosen from the corpus of Dewey's work. Making an intelligent and intelligible selection was a difficult task, for Dewey's ideas and impact on the twentieth century transcended his skill as a writer.

Yet Mr. Edman has selected wisely, and in presenting Dewey's most significant thoughts, puts his subject's best foot foremost. For this reason, the book is an excellent starting point for the study of John Dewey. There are generous selections from "Reconstructions in Philosophy," "Democracy and Education," "Freedom and Culture," plus four shorter selections from other works.

In recent years Dewey has been damned widely by those who oppose his philosophy or attribute to him some of the absurd excesses of so-called Progressive Education. Yet his pragmatism is in the American ideal, and his impact on American education has been a profound influence for the good. Excesses committed in his name stem from mis-readings and over-zealous application of his ideas by small-bore mentalities. Dewey brought into American life, as Edman points out, "a reviving approach to education as a function of society, learning as an experience in growth."

He thus helped transform the rigidities of the old-fashioned martinet type of school discipline and the tradition of learning by rote, and at the more advanced level he stimulated the growth of "general education." Dewey also was a true liberal, in the best nineteenth century sense of the term; for he thought the key to meaningful life was growth and regarded, as the enemy of life, blind resistance to change. To Dewey the reality was change, and his conception of the nature of thinking implied in its very terms the notion of a universe always in process.

Life Was a Little Shaky

THE CRUEL TOWER, by William B. Hartley. (Appleton, Century, Crofts, 309 pp., $3.50.)

Thrown out of a box car by other itinerants, Tom Kittredge, a muddled and neurotic veteran of the Korean war, is picked up by a crew of tramp stevedocks. Babe, girl friend of Stretch Clay, crew boss, nurses Tom back to health, after which he becomes an apprentice stevedock.

Mr. Hartley's account of the lives of the stevedocks both during and after working hours is robustly realistic. Naturally Tom Kittredge finds himself attracted to Stretch's girl friend Babe. Stretch also has a wife, Rosemary, in a nearby town and one of his employees, Casey, is having an affair with her.

Such happenings are all too common in any milieu and they make the narrative lifelike, but the author is trapped by formula. You might know Stretch chooses a moment when he and Tom are on shaky scaffolding to start a fight about Babe. WILL WHARTON.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Nixon Not Replacing the President

AFTER MR. SHERMAN ADAMS and Mr. Brown returned to Washington last week, a decision was taken about the delegation of the President's powers and duties. It was that the ceremonial functions, so far as they were necessary, would be performed by the Vice President but that the substantive powers of his office were to be exercised for the President by the White House officials.

This means among other things that the political prerogatives of the President—those particularly which flow from the patronage at his disposal and from his administrative decisions—are not to be delegated even temporarily to the Vice President. They are to be retained in the White House. The decision carries with it confirmation of a point which Mr. Roscoe Drummond has been making, namely that before his illness the President, though he thinks highly of Mr. Nixon as Vice President, had not made up his mind about a successor in case he decided not to run again in 1956.

No Clear Provision.

The firm action taken by Mr. Adams last week keeps the President uncommitted, even indirectly or by implication, to Mr. Nixon or to anyone else. There is to be no impression created that Mr. Nixon is the acting President and therefore the self-evident successor to President Eisenhower.

The Constitution, as we know, lacks a clear provision about how the President's functions are to be performed in case of partial disability.

In a case of total disability we know what the Constitution intends—that, as long as the disability lasts, the Vice President shall exercise the powers and duties but shall not hold the office of President.

Office Becomes Department.

In these circumstances Mr. Adams might well say that things have changed at the White House since Wilson's illness 35 years ago. The White House, that is to say, the office of President, has been transformed from a personal office into a department of government.

To this department there have already been delegated a great part of the President's functions—at least up to the final stages of decision. Mr. Adams can aver that as long as the President can perform his ultimate Constitutional function of giving formal assent to laws in his name, the White House department is at least as well qualified as the Vice President to act for the President. Mr. Adams has acted with admirable decision to fill the Constitutional vacuum. If he and his department now operate with reasonable candor, letting it be known who in fact is responsible for the important substantive decisions of policy, the authority they have assumed will not be challenged and they can rely upon the good will of the people.

Not Favored by Poll.

The problem of President Eisenhower's successor will now have to be faced by the Republican leaders. The problem arises from the fact that there is not as yet in sight an available Republican of national reputation who has the confidence and can command the support of the vast and heterogeneous collection of Eisenhower voters.

This problem was there just under the surface before the President fell ill. It has been there, in fact, ever since he began to express his doubts about a second term and almost as long as many words that he was uncertain about his health. Since then Mr. Nixon's ability to carry on for President Eisenhower has been the most critical question in American politics. The country was on notice from Mr. Eisenhower himself that if he ran again, the country might be voting for Mr. Nixon as President.

It followed also that if the President did not run again, the question was whether Mr. Nixon could win, or whether, as the Gallup Poll indicated, he would be split divide the Eisenhower voters.

The Right to Decide. Until the President's illness it was possible to ignore this problem, to concentrate on drafting Eisenhower and to forget everything else. That is no longer possible if, as we must assume, Eisenhower cannot be drafted.

The problem is now what position, if any, the President can take about the choice of his successor. The action of Mr. Adams last week in holding on firmly to the President's powers will have the effect of keeping open the President's right to decide whether or not he will favor any particular successor, and if so, whom.

That is a bridge that the President cannot and need not cross now. The only thing that needs to be said about it is that if the President decides to have an open race for the 1956 nomination, the decision should not be delayed too long. For it will take time for the available men, of whom there must be at least half a dozen, to prove themselves to the country.

MUSEUM TO OPEN EXHIBIT OF ITALIAN ART THURSDAY

An exhibit of contemporary Italian painting, sculpture and drawing will open next Thursday at City Art Museum and continue on display through Nov. 14. Included are works of Afro, Campigli, Cremona, Marini, Morandi and Sironi. Museum Director Charles Nagel said the exhibit was the largest and most comprehensive of its type ever seen in the United States. It was assembled from American museums, private collections and art galleries as well as from Italian galleries. Some works are loans from individual artists.

LEADS IN SALE OF TICKETS FOR SYMPHONY CONCERTS

Mrs. Landon Lodge, 10 Berkshire street, Richmond Heights, led in sales of season tickets for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra during the first week of the drive, it was announced today.

Mrs. Lodge sold 14 new subscriptions. Mrs. Hymen Shifrin, 23 Hillvale drive, Clayton, who sold nine tickets, placed second. The campaign, which is being conducted by the Women's Association of the Symphony Society, will continue through Oct. 15.

Reduced prices for season tickets result in a saving of 40 per cent compared with the cost of single admissions. The first concert will be given Oct. 22 and 23 in Kiel Auditorium Opera House.

ROBERT E. DAVIES DIES

Robert E. Davies, who retired in 1936 as auditor of Armour & Co.'s East St. Louis branch, died of a heart ailment yesterday at Christian Welfare Hospital. He was 85 years old and had lived in recent years with a son, Thomas E. Davies, at 3056 Regent place, East St. Louis.

Mr. Davies was born in New York. He entered the employ of Armour & Co. in Chicago in 1886 and moved to East St. Louis in 1904. Surviving are three other sons and three daughters. The funeral will be Saturday at 9 a.m. at Holy Angels Church, 3700 Caseyville avenue, East St. Louis, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

Martino to Visit Asia. ROME, Oct. 6 (UP)—Government sources said today Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino will visit Tokyo and Bangkok in November in the first Asian tour by an Italian cabinet minister since World War II.

CITES EXPANDING NEEDS OF CHURCH

Disciples of Christ Speaker Says 50,000 More Ministers Will Be Required by 1975.

Churches in the United States "must by 1975 train from 50,000 to 100,000 more ministers, and build new Sunday school facilities for 32,000,000 more children," the area assembly of the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church) was told today.

The speaker was Roland H. Sheafor of Indianapolis, Ind., secretary and treasurer of the Board of Church Extension of the denomination. He spoke at the morning session at Kiel Auditorium. The assembly opened last night and will close tomorrow night.

Pastors and lay persons from Missouri, Illinois and Wisconsin are attending the meeting. The Disciples have 300,000 members in the three states.

"To strengthen the work of Christ within our own land, we must continue to develop a strong ministry," Sheafor said. "We must establish new congregations. It is estimated that by 1957, if our growing population is to be in churches, it will be necessary to build and equip 105,000 more churches." Disciples of Christ have about 2 per cent of the total church members in America, Sheafor said.

Another speaker today was Miss Jessie M. Trout of Indianapolis, secretary of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the denomination's missionary society.

Presiding at the convention is the Rev. Dr. Gaines M. Cook of Indianapolis, executive secretary of the International Disciples Convention.

A survey of 2035 Disciples churches across the country "reveals that 22 per cent are now interracial in membership, and that 95 per cent say they would welcome members from any race," the assembly was told today. This report was made in a summary of the demonstration of the 10-year program of development distributed to delegates. The half-year point was reached this year in the long range program.

There has been a 40 per cent increase in the number of men training for the Disciples ministry in the last five years, the report stated.

Before his election, he was financial secretary of the AFL school custodians and matrons union. He was defeated for re-election in 1951. Mr. Nagel was a member of Moolah Shrine Temple.

Surviving are two sons, Owen W. Nagel of Affton and Kenneth I. Nagel. Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at Schumacher undertaking establishment, 3013 Meramec street, with burial in New St. Marcus Cemetery.

Edwin C. Brewer Opens Exhibit Of Paintings at Public Library

"Three Figures," a semi-abstract painting, being discussed by MISS BONNIE PANNELL, Central Public Library assistant, and EDWIN C. BREWER, who painted the picture, part of Brewer's one-man show at the library.

Comes of Long Line of Artists — Fresh Influences Noted in Work Based on Training in East.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Edwin C. Brewer, young University City artist whose several major awards include a $2500 fellowship for study in Mexico, has opened a one-man show of 27 oil and water color paintings in the Central Public Library art room. He came here two years ago after study with leading artists in New York and Massachusetts.

His pictures, which will remain on display through Oct. 31, represent trends differing from those in various Midwest universities and art schools that dominate most artists' production here.

Even his treatment of Mexico, a theme popular with many St. Louis artists, has a freshness that seems due to an individual and well-developed color sense. Examples range from the dynamic, golden-toned "Fiesta 1951," with sombrero outlines expressive of their wearers' intensity on a fireworks spectacle, to the more abstract "Three Figures 1955," where women's forms are resolved into simplified masses of color.

In "Bottles in Window" and "Still Life Study," ingenious scumbling, or softening of color edges, produces transparent and translucent effects usually associated with water color.

His water colors, however, are somewhat less impressive. In representational and semi-abstract work, such as "Rooftops" and "Robed Figures," he appears surer of himself at this time than in his pure abstractions, which sometimes seem to lack solid construction. With better results the artist is experimenting with monotypes, or single printings on paper from oil pigments applied to glass. His show as a whole is an interesting exposition of the status of an artist of promise who is not yet 30.

Now working at the art-related job of display man for a department store, Brewer comes of a long line of artists. Portraits of British royalty by his ancestor, Sir John Gordon, painter to the Court of St. James's, hang in public galleries in Washington and London.

COMPTON SAYS KETC POSITION IS STRONG

Makes Statement 'to Correct Impression' Station Is Weak.

St. Louis's educational television station KETC is opening its second year "in a position of strength," with finances stabilized and programs in hand that are of increasing quality, Arthur H. Compton, former chancellor of Washington University, said today.

Compton, who is chairman of the St. Louis Educational Television Commission, said the station looks forward "to another year of strong growth." He said the commission would publish a comprehensive report of its first year of operation in 10 days.

"In the meantime," he explained, "I am making this statement to correct an impression of weakness of the station that has resulted from recently published letters and articles."

Compton said last Friday the quality of KETC evening programs would be affected because money raised for its operation had fallen $55,000 short of the $300,000 budget set for the year ending next June 30. He said today total funds for the second year represent an increase over what was available for the first because of a $95,110 grant received from the Ford Foundation.

Compton said the number of hours of live broadcasting at night would be somewhat reduced from last year, reflecting an increased use of films. Programs produced elsewhere, and put on film are not necessarily of poorer quality than live programs originating here, he said.

Noting that he had recently returned to St. Louis after a seven-month absence in Europe and elsewhere, Compton said: "I am making this statement to correct an impression of weakness of the station that has resulted from recently published letters and articles."

VOICE INSTALLS MASTER CONTROL PANEL IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Voice of America shifts today to master control equipment which it believes to be the biggest and most flexible in the world.

The equipment, replacing temporary facilities, links Voice studios, mobile crews and other sources with shortwave transmitters on both coasts to handle more than 75 programs in 39 languages every 24 hours to all parts of the world.

From the central control panel here, the programs will be routed by various channels to the countries which are to receive them.

Theodore C. Striebert, director of the United States Information agency which runs the Voice, arranged to throw the switch this afternoon to complete the Voice's move from New York City to Washington, begun a year ago.

ARMY WIVES TOLD TEARS ARE WASTED ON COMMANDERS

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, Oct. 6 (AP)—Fifty thousand American military wives in Europe were advised today not to weep on the shoulders of their husbands' commanding officers.

Mrs. Lauris Norstad, herself the helpmate of a four-star Air Force general, says such tears "are wasted."

Lecturing here on service customs, Mrs. Norstad noted approvingly that an old rule forbidding a junior from speaking first to a senior had gone by the boards.

"But it should still be applied," she told an audience of wives, "on any occasion when you may feel urged to tell your husband's commanding officer how well he deserves a promotion, that he isn't understood or appreciated, or that he is the victim of bad breaks."

"A wife's tears shed on the shoulders of her husband's superior are tears wasted," Mrs. Norstad also urged wives not to appear in pincurls, even under a scarf, or wear shorts and slacks in public instead of dresses.

"Too many people mistake sloppiness for comfort," she said.

NEWSBOYS PRESENT TROPHY TO EX-NEWSBOY EISENHOWER

DENVER, Oct. 6 (UP)—Two representatives of 600,000 newspaper boys across the United States and Canada presented a special trophy yesterday to President Eisenhower, who once delivered papers himself.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty accepted the trophy from two Denver carriers in behalf of the ailing President.

Inscribed "Yesterday's Newspaper Boy—Today's Leader," the 30-inch tall trophy of Oregon myrtle wood and bronze was topped with a figure of a carrier boy and his stack of papers. Below the figure are the words, "Great Because He Is Good."

U.S.-RED EXCHANGE OF CLERGY URGED

Council of Churches Board Gives Approval to Proposal.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6 (AP)—A proposal for an exchange of visits by Russian and American clergymen has the backing today of the general board of the National Council of Churches.

The board approved the proposal last night at a session of the group's quarterly meeting. Also approved was a resolution asking the council to tell the State Department of its concern over the "blatant of the Greek minority in Turkey" and the damage to Greek Orthodox churches in rioting there last month.

The resolution on the Russian visit was passed with one abstention. Ralph M. Arkush of New York, representing the Russian Orthodox Church of North America, gave no reason for abstaining.

Dr. Eugene Carson Blake of Philadelphia, head of the board, said earlier he had discussed the proposed exchange of visits with the State Department which "raised no obstacle in principle."

He said he had been in touch with Russian Orthodox leaders in Russia, who not only favored a visit by American clergymen but wanted to send a delegation of their own to this country.

Council officials said it would probably be some time next year before arrangements for the exchange of visits could be completed.

Some 150 members of the 241-member board are on hand for the quarterly meeting, which ends today. The council is composed of lay and clerical leaders from 39 Protestant and eastern Orthodox churches with 35,800,000 members.

FRANK E. PULVER DIES; PIONEER IN CHEWING GUM

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP)—Frank Fortune Pulver, one of the pioneers of the chewing gum business, died yesterday. He was 84 years old.

He was 23 and working for the Elgin Watch Co. at Elgin, Ill., when he became interested in a friend's formula for making chewing gum. He bought the formula for $200, returned to Rochester to produce the product. In 1913, Wrigley Chewing Gum Co. bought the Pulver formula for a reported $1,000,000.

Mr. Pulver was three times mayor of St. Petersburg. He published the St. Petersburg Daily News for two years.

decided to "skin me alive" for the stand I had taken. I paid no attention to the incident, knowing that I would be the target for many more similar attacks by special interests if I continued to ignore their demands and did what I knew to be right for the majority of the people. I never considered any other course.

In 1937 I supported President Roosevelt's Supreme Court reform proposal. Roosevelt grew impatient with the blocking of the New Deal program by the Court's interpretation of the Constitution. He felt that the Court was predominantly conservative because of the advanced age of a number of the Justices who would not retire. He therefore proposed to add a Justice for each member of the Court over 70 who did not elect retirement. I knew from my study of history that there was nothing sacrosanct about the number nine, that the membership of the Supreme Court had fluctuated during our history from five to ten. President Lincoln wanted to enlarge the Supreme Court to eleven. I saw no reason why the number of Justices could not be increased so that the nation would have, within Constitutional bounds, a more forward-looking approach to changing times and conditions.

Wheeler-Truman Transportation Act of 1940.

In 1939 I introduced the Wheeler-Truman bill, proposing changes in the Interstate Commerce laws regulating the financing of the railroads. This became the Transportation Act of 1940. I had worked on the problem since February 4, 1935—a problem which occupied more of my attention during my first term in the Senate than any other undertaking. On that date, Burton K. Wheeler, as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, had introduced in the Senate a resolution calling for an inquiry into the financial difficulties which were crippling the major railroad systems of the country. The basis of the resolution was the need for public knowledge concerning the management and disposition of billions of dollars invested by individuals and by the government in the rail carriers, and for adequate protective legislation based upon such knowledge. With the railroad industry in a state of near collapse following the early years of the depression, Wheeler's resolution called for government investigation into the causes of this condition, in order that remedial legislation could be enacted to rehabilitate this vital segment of the national economy.

As soon as the Senate authorized the Interstate Commerce Committee to proceed with the inquiry, within a stipulated budget of $10,000, Wheeler named a subcommittee to do the work. He selected Alben Barkley of Kentucky, Vic Donahey of Ohio, Wallace White of Maine, and Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota. Wheeler was the chairman of the subcommittee. Max Lowenthal and Sidney J. Kaplan were named as counsel and assistant counsel to the subcommittee. I was not a member to begin with, but I asked Wheeler if I could attend the meetings. He said he would be delighted to have me, and when some of the members lost interest, he put me on the subcommittee.

Although the ultimate result of all this work was to be the Transportation Act of 1940, it was impossible to visualize it in its eventual form when I first started on the undertaking in 1935. Neither could I foresee that this was to be a law which I would invoke as President of the United States to avert a nation-wide rail crisis in 1947.

In addition to voicing my vote on practically all the business that came before the Senate during my first term, I introduced many bills and resolutions. I offered amendments to numerous proposals. Now and then I presented committee reports. I made a few speeches and remarks concerning pending legislation, and submitted for publication in the Congressional Record pertinent information with respect to the work of committees on which I served. All of these activities, of course, are permanently recorded in the Record, although I never paid much attention to getting space in its pages.

TOMORROW: Mr. Truman tells of his campaign for renomination for another term in the Senate and his re-election.

AIRLINE SUBSIDIES TO BE CUT 13 PCT.

Payments for Hauling Mail Also to Be Lowered Gradually.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board announced today that airlines will get 13 per cent less subsidy this fiscal year and next than was received in the year-ended June 30, and 33 per cent less than in the previous year.

Chairman Ross Ritzley told a press conference that the rates of payment for hauling mail also are being cut gradually, but that the increase in airmail usage will make the total payments to the airlines slightly higher than a year ago.

Ritzley estimated that the subsidy will be $48,500,000 this year and next. This is $4,000,000 less than Congress appropriated for the purpose.

Of the total, $29,000,000 will go to smaller domestic airlines serving small cities. Most of the rest will go to international and territorial carriers whose routes are maintained as a matter of defense strategy.

Only two of the 13 domestic trunk airlines, Colonial and Northeast, now receive subsidies, amounting to $2,190,000 annually. Thirteen local carriers receive $24,000,000, Ritzley said, a slight increase from last year because of service on new routes and stops at additional cities.

The CAB chairman said that the rate of payment for carrying airmail is scheduled to drop from 50.83 cents per ton mile in 1954 to 41.46 cents in 1957. CAB officials said that airmail is showing a net profit.

NEW YORKER IS SOUGHT IN $190,000 SHORTAGES

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—Robert Morman, already sought in an investigation of a shortage of $130,000 from one company, was accused in federal court yesterday of absconding with $80,000 from another firm.

The new accusation was made by four creditors of the New York Investors Mutual Group, Inc., a real estate firm, of which Morman is executive vice president. Tuesday, District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said Morman was being sought for questioning about disappearance of $130,000 from the Lawyers Mortgage and Title Co., of which Morman is vice president and director.

LATE-SLEEPING MILKERS BLAMED FOR CREAM DECLINE

BIRMINGHAM, England, Oct. 6 (UP)—City analyst H. H. Bagnall today blamed late-sleeping farmers for the falling butterfat content in Birmingham's milk supply. "It is no longer possible to pressure farmers to commence morning milking at 4:30 or 5 a.m.," he said, "the unbalanced hours of milking are causing deficiencies in morning milk."

BRITAIN SHORT OF OFFICE BOYS; LONDON NEEDS 20,000

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP)—Boys in Britain are short of office boys and girls. An employment agency estimates London could use 20,000 more of them. Twenty years ago a London office boy got 12 shillings a week (worth then $2.40). Today the average is $18.20. A low birth rate immediately before the war and up to 1950 means that 200,000 fewer boys and girls reach the age of 18 this year than did so in 1939. Also in 1947 the Government made 15 the age when a young person could leave school and take a job. Before that the minimum was 14. This has kept 300,000 in the classroom for another year.

Archeologists Uncover Story Of King Who Was Always Wrong

Autarchus I Had a Genius for Being on Losing Side—Built Tremendous Monument on Mountain Peak.

By GEORGE WELLES

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch
Special Radio Copyright, 1935.

ROME, Oct. 6.—The king who was always wrong is right with history at last, after 2000 years. An American archeologist, working on a wild mountain peak in eastern Turkey, is uncovering gradually the story of Antarchus I, the king who never guessed correctly in choosing his allies.

Stone by stone Teresa Goell of New York City is revealing the king's fantastic monument at the top of Mount Nemrud, 7500 feet high. The mountain was originally sharply pointed, but the king snipped the summit away to build himself an immense tomb, flanked with terraces and statues.

"I am completely under the spell of this place," confessed Frank Brown, veteran archeologist who heads Yale's classical department, after a visit by muleback and afoot.

Border King Caught in Feuds. Antarchus was a border king caught in the east-west feuds of his time. Here is his record of wrong guesses:

Against the Roman general Pompey he supported the last king of Armenia Minor, Tigranes. Tigranes lost.

He shifted to Pompey's side against Caesar. Pompey lost. He then favored Mark Antony against Augustus. Mark Antony lost.

After this record of bad guessing, it needed a tremendous stone biography to keep Antarchus straight with history. An inscription 40 feet long and 8 feet, wide, in hundreds of words of Greek, explains how Antarchus survived as a border king.

He made his mind a god, attributing his survival to "my just thought." His carved testament provided for perpetual festivals of dance and music on the mountain, in his memory.

Tomb Yet Unopened.

His tomb is somewhere under a 150-foot pile of marble chips, still unopened. He is flanked by 40-foot statues of his gods: Zeus, Mars, Apollo, Hercules—and himself.

Nearby stand steles tracing his ancestry back to Alexander, on the Greek side, and Darius, emperor of Persia.

The American archeologists are nearly waterless on top of the mountain, the nearest being a three-hour ride away. Yet in winter Mount Nemrud is covered with heavy snow, making the site almost inaccessible.

The gigantic monument is arranged on an astronomical plan rivaling the pyramids of Egypt.

The great flat courts are so arranged that the midline faces exactly the rising sun on the birthday of Antarchus in July, and his coronation day in December.

"You feel lifted out of the world. You fall into the mood of this enormous geometry," says Prof. Brown, who went there at the invitation of the

Lined Up With Capital.

The monument is also lined up with the burial mound of Antarchus's mother, in an adjacent valley, and with the capital Antarchus strove to defend.

Samosat, still undug, is an archeologist's paradise. Hummocks like buttons show the remains of the unrevealed capital. Nearby are the square lines of the crack Scythian Legion's camp, established by Rome to keep Antarchus honest.

His tomb, high on the mountain, proclaims him "philos Romanos," a friend of the Romans.

But the imposing autobiography in stone was not enough to keep his kingdom alive. A few years later, not long after the Crucifixion of a minor Jew named Jesus Christ, the Emperor Caligula rubbed out the buffer kingdom. Antarchus, in proclaiming eternal life for "my own all-nourishing country" was wrong again.

MAIL CARRIERS HELP TALLY COVEYS OF PARTRIDGES

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 6 (UP)—

Wisconsin rural mail carriers are helping the cause of wildlife research. The conservation department got carriers in 25 counties to keep their eyes open for Hungarian partridge coveys to aid population studies of the popular game birds. Since the winter of 1954-55 was the first in which the scheme was operated, wildlife experts must wait until the coming winter to get comparative figures on the size and location of the state flock.

6000 BUS CONDUCTORS IN LONDON ARE WOMEN

LONDON, Oct. 6 (INS)—Thousands of London women have forsaken the comforts of home or the dull routine of ordinary jobs for a life of travel and adventure—on the city bus lines. Six thousand women bus conductors are now helping to man London's big red or green double-decked buses and more are being recruited at the rate of something like 40 a week. Most of the women are between 20 and 30, fast on their feet and equally fast with a comeback. Their occupational cry is "Hold tight!" and they

The idea behind the introduction of a truly superior bourbon

...Four Roses BOURBON

There's a sound idea behind the introduction of Four Roses Bourbon. ▲

Frankly stated, it's this:

The makers of famous Four Roses Blended Whiskey are completely confident that no finer whiskey is being produced...or can be produced. It is—in our opinion—the best there is!

But (let's face it) there are quite a few men who happen to be bourbon drinkers.

So why not offer these men (perhaps you're one of them) the same "best-of-all" quality in a bourbon — FOUR ROSES Bourbon. And not just "another straight bourbon," but a bourbon with real distinction and a real reason for being better.

Your first taste will tell you what it means to have a bourbon under the Four Roses label.

For this bourbon has a flavor and quality that you can't get from just a single whiskey. It can be achieved only by blending several straight bourbons — great bourbons — each with a special virtue of its own:

That's the Four Roses way. It takes more skill, more care, more patience. But it means a truly superior bourbon...and one that never varies.

If you're a bourbon drinker, be sure to try Four Roses Bourbon today. Look for the green label.

This Is Harvest Season for Apples

Many Varieties of Apples Now on Market; Homegrown Vegetables a Bargain Now.

Fragrant and flavorful, the newly harvested apples are now filling St. Louis fruit stands. They are here in wide variety, and at prices which put them in reach of almost everyone.

From the northern states and from our own nearby Calhoun county they come, showing good color. So get out your favorite apple recipes and make the most of this autumn treat. The fruit picture is a bright one this week, with grapes (another of autumn's gifts) in excellent supply. In addition to the Tokays, Thompson seedless and other varieties to which we are accustomed, the first of the wine grapes from California are putting in an appearance.

Cranberries, very nice indeed and earlier than usual, are another autumn offering. Prices probably are as low as we will see this season.

Florida is sending us grapefruit of all types—pink, ruby red and Duncan whites. The latter, you will recall, have seeds but they also have excellent flavor, sugar and juice content.

These little round pumpkins are becoming more plentiful; the first pomegranates have put in an appearance, and a few prickly pears show up here and there.

Summer's fruits still linger on, however. Cantaloupes, honeydews, Hales peaches from Utah, Idaho and Washington.

There are some real bargains awaiting you in the vegetable department. Bargains in homegrown vegetables, which have enjoyed a revival. Last week's rains gave them a shot in the arm, with the result that they are now abundant and available at bargain basement prices.

Incidentally, these are the very vegetables which offer such a nutritional bonus—kale, spinach and turnip tops.

Also homegrown or from nearby areas are fine quality kohlrabi, some Illinois okra, peppers, oyster plant, acorn and white squash, sweet potatoes and some late tomatoes.

And don't forget that this is the time to make that good green tomato piccalilli. Opligingly enough, green tomatoes, red sweet peppers and hot peppers come under this category of homegrown bargains.

Also from our own truck farms come a good selection of salad items, including leaf lettuce, endive, escarole, romaine and soft Boston head lettuce.

And if you sometimes have looked wistfully at Bibb lettuce but felt that it was out of your reach, this is the time to enjoy it. The homegrown is fairly cheap and of good enough quality.

Here is a tip to the thrifty: It may pay you to make your own kraut this year. The country's cabbage crop was not as heavy as usual this season, which may well mean that the commercially made kraut may cost more money.

If you want corn you will pay dearly for it. It is crunchier and harder to find. Eggplant, too, is a bit on the scarce side, and peas from California are definitely high.

Squash comes within the "reasonable" bracket, and you might want to try a little experimenting, if you aren't familiar with the butternut variety. It is very popular in the East, and well worth investigating. It is quite versatile; can be baked, boiled or fried, as you prefer.

Bunch turnips are quite plentiful; brussels sprouts are reasonable; cucumbers are more plentiful; and you will find lots of kohlrabi on the market.

The promised plenty is becoming a reality. If you should find good values now, particularly in the shoulder meat. So enjoy a pork roast or spareribs, knowing that more—much more—is on the way.

Baby beef is still available in quantity and fryers continue to be the excellent buy that they have been for some time now.

Scouting the Markets: If you haven't tried the new crispy cinnamon crackers now in local stores you are missing a real taste treat. These thin, crunchy graham crackers with a sugar and cinnamon coating will answer the "snack" problem at any hour of the day.

MACARONI CASSEROLE

Add extra eye-appeal to that all-time favorite, macaroni and cheese. Slice frankfurters lengthwise and fill with some of the macaroni mixture. Place the stuffed frankfurters in a shallow nine-inch greased baking pan and pour the remaining macaroni mixture around the frankfurters.

Sprinkle buttered crumbs over all and place under the broiler at low heat until heated through and browned. Add a smidgen of horseradish and a little chili sauce to the macaroni mixture for an intriguing flavor accent.

Food Products and Ideas Introduced at Conference

Newspaper Editors Given Preview of New Items; Hear Forecasts on Food Supplies.

By DOROTHY BRANERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

CHICAGO, Ill.—If you were to step inside the Drake hotel any time this week, you would know immediately that there is excitement in the air. It is almost like those few days before Christmas, when the very atmosphere is electric with happy suspense.

Editors gathered here from coast to coast (and in some instances from beyond) for the annual Food Editors Conference know that surprises await them at every one of the six daily sessions from Monday through Friday—surprises in the form of food news and brand-new recipes that will set the culinary styles for months to come.

These delightful gems of information are presented in a series of elaborate breakfasts, luncheons, cocktail parties and dinners where the new products or recipes play the leading roles in carefully planned menus. (There is news, too, in the handsome decorations and table settings of these parties.)

Many of the ideas can be adapted to your own winter entertaining, and we will try to pass them along to you from time to time.

Nor is this air of anticipation limited to the editors. It includes every member of the hotel's staff, from executive chef to humble bus boy, who shares in the excitement of preparing and serving these dishes at their first public appearance.

Obviously it would be impossible to give you, in one brief story, a detailed report of all of the news from the 19 sessions through which we have tasted our way to date. So let's take a look at some of the products which have been introduced or promised for the near future.

Elsewhere on this page you will find some of the new recipes; others we promise to bring you within the next few weeks, as space permits.

And what may you expect to find on your grocer's shelves one of these fine days? (Please remember that not all of these products will be available immediately; in many cases their presentation at the Conference was a "sneak preview," but they are on their way.)

Well, Florida has found another way to serve pure orange juice. Now it is orange juice sticks, made from a frozen concentrate base—not just colored water, but pure orange juice.

Under the heading of "Products of the Future," one famous meat packer introduced a complete line of 50 tender frozen meats, poultry and frozen cooked meat items, including frozen fried chicken and chicken parts, frozen pork, lamb and veal pies, and frozen gibelty gravy.

Another manufacturer is justly proud of a new frozen chicken à la king and of frozen peach and blueberry pies.

New serving idea: Try a scoop of softened butter pecan ice cream atop the peach pies; tangerine ice or a hot tangerine sauce made from frozen tangerine juice over the blueberry pies.

There is news on the way in an array of foods packaged in aluminum foil. Shrimps, shelled, deveined and raw in a foil pouch, to be dropped into boiling water. Fresh frozen lobsters, too, in this foil pouch—all of these seafoods to be cooked in the package without loss of fresh natural flavors and juices. Dinners of meat and vegetables in foil to be heated in a saucepan of water, and cake mixes with just the right size pans in the package (and what cook has not searched frantically through her collection of pans for the exact size called for in a recipe?)

But not all of the news is in the form of products. Quite as interesting are the reports and forecasts.

For instance, this year's crop of Florida oranges may be slightly under last year's record, but the quality will be fine—what is termed a "vintage year" crop.

And you may look for two innovations in California citrus: the fruit will be coming to market packaged in clear bags to eliminate damage; lemons will be trade marked (oranges have been trade marked since the middle '20s, but the machine damaged the delicate skins of the lemons until a recent perfection made the process practical).

The meat supply picture is a rosy one, with great quantities of beef expected to come to market during the rest of this year and early in 1936.

Although autumn is a period when the largest supplies of low-grade beef reach the market, this season meat markets are well stocked with top quality, packer-branded beef cuts at attractive prices, and the early months of 1936 will find greater than ever supplies of top-grade beef on the market.

In fact, beef will be in such good supply that we may return to the old-fashioned custom of steak for breakfast. (We tried it, and it tasted mighty fine, even during a week of enormous meals.)

Pork—more pork than ever before—will be available for the roasting, braising and stewing pans of America's homes. Pork supplies are running 8 per cent greater than those of last autumn, and 20 per cent greater than two years ago. Excellent pork buys will include ham, picnics, spareribs, pork sausage, bacon, pork chops and lard.

Veal and poultry supplies are good and a steady supply of lamb will be available, according to predictions.

Thought-provoking was the talk by Dr. Thomas K. Cureton of the University of Illinois, internationally known authority on physical fitness, who pointed out that nutrition and exercise are the keys to dynamic living. But we are becoming a nation of softies, he claims, because most of us are underworked physically.

Daily exercise and the use of "nutrition insurance" foods such as wheat germ will, in his opinion, help keep us physically fit, active and happy.

Random thought: A backward glance at the menus for the first few days of this Conference in Chicago makes us acutely aware that we are truly living in a "one world" age of food.

A sportsman, just returned from a safari to Nairobi, East Africa, was host at one party which featured Chicken and Egusi, an African delicacy.

Two days later an after-theater party highlighted Teriyaki cooked on a Japanese hibachi. But both of these recipes can be authentically reproduced in your own kitchen with food easily obtainable at your neighborhood grocery store. Such are the miracles of modern food processing, transportation and distribution.

PARTY CONFECTIONS
PRETTY TO SERVE

HERE is a brand-new idea for cookies, and one that will challenge your ingenuity. You can work out endless combinations of your own; have fun experimenting with flavor and color combinations.

Bonbon cookies are full of surprises, inside and out. Inside a rich cookie dough is placed a cherry, a nut or a coconut mixture. Then, after the cookies have cooled, they are dipped into icing and sprinkled with colored sugars, coconut, or topped with a pecan. This is a wonderful idea for autumn parties.

Bonbon Cookies.
One-half cup soft butter or margarine.
Three-fourths cup sifted confectioner's sugar.

One tablespoon vanilla.
One and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour.

One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Mix butter, sugar, vanilla. Stir in flour and salt. Mix well with hand. Tint dough, if desired. (Remember that half of the fun is in making these confections as pretty as possible.)

Wrap one tablespoon dough around a candied or maraschino cherry, or one teaspoon chocolate-coconut mixture (add one square unsweetened chocolate, melted, to one-half cup shredded coconut). Place close together on ungreased baking sheet. Bake 12 to 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool.

Dip top of cookie into icing. (Mix one cup sifted confectioner's sugar, two tablespoons cream, one teaspoon vanilla.) Add food coloring.

For Chocolate Icing: Add one square unsweetened chocolate, melted, and use one-fourth cup cream. Decorate. Yield: 20 to 25 cookies.

News for Goblins

Here is the newest thing in fashions for the ghostly set—skeleton masks that shine in the dark. Your youngsters will be the best dressed goblins in the block on Halloween with these fearsome faces.

To make, tear off a sheet of aluminum foil about 15 inches long by 12 inches wide. Place over the face and mold to conform to eyes, nose, mouth. Smooth tightly over top of head and under chin.

With fingers make openings for nose and eyes. Use cellophane tape or adhesive tape from the medicine chest and while still on head wrap a long piece completely around the mask. (Start under the chin and bring both ends together at top of head. This holds mask firmly in shape.)

Remove from face. From black paper or black plastic tape cut eyes triangular, triangular shape piece for nose and traditional grinning teeth for mouth.

Extra foil on sides can be trimmed off and edges turned under. Mouth can be slit open if desired.

PUMPKIN PIE MADE BY A NEW METHOD

NO matter how streamlined modern living may become, Americans still have a feeling of nostalgia for traditional foods. And with the first autumn days, thoughts turn to foods associated with harvest and holiday time. High on the list, of course, is pumpkin pie.

Although these old favorites retain their same popularity, the method of preparation changes with the times.

Here is a spicy No-Cook Pumpkin Pie Filling that is a good example of a traditional dish made by a modern method. The pie filling is ready in a matter of seconds; just put into a cooled pastry shell and chill.

If by chance you don't like pastry, use the filling as a pudding-like dessert. Combine ingredients, pour into chilled dessert dishes and garnish with a bit of whipped cream.

Spley No-Cook Pumpkin Pie Filling.
One nine-inch baked pastry shell.

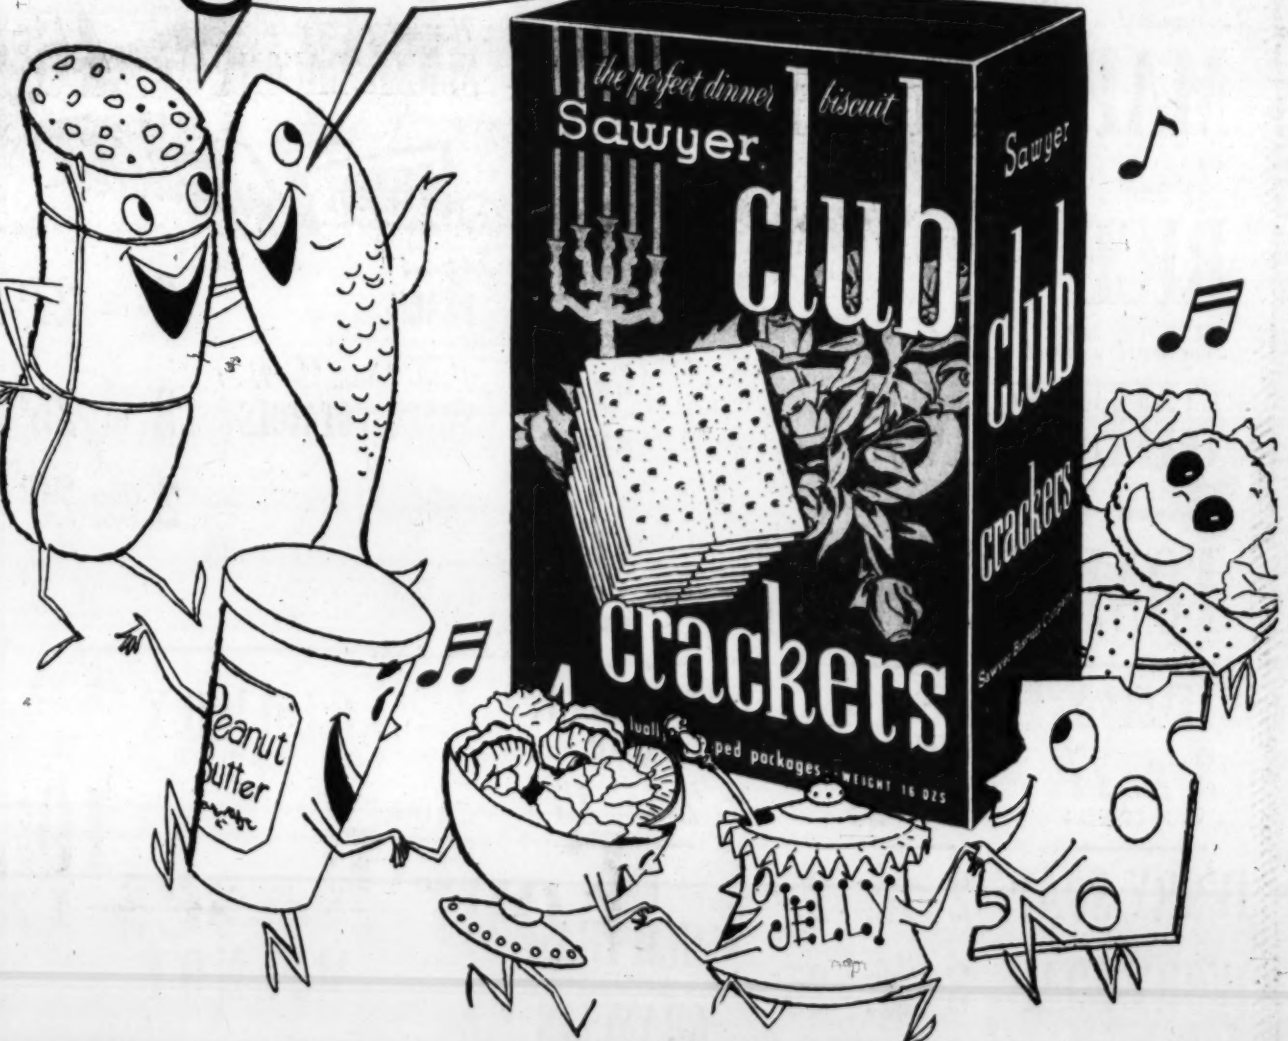

One 15-ounce can sweetened condensed milk.
One third cup lemon juice.
One (one pound 13-ounce) can pumpkin.

OR
Three and one-half cups cooked and strained pumpkin.

Three and one-half teaspoons pumpkin pie spice.
One-half teaspoon salt.

Combine sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice; stir until mixture thickens. Stir in pumpkin, spice and salt. Lightly spoon into chilled pie shell. Chill in refrigerator until firm, about four hours. Garnish with whipped cream.

CIDER, SPICES ADD FLAVOR TO CHICKEN

Pan-American Chicken is an unusual recipe on two counts—ease of preparation and outstanding flavor. It is browned in butter, then simmered in apple cider with a little cinnamon and clove. The cider lends a subtle flavor in tune with the harvest season.

Pan-American Chicken.
Two packages (one-pound size) frozen chicken thighs, breasts, drumsticks or wings.
Two tablespoons butter or margarine.

One cup apple cider.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon cinnamon.

Dash black pepper.
Two whole cloves.
Thaw chicken as directed on package. Brown chicken in butter. Add remaining ingredients; cover and cook over low heat about 45 minutes or until chicken is tender. Turn chicken and baste with sauce several times during cooking period. Yield: Six to eight servings.

TRY FLAPJACKS GONE LATIN FOR DESSERT COURSE

Pancakes are stealing the spotlight in the dessert parade this season, and now they appear in a Brazilian version. Here is a flapjack really gone Latin—the way you might enjoy it after a dinner in Rio de Janeiro.

Brazilian Banana Pancakes.
Pancakes:
Two cups pancake mix.
Two and one-fourth cups milk.

One egg.
Two tablespoons melted shortening.
Mocha Sauce:
One cup sugar.
Two tablespoons corn starch.
One tablespoon cocoa.
One and one-half cups strong coffee.
Two tablespoons butter or margarine.

Filling:
Five bananas.
Add milk, egg and shortening to pancake mix, stirring lightly. (Somewhat lumpy batter makes light fluffy pancakes). Pour one-fourth cup batter for each pancake onto hot, lightly greased griddle. Bake to a golden brown, turning only once. Fold pancakes in half.

Place three banana spears (made by cutting bananas into fourths lengthwise, then cutting each in half) in each folded pancake so that tips of bananas stick out. Pour mocha sauce over top.

Mocha Sauce: Combine sugar, corn starch and cocoa in saucepan. Add coffee; bring to a boil. Simmer about 10 minutes. Stir in butter. Serve hot.

CUP CAKE TOPPING

Try this quick frosting for cupcakes. To three tablespoons of soft butter or margarine, add two and one-half cups of powdered sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice and two tablespoons sirup from canned pineapple, beating well with spoon or electric mixer after each addition.

Stir in one-fourth cup of drained, crushed pineapple; beat with spoon. (It may be necessary to add a little more powdered sugar, depending on how thoroughly you drained the pineapple.) Spread on cool cake. This amount is sufficient for 12 medium-sized cupcakes or one square cake.

CHOW MEIN NOODLES

Crisp Chow Mein Noodles for Chinese dishes or chicken a la king are simple to make. Use about four ounces fine noodles to make four servings.

Place a small amount of the noodles at a time in a flat-bottomed wire basket or strainer. Fry in deep hot fat (375 degrees F.) until golden brown (about two minutes). Drain and sprinkle with salt.

BREAKFAST FRUITS

Start off breakfast tomorrow with a dish of stewed apricots and prunes. It's colorful, tangy and a good appetite whetter. Modern methods for drying fruits eliminate soaking and long cooking of all dried fruits.

RED FRONT URGES PREMIER'S OUSTER IN INDONESIA

JAKARTA, Oct. 6 (AP)—A mounting Nationalist party lead in returns from Indonesia's first parliamentary elections brought new demands today for the ouster of Prime Minister Burhanuddin Harahap's caretaker government.

Harahap's Moslem Masjumi party was running fourth, behind the Moslem Orthodox Radicals and the Communists as well as the Nationalists. The Prime Minister, whose friendliness to the West contrasts with Nationalist coolness, has said he will step down only after the new Parliament is organized early next year.

However, leaders of several parties represented in the temporary government suggested that their ministers resign to provoke a cabinet crisis. Some newspapers joined in the Nationalist and Communist demands that President Soekarno dissolve the appointed provisional Parliament to force Harahap's cabinet out of office. The Nationalists are certain to fall short of a majority in the new 278-member Parliament, but the third-place Communists are ready to join them in a coalition government.

Injuries Fatal

BARBARA JEAN NORTH

GIRL HIT BY AUTO DIES OF INJURIES

Struck by Car Friday When Crossing Highway 66 to School Bus.

Barbara Jean North, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert North, 9801 U.S. Highway 66, died at St. Anthony Hospital yesterday of injuries she suffered last Friday when she was struck by an automobile.

She was hit as she was crossing the highway to get on a school bus in front of her home. The driver of the automobile, Gerald F. Crowley, 5434 Mar del avenue, told St. Louis county police he did not see her in time to avoid hitting her. He said he was going 45 miles an hour.

The girl was a student at Lindbergh High School. Mrs. Sarah Hendricks, 77 years old, 3903 Page boulevard, and Burns Crawford, 3756 Cook avenue, were struck by an automobile as they were crossing Page at Prairie avenue about 6 o'clock last night.

Both are Negroes. Each suffered a broken leg and head injuries. A motorist who saw the accident pursued the car and obtained the license number, and with that information police early today arrested the man to whom the license was issued. He was to be viewed later by the witness.

WILSON SETS UP BOARD TO HELP ENFORCE ORDERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson has named a special six-member committee to try to see that his orders are carried out more rapidly and in a more uniform manner.

A Pentagon spokesman said yesterday Wilson also has sent a memorandum to the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force expressing his concern about the matter.

The Secretary wrote he was "increasingly concerned over the growing criticism in Congress and elsewhere of the lack of consistency in the manner in which the military departments carry out the purpose and intent of Department of Defense directives."

Carter L. Burgess, Assistant Secretary of Defense for manpower, was named to head the special study group which was supposed to report by Oct. 1.

EXPERT THINKS REDS HAVE 'SUPER' BOMB

Scientist Refers to Report of 'Extra Special' Soviet Nuclear Tests.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (UP)—An atomic scientist said today that "Russia must have the super."

He was referring to reports, never officially confirmed, that there was "something extra special" about a series of Soviet nuclear tests revealed by the United States Atomic Energy Commission a year ago this month.

By "the super" this scientist meant the kind of weapon tested by the United States at Bikini in March 1954. It also has been called the three-F or fission-fusion-fission bomb.

It achieves notoriety because, in addition to its destructive power—nearly 1000 times greater than the ordinary A-bomb—it loosed enough radioactive fallout to poison an area of 7000 square miles.

This country maintains a monitoring network which tells it when the Russians conduct nuclear tests. From time to time the AEC announces the start of a new Soviet test series, the latest of which got under way last summer and may be still going on.

But the commission seldom specifies the kind of weapons the Russians are testing and it has never said whether there even is such a thing as the "super" of whatever nationality.

It is known, however, that the Russians have exploded new varieties of their H-bomb since the last Soviet fusion test announced by the AEC in August 1953.

Whether the Russians tested a super H-bomb last fall undoubtedly is known to this country if it was made anything like the Bikini bomb. Japanese scientists who analyzed fallout particles from the American weapon tipped off its apparent three-phase nature.

Their reports indicated it consisted of an atomic trigger, a fusion charge, and a jacket of normally inert Uranium-238 fissioned by the fusion reaction.

In any event, the Russians have been testing nuclear weapons since 1949. Starting with a single-shot test program they have worked up in recent years to elaborate test series comparable, informed sources have said, to the multi-shot United States programs.

The best guess appears to be that the Russians have set off between 20 and 30 nuclear explosions. The United States score is at least 65.

AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss refused recently to discuss the significance of the latest Soviet test series, which started in late July or early August and was still going on as recently as Sept. 24.

ALGER HISS IN HOSPITAL, AILMENT IS NOT DISCLOSED

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (INS)—Alger Hiss, who was jailed for perjury when he denied passing State Department documents to Communists, is a patient in New York hospital, it was disclosed today.

A spokesman for the hospital refused to reveal the nature of the former State Department official's ailment, but said he had spent a "good day" yesterday and was generally in "good condition."

The spokesman said Hiss would leave the hospital "in a day or two," but refused to say whether he underwent any surgery.

Hiss was admitted to the hospital Sept. 27, just three days after he had reported for the last time to a parole officer. He had been on parole since his release from Lewisburg (Pa.) federal penitentiary Nov. 27, 1954. He served three years and eight months of a five-year sentence.

Pakistan Governor General, LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II last night formally accepted the resignation of Ghulam Mohammad as governor general of Pakistan and appointed Maj. Gen. Iskander Mirza as his successor.

NAVY'S MIDGET SUBMARINE BEGINS SHAKEDOWN CRUISE

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 6 (UP)—The Navy's first midget submarine steamed across Long Island sound today from the airplane hangar in which it was built for a series of tests and shakedown cruises.

The X-1 is 5 feet long and seven feet in diameter. The 25-ton king-sized cigar will be manned by a crew of five and is designed to test harbor defenses and for experimental work as a weapon for close-in attacks.

The little submarine was built by the engine division of Fairchild Engine & Airplane Corp. at Deer Park, Long Island, and then trucked to Oyster Bay where it was launched Sept. 7. The firm said the submarine's steering and diving controls and instruments are more like those of an airplane than of a conventional submarine. The X-1 is scheduled to be turned over officially to the Navy tomorrow.

SINGER FRANCES LANGFORD TO BE MILLIONAIRE'S BRIDE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (UP)—Frances Langford, former singing star of radio and films, and millionaire motorboat maker Ralph S. Evinrude will be married aboard Evinrude's yacht in the Flushing yacht basin.

The couple had planned to keep the wedding a secret and only a few close friends were invited to the ceremony. They will sail shortly after a yacht-board reception for a honeymoon cruise of southern waters.

It was Miss Langford's second marriage. She and actor Jon Hall obtained an "amicable" divorce after more than 17 years of marriage last Aug. 29. They had no children. Evinrude is president of the Outboard, Marine and Manufacturing Company of Milwaukee. He has been married twice previously and divorced twice.

SOUTH VIET NAM TO VOTE OCT. 23 ON DEPOSING BAO DAI

SAIGON, Oct. 6 (AP)—The government of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem announced today a popular referendum will be held Oct. 23 on the question of deposing Bao Dai as South Viet Nam's chief of state. Ballots already are being printed.

Bao Dai is in France, where he spent the greater part of his time in the 10 years of the civil war in Viet Nam which resulted in the division of the country at the Geneva conference of 1954. Half was left under control of the northern Communist regime. The southern half now is governed by Diem, who has substantial American support and considerable opposition from the French.

According to plans now the referendum will be completed in a single day and will be secret. Men and women over 18 may participate.

The move to oust Bao Dai as chief of state began last May after he attempted to fire Diem. Although a revolutionary congress declared Bao Dai deposed at that time, Diem did not act officially to oust him.

Hearings on Religious Freedom, Church and State Called Off

Senate Group Acts in Deference to Leaders Who Fear Inquiry Might Lead to Controversy.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—Hearings on the questions of freedom of religion and separation of church and state were called off yesterday by the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, apparently in deference to the views of various religious leaders who said that a public inquiry could do no good and might lead to bitter controversy.

Public hearings, under the chairmanship of Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem., Missouri), had been scheduled to start last Monday but were "postponed." The subcommittee decided at a meeting Tuesday to drop the public hearings altogether. At the same time the Senate postponed until Nov. 14 public hearings on freedom of speech and the press which had been scheduled for Oct. 17.

Report From Hocker. The senators acted after receiving a report from Lon Hocker of St. Louis, chief counsel for the subcommittee, on the replies to questionnaires on the religion and free speech and press clause of the first amendment to the constitution.

"They concluded," Hennings said, "that in view of the large amount of material already received, additional analysis by the staff on both subjects was required before proceeding with oral testimony."

"It was the consensus of the committee that ample material for a full examination of constitutional rights under the religion clause was available in the replies to the questionnaires and in the statements submitted and that no oral witnesses on this subject would be necessary. In the opinion of the committee the questionnaire replies constitute a hearing in written form."

2000 Replies Received. Hennings said Oct. 12 had been set as a cut-off date for further replies to the questionnaire on the religion clause and that the staff was directed to prepare a report on the information received. More than 2000 replies have been received and are currently under examination by Robert Bower, of the social science department of American University, working under a grant from the Fund for the Republic.

It is known that representatives of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths advised the subcommittee staff several weeks ago while Hennings was traveling abroad that public hearings on the religious question probably would have an undesirable aftermath. They informed the staff members that they would not boycott the hearings, but they felt the subcommittee might be "walking where angels fear to tread."

The senators are known to have decided it might be unwise to fly in the face of such advice.

While there was no particular concern among the senators as to what responsible leaders of the three faiths might have to say at the public hearings, it is known that a situation could have arisen where persons wishing to testify would be of the type "who regard a hearing on religion as a sectarian forum."

Some Criticism Reported.

Some criticism has been reported that the questionnaire distributed by the subcommittee was worded in such a fashion as to accommodate Roman Catholics who wish to criticize Supreme Court rulings on the question of separation of church and state. The Christian Century, a Protestant publication, expressed the view that the subcommittee was heading for trouble if it proceeded with the public inquiry.

A spokesman for the American Jewish Congress, however, criticized the subcommittee for dropping the hearings.

Glenn L. Archer, executive director of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, said in a statement yesterday that "it would be unthinkable for the vital subject of religious freedom to be shunted aside because of the fear of a few that it is not an issue to be frankly discussed in this free country of ours."

It is known that a dispute over the religion inquiry simmered within the subcommittee staff during the summer when Hennings and the other subcommittee members, Senators William Langer (Rep., North Dakota), and Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyoming), were away from Washington. It is known that Marshall MacDuffie, who is listed as chief counsel for the subcommittee, but a subordinate of Hocker, opposed the hearings and that Langer and O'Mahoney developed "misgivings" about the inquiry.

On the other hand, it is known that Hennings and Hocker contended that the subcommittee should face up to the full responsibility of its assignment and conduct an abstract, high-level inquiry on the religious question.

NEW YORK YOUTH ACCUSED OF KILLING PARK EMPLOYEE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (UP)—Police today charged a teenage youth with murder in the killing of a young park department employee shot down within earshot of 200 persons. Three other youths were arrested.

Hiram Rosa, 17 years old, was charged with murder some 10 hours after Frank Gargiulo, 20, was shot fatally in the chest.

Police said Gargiulo had angered the youths earlier by ordering them out of the park after breaking up a fight in which one of them was involved.

ALLEN FLYING HOME, WARNED ARABS ON ARMS

Thinks He Has Alerted Egypt, Lebanon to Possibilities of Red Penetration.

By ROBERT HEWETT
BEIRUT, Lebanon, Oct. 6 (AP)—Assistant Secretary of State George Allen flew back to Washington today after warning Arab leaders of the dangers of accepting arms from the Communist bloc.

Allen did not persuade Egypt's Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser to cancel his controversial arms deal with Czechoslovakia. But, the United States envoy declared, he thinks his week's flying mission to Egypt and Lebanon has alerted Arab leaders to the possibilities of increased Red penetration of the Middle East.

The main effect of Allen's special flight from Washington—in Arab eyes, at least—appeared to be increased East-West rivalry in the Middle East. Most observers agree Red propagandists and arms merchants are scoring, largely because of increasing Arab hostility toward Israel.

Clarifying U. S. Policy. While Allen said on departure he thought his trip had been fruitful "in clearing up misconceptions about United States policy," some Arab leaders are skeptical. Allen told newspaper men one of the main reasons for the trip was to stress United States concern over danger of an arms race which would increase Arab-Israeli tensions in the Middle East.

"When Mr. Allen speaks of keeping the balance of power between Arabs and Israel and relaxing tension, he is talking about something we Arabs simply do not comprehend," one Western-educated Lebanese official commented.

"We Arabs do not want a balance of power. We must be stronger than Israel and if that's an arms race, let's go."

The Arabs never have ceased blaming the United States for supporting Israel and stronger feeling has flared up as result of Israeli-Egyptian clashes along the Gaza strip.

American relationships with the Middle East have been strained further by resentment against American opposition to the Communist arms deal, with nationalistic Arabs loudly proclaiming "we will get arms from any one we choose."

Western diplomats here privately caution against optimism in the current situation.

Hinges on Russia. Some observers feel the best chance of avoiding an arms race in the Middle East lies in direct agreement with the Soviet Union not to pour in arms—a doubtful hope dependent on the Russians' desire to carry out the Geneva promises to relax world tensions.

Allen met United States ambassadors to the Arab states last night after conferring during the day with Lebanese Premier Rachid Kagnoh and Foreign Minister Selim Lahoud.

Some Lebanese newspapers printed a report Allen offered arms to Lebanon but the Assistant Secretary of State before his departure denied it.

He said United States military aid programs were discussed but Lebanon had asked for neither a grant of arms nor a purchase deal and that he had given no intimation of what United States reaction would be, even if Lebanon made such requests.

Allen decided he would not

AMERICANS LEAVE BASE IN MOROCCO BECAUSE OF RAIDS

RABAT, Morocco, Oct. 6 (AP)—United States Air Force authorities decided to move about 50 Americans, including women and children, from their radar base at Salda, it was learned today, after repeated raids in the area by rebel bands.

The radar base is on the Mediterranean in a corner of French Morocco lying between Algeria and the Spanish zone. United States bases in Morocco are under French protection.

The French have refused to reveal how many troops they have in the area beyond saying there are "several thousand."

French army transports continually land at Nouasseur, largest United States air base in Morocco, near Casablanca.

About 200 Americans are at Salda. Fourteen were married men with their families. The married men were being removed with their families to other bases and replaced by single men.

The American consulate-general in Rabat reported today it had no reports of any harm having come to Americans in French Morocco.

ARMS REPORTED SOUGHT FROM U.S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (UP)—Israel has formally told the United States it needs new arms aid to counterbalance weapons Egypt will get from the Soviet bloc, it was learned today. The notification came within the last week.

Israel did not request specific military equipment, but the action indicated the government will follow up its formal notification with such a request.

Diplomatic sources said Israel is convinced that only the United States would be in a position to supply it with enough arms aid to restore the balance of Middle Eastern power after a Czech offer of arms to Egypt is carried through.

Furthermore, Israel feels it would need so much military help that the United States would have to supply such arms free or sell them on very liberal terms.

In the past the United States has sold limited quantities of weapons for security purposes to Middle Eastern nations only on a strictly reimbursable basis.

Apparently Israel is waiting to learn details of the Czech-Egyptian arrangement before submitting a detailed request for weapons.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles declined to tell a press conference Tuesday whether the United States would be willing to supply Israel with arms to balance Soviet bloc shipments to Arab nations. Officials said any decision most likely will depend on what kind of report Dulles gets when Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen returns from his trouble-shooting mission to Egypt next week.

Anniversary Album
You can see by A&P's up-to-the-minute methods of food distribution that we definitely don't live in the past. But, like most oldsters, we do cherish our memories. We've collected quite an album full since 1859. But there's always room for more. And this month, as our 96th Anniversary rolls around, we're adding to our fond recollections of those who have contributed to A&P's steady growth. Among them are the thousands of loyal A&P employees whose untiring efforts have helped us carry out our founder's policy of bringing more good food to more people for less money, and the millions of customers who have shown their approval of this policy by their continued support and patronage. We're mighty proud to have so many friends represented in our album of memories and hope to add many new ones in the coming year.

COUNTY TO TEST LEGALITY OF PLAN OF REVALUATION

Council Plans Court Check on Hiring Outside Firms for Re-assessment.

Plans for a court test to determine whether St. Louis county may contract with outside firms for a parcel-by-parcel reassessment of county real estate were laid yesterday by the County Council.

As a first step toward the test, the council perfected a bill authorizing the council, when it considers a reassessment to be necessary, to direct the county assessor to employ properly qualified experts and consultants to appraise the taxable real estate in the county. Contracts for this purpose could be for such length of time as the council might consider necessary.

Purpose of the bill, which will be up for final passage next Wednesday, is to cover the points on which legal questions have been raised, namely: Whether the county can hire outside firms to conduct a reassessment, whether the state of Missouri would pay one-half the cost of such an undertaking, as it now does on work performed by the assessor, and whether, in view of the county charter's prohibition on contracts of more than one year's duration, the council could contract for a job that might require two or more years.

Contract Authorized.
The council has authorized a contract with Roy Wenzlick and Co. and Doane Agricultural Services Inc. for a parcel-by-parcel reassessment of all county real estate, but the contract has never been executed.

Roy Wenzlick, head of the company bearing his name, was present at yesterday's meeting to tell the council his attorney had advised against signing the contract until it legality had been established in a court action.

County Counselor Herbert C. Funke said a test action probably could be filed directly in the Missouri Supreme Court, without the necessity of going through the circuit court and appealing.

Working on Manual.
Wenzlick told the Council he had been working on an assessor's manual and on the design for a punch card system listing the individual parcels of property. He said that if a court decision could be handed down by Jan. 1 he believed he could get a "running start and proceed rapidly."

At present a blanket assessed valuation increase of 60 per cent on all urban real estate and 85 per cent on rural acreage in the county is in effect as the result of the State Tax Commission's order to raise assessments of all land to 30 per cent of its real value. The blanket increase was put on because of lack of time to reassess each parcel individually.

PRINCE, 15-YEAR-OLD BRIDE IN U.S. ON WAY TO MEXICO

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—Austrian Prince Alfonso Maximilian Hohenlohe-Langenburg, 31 years old, arrived here today with his 15-year-old bride, en route to Mexico City where he will work for an automobile company.

He told reporters as he arrived aboard the French liner Liberté he believed "four is an ideal family: that is, two boys and two girls." He made the comment after his youthful bride laughed off queries about having a family.

She is the former Virginia Ira Furstenberg, daughter of a prince and princess. She will be 16 next April 18. The couple married Sept. 21 amid medieval pageantry in Venice with 1500 guests attending the ceremony, will spend four or five days in New York and then drive to a Mexican capital.

POPE CALLS CATHOLIC YOUTH SOURCE OF HOPE FOR FUTURE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—Pope Pius XII, in a message blessing the Catholic Youth of America, views young people who put their trust in Jesus as "a source of hope for the future."

The Pope so expressed himself in what the National Catholic Welfare Conference described as an "unprecedented, personally signed letter" to the N.C.W.C. youth department.

The message was addressed to Archbishop John J. Mitty of San Francisco, episcopal moderator of the youth department. It was occasioned by the fifth annual observance of National Catholic Youth week, Oct. 30 to Nov. 6. The Pope voiced confidence that young Catholics of America "will grow into better Christians, better citizens, better men and women, to build the better world of tomorrow."

G.I.'S WIFE IN GERMANY FINED $100 FOR BLACK MARKETING

AUGSBURG, Germany, Oct. 6 (AP)—The United States Army reinforced today its campaign to wipe out minor black marketing by soldiers' families in West Germany.

A military summary court here fined the wife of a master sergeant $100 for having sold illegally two cartons of American cigarettes to a German. Her black market profit was less than $4. If she does not pay the fine within six months, she will be placed under confinement for a maximum of 30 days. Army authorities did not release the wife's name, but publicized her case as an example to all soldiers' dependents.

VICTOR MATURE QUITS FILM IN LONDON; NO HOTEL ROOM

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP)—Movie tough guy Victor Mature walked out on a film in the making last night and flew off to New York in a huff because nobody had booked him a hotel room with a bath.

The actor played his part in real life at London airport only six hours after arriving from Africa where he had been acting in the movie "Safari." Ten days of filming remained to be done in London.

Storming through customs, Mature said, "when I arrived in London I found there was no room booked for me. I was pretty angry about the whole business. The others have got their homes all right and somewhere decent with a bath."

"I thought my room was booked. I flew in tired out and what's doing? Nothing, no bed, no bath. So they can have the whole deal."

EX-PRISONERS TESTIFY AT TRIAL OF MAJ. ALLEY

FORT MEADE, Md., Oct. 6 (AP)—The defense continued to present witnesses today in its effort to prove that Maj. Ronald E. Alley of Bar Harbor, Me., did not collaborate with the enemy while a prisoner of the Chinese Reds in North Korea.

Yesterday, the defense called to the stand Capt. Robert H. Wise, now stationed with the Second Infantry at Fort Lewis, Wash., and Lt. Col. John N. McLaughlin, now stationed at the Marine Corps school, Quantico, Va. Both testified they did not remember Alley as one of those officers who urged signing of the peace petition the Reds wanted their prisoners to support.

McLaughlin said he was one of four or five at the camp in which the three were imprisoned who did not sign the petition.

Every well-bred tomato has an itch for which there's just one cure! That's to be nestled in a cool crisp salad and coated lightly with Wish-Bone Italian Dressing, an Old World recipe that put added zest in the best of salads.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS ASKED TO REACH PARENTS

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 6 (AP)—Sunday school teachers should try to reach adults as well as children in an effort to combat "parental delinquency," the president of the National Sunday School Association says.

By reaching adults, said Dr. Harold W. Erickson, Rockford, Ill., "the American family life can be strengthened, thus helping to combat parental, as well as juvenile, delinquency."

Dr. Erickson spoke yesterday at the opening session of the tenth National Sunday School Convention, which attracted a record first-day registration of 1285 delegates. Ministers and laymen from the United States, Canada and Hawaii are attending the three-day meeting.

DANGER! Flies Carry Germs!

- FOLLOW THESE 4 RULES FOR EFFECTIVE FLY AND MOSQUITO CONTROL
- 1 Keep garbage cans tightly covered and clean as possible. Destroy other rotting vegetation and animal waste.
  - 2 Remove empty containers and drain areas where stagnant water collects, such as in clogged roof gutters, etc.
  - 3 Replace torn screen wire, warped frames and weak, "stand ajar" door springs.
  - 4 Kill every fly and mosquito that gets in the house with dependable, quick action Gullfap. Handy for porches and picnic areas, too.

Get quick, easy-to-use Gullfap spray in convenient Gullfap Aerosol Bomb—usually $1.39—also available for spray guns—Gullfap pint usually 49¢, Gullfap quart usually 79¢.

"5 easy ways to vary Apple Pie--- and make it Very Truly Yours!"

TOM-BOY FOOD PAGE SUGGESTS:

1 INTRODUCE FRENCH APPLE
Instead of a top crust for the pie on top of this page, sprinkle on a crumb topping (1 cup Gold Medal Flour, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup brown sugar). Serve warm with ice cream for even more compliments.

2 MAKE IT MEXICAN
Apple pies are never out of season with variations like this! The new here is 1/2 cup red hots, cinnamon candies, added to the apples for zest and color. What an easy way to be "different."

3 CREATE A CARAMEL APPLE PIE
We've a hunch this will be a favorite with your menfolks! Use all brown sugar and slice 1/4 cup firm butter over apples before covering with top crust. Gold Medal crusts are flaky and tender—always delicious.

4 TOP IT WITH A NUT CRUST
Two welcome surprises in this pie! Add 1/4 cup finely chopped nuts to your easy-to-handle Gold Medal pastry. To filling add 1/2 cup seedless raisins, 1 tablespoon molasses. A superb combination.

5 TRY ARKANSAS APPLE PIE
The bubbly beauty on the right tastes as good as it looks! Cook until tender 9 cups sliced red apples (skins on) in syrup of 1/2 cup water, 1/2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Drain and pile apples in pastry-lined pan. Dot with butter. Top with lattice crust. Bake 30 to 35 minutes at 425 degrees. Cook syrup until thick and pour over hot baked pie.

Tom-Boy suggests you use your own favorite recipe for the basic apple pie. Then create a new taste and a new look with any of these five simple touches.

EAST ZONE LIFTS COAL BLOCKADE ON REICH TOWN

BERLIN, Oct. 6 (AP)—City officials disclosed today that East German Communist authorities have lifted a "coal blockade" on the village of Steinstuecken.

Steinstuecken is a western enclave about 500 yards inside Communist territory. Three weeks ago Communist border guards refused to allow West Berlin coal trucks to enter the village.

There was no explanation for the sudden lifting of the restriction. West Berlin officials had asked the allies to protest to the Russians, but a United States spokesman said this had not been done yet.

TAXES DOUBLED FOR 5000 AUTO OWNERS HERE

They Will Pay $30 Average Instead of $15 for Failing to File Return.

About 5000 St. Louis automobile owners who failed to file personal tax returns have been added to the tax lists and their assessments doubled, Assessor John H. Poelker announced today.

As a result of the penalty for failing to file returns, the automobile owners will pay an average of $30 in personal taxes instead of $15 which would have been the normal tax. This is based on an average valuation of $500 per automobile.

Poelker said the delinquent tax payers were discovered after he hired five clerks to check the list of automobile license applicants against the list of persons making personal tax returns.

The city would collect a total of about $150,000 from the delinquents at the $30 a head rate.

Poelker said his office also is checking the reverse telephone directory and city directory against personal property returns for persons delinquent in paying taxes on household goods.

Whenever a delinquent taxpayer is found on a household return is unco-operative in answering questions of an assessor, the deputy will determine the number of rooms and arbitrarily assess the householder at $50 a room.

DULLES INVITES CONGRESS LEADERS TO OCT. 20 BRIEFING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has invited Republican and Democratic leaders to confer with him here Oct. 20 on the forthcoming Big Four foreign ministers conference at Geneva, the State Department announced today.

The conference was called to brief the leaders on Allied plans for the Geneva parley which opens Oct. 27.

The bipartisan meeting with Dulles will be held at the State Department. Among those invited to attend were: The Republican and Democratic leaders of both Houses and representatives of the Armed Services, Appropriations and Foreign relations committees.

State Department Spokesman Henry Suydam said it is uncertain how many of the congressional leaders will be able to attend. He said it is the intention of Chairman George (Dem.) Georgia, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to be on hand. George has been campaigning in his home state.

ECONOMIC PLENTY FROM H-POWER BY 2000 FORECAST

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 6 (UP)—A physicist yesterday predicted that by the year 2000 the entire world may enjoy economic plenty through unlimited power derived from water.

Prof. Frederick Seitz of the University of Illinois said he believes science may find a way to harness "the enormous reserves of heavy hydrogen which exists in the water about us" by the year 2000.

"This potential fuel, which even now can be produced in pure form relatively cheaply, seems to be the best long range hope as a universal power source," Seitz said.

Seitz said in a talk prepared for delivery at the Illinois Secondary School Principals Association meeting that he believes the current world "crisis" will have ended by the end of this century.

"Civilization as we know it will either have vanished or will have been transformed enormously through the benefits of the atomic age," he said.

He said any total war waged with atomic weapons "will almost certainly bring about a collapse of civilization."

BIG U.S. RELIEF EFFORT UNDER WAY IN TAMPICO

Second Aircraft Carrier En Route to Flood-Stricken City—All Services Help.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 6 (AP)—The death toll in flood-battered Tampico mounted today to 326, by unofficial count, as the relentless Panuco river went still higher.

Reports from upriver communities of a sharp drop held out some hope of relief for the stricken port within 48 hours. But there were fears the inland rains of the last week would continue, sending the river's headwaters climbing again before Tampico could get a respite.

As Mexico grappled with a major disaster beyond the limits of its strained resources, United States armed forces and relief agencies handled most of the rescue and relief operations at Tampico. Mexican efforts have been concentrated largely on relief to the Yucatan peninsula, where Hurricane Janet killed an estimated 200 persons last week and wiped out three towns.

At Tampico, the aircraft carrier Salpan, under Adm. M. E. Miles took the lead in the most intensive American relief campaign ever staged in Mexico. The United States Army, Air Force and Marines, plus the American Red Cross and the Salvation Army, poured food, clothing, medicine and other supplies into the stricken city of 110,000 and the surrounding area.

Another Carrier on Way.
The aircraft carrier Siboney was en route from Norfolk with 12 large helicopters, while the Oglethorpe, an American transport, was reported loading additional food at Norfolk.

Lt. Col. M. C. Quillen, airlift operations officer in charge of joint United States Army-Air Force transportation announced that the Fourteenth Air Force has airlifted approximately 280,000 pounds of food and clothing to Tampico since Oct. 1.

The United States Fourth Army's headquarters in San Antonio, Tex., announced it was preparing additional equipment for air shipment requested by the Red Cross and United States Navy. Included are water purification units, power generators and other field equipment. Army personnel were being sent to operate and maintain the equipment.

Grateful residents of Tampico called all this "operation friendship." Mexican newspapers hailed the aid as greatly strengthening United States-Mexican ties.

Rescue Work Comes First.
The forces gave top priority to rescuing trapped refugees in the Tampico area. Most of this work has been carried out by 14 helicopters. An estimated 1500 persons have been rescued in the last three days. Tamauilipas Gov. Horacio Teran reported another 1500 were still marooned on rooftops, dikes and in trees in the Los Llanos del Golfo area out from the city.

Pan American World Airways rushed a 70-passenger Clipper plane from Miami to help evacuate the victims to other cities. The number of homeless was staggering—33,000 in Tampico itself and about 100,000 in the surrounding area.

The exodus from the city was slowed by lack of surface transportation. No highways or railroads were open, and the exit by sea was dangerous because of swift currents. Even the road to the airport was flooded, making the trip difficult except for helicopters.

Gets 99 Years For Murder.
DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 6 (UP)—Brazil Dail Carmichael, airman from Tampa, Fla., was found guilty yesterday of the murder of Mrs. Mahala Winterbauer, a policeman's dow in 1953, and was sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary.

Flashes of Life
Inventive.
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—When a colony of bees attempted to usurp winter quarters in the porch of her home, Mrs. Henry E. Turcotte rose to the occasion in perhaps novel fashion. After more conventional measures failed, she unlimbered her trusty vacuum cleaner. In a twinkling, the buzzing squatters were drawn into the interior of the buzzing contraption, then despatched with carbon monoxide by attaching the cleaner to an automobile exhaust.

Hard to Please.
SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP)—Mrs. Jeanne Johnson Archer divorced her husband, an actor known professionally as Archer McDonald, by testifying he stayed home too much.

"He made my life very unhappy because he was home most of the time," Mrs. Archer said. "He often had nothing to do but follow me about the house as I did my work."

Metropolitan Troubles.
MOBILE, Ala. (UP)—The City Commission instructed city attorneys to draw up an ordinance prohibiting roosters in the town limits.

"We have had a lot of complaints about these roosters making too much noise in the city," Commissioner Charles F. Hackmeyer said. The last time the commission tried to regulate domestic animal life by ordering all dogs in the city penned up, the people demanded a referendum. They cast more votes for Rover's freedom than in the previous election to chose the City Commission. The new anti-rooster ordinance would exempt hens.

EAVESDROPPING

ON JURY DRAWS BROWNELL FIRE

Attorney General Comments on Wichita Case, Seeks to Bar Such Action.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—Attorney General Brownell yesterday condemned any "eavesdropping" on juries, and said he will ask Congress for a law specifically prohibiting such action in the future.

The Attorney General issued his statement following a disclosure that the University of Chicago law school, in connection with a study of the jury system, last year placed a microphone in the jury room of the federal district court at Wichita, Kan., and recorded the deliberations in five civil cases.

A law school professor at the university said yesterday that the recordings were made with the approval of the judges and lawyers concerned.

Senator Eastland (Dem.), Mississippi, set in motion a Senate investigation of the case to see whether "sanctity of the jury room was violated."

Eastland ordered witnesses summoned before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee which he heads. He declined, however, to identify them.

Brownell's Contention.

Brownell said recordings of what went on in the jury room were made "without the knowledge or consent of the jurors and without the knowledge or consent of the Attorney General" and added:

"We in the Department of Justice are unequivocally opposed to any recording or eavesdropping on the deliberations of the jury under any condition, regardless of the purpose."

Prof. Harry Kalven of the University of Chicago said that the jury deliberations had been recorded in a research project.

Kalven said the law school has been engaged since September 1952 in "an extensive study of the operation of the jury system for the purpose of improving the administration of the court system."

"As a minor part of this study," he said, "a research project recorded in May 1954 the deliberations of juries in five civil cases tried in the tenth federal circuit at Wichita, Kan."

"These recordings were made with the prior consent and approval of the chief judge of the tenth circuit, Orrie Phillips, the trial judge, Delmas C. Hill, and attorneys for all the parties involved, including the United States district attorney."

Statement by Professor.

Kalven also said: "Recording of the five cases was made under conditions that provided for stringent control by the court and with the requirement that any ultimate use of these materials by the project would not disclose the identity of the case or any of the participants."

"We understand that selections from the recordings were played by the federal judges of the tenth circuit at their regular judicial conference at Estes Park, Colo., last summer."

Judge Hill, reached at Topeka, Kan., said: "If such a thing occurred, you can rest assured I would not have done it without prior approval of the Chief Judge of the Tenth Judicial District, Judge Orrie L. Phillips of Denver."

Judge Phillips told a reporter he knew a microphone had been used in the Wichita jury room, but added that "certain safeguards were used to make sure no harm was done to anyone."

He said however, that "this is not particularly my affair" and "I haven't any further comment to make."

Judge Phillips said, "Judge Hill knows all about it."

Reached again after Judge Phillips and the Justice Department made statements, Judge Hill asserted:

"It would be improper for me to say anything further if the matter is under investigation."

MRS. EISENHOWER THANKS DONNELLY FOR TELEGRAM

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6 (UP)—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly today received a letter from Mrs. Eisenhower expressing the gratitude of the President for the Governor's telegram sent following Mr. Eisenhower's heart attack.

The letter read as follows: "Thank you for your telegram expressing the concern of the people of Missouri for the President's health. When he is feeling stronger, I will be happy to give him this message. I know he will be deeply grateful."

CONSTABLE SAYS CHURCHILL KIN HOWLED LIKE DOG

LONDON, Oct. 6 (UP)—John Spencer Churchill, 46-year-old nephew of Sir Winston Churchill, "shouted, sang and howled like a dog" when he was jailed for being drunk and disorderly, a policeman testified today.

Constable B. Pearce added that Churchill's wife, Kathlyn, who was arrested with him Sept. 7, "made accompanying cat noises—meow...meow...meow."

"This," Prosecutor R. E. Seaton commented, "was an astonishing disturbance for two people like this."

The Churchills were arrested while dressed in artists smocks outside their apartment in a street called Adam and Eve mews. They were charged with being drunk and disorderly and "using insulting words and behavior."

They pleaded not guilty to the charges today, and were released in $28 bail for another hearing Oct. 28. Seaton said the trouble started when Churchill objected to noise from a nearby Congregational church hall.

1 1/4 cups C and H pure CANE Granulated Sugar
 1/2 cup shortening (part butter for flavor)
 2 eggs plus 2 yolks 1/2 cup orange juice*
 1/4 cup water 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
 2 cups sifted cake flour 1/2 teaspoon salt
 2 teaspoons baking powder 1/4 teaspoon soda

Beat together sugar, shortening, and 1 egg with electric mixer at high speed about 3 minutes (or with spoon) until light and fluffy, scraping bowl often. Beat in other egg and yolks one at a time. Mix orange juice, water, and lemon extract. Sift dry ingredients. Alternately add small amounts dry and liquid ingredients, beating just until smooth with mixer at low speed (or with spoon) after each addition. Bake in 2 greased-and-floured 9" layer pans, at 375° (moderate) 20 to 25 minutes. Cool on racks, then frost with "Orange Blossom" Frosting.

*Use fresh orange juice plus 2 teaspoons grated peel; or frozen, diluted as usual; or canned.

Beat in, 1 at a time, 2 unbeaten egg whites. Add dash of salt and 2 teaspoons grated orange peel, or 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract. Beat in rest of sugar and 1 tablespoon orange juice or undiluted frozen orange concentrate. Tint delicate orange with yellow food color plus 1 or 2 drops red, and beat well. Spread on cool cake. Covers tops and sides of two 9" layers.

U.S. STANDS PAT ON RED CHINESE TRADE EMBARGO

Herbert Hoover Jr. Denies in Tokyo That Any Relaxing of Bar Is Being Considered.

TOKYO, Oct. 6 (UP)—Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. said today the United States will stand firm in its trade embargo against Communist China.

Hoover called a press conference following reports in Japanese newspapers that he had indicated to Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu that the United States was considering relaxing the bar.

In a statement handed to reporters, Hoover said that "problems concerning trade with Communist China" were brought up by Japanese officials at a meeting yesterday.

Policy Unchanged. He said he "made clear that it is the policy of the United States backed by American public opinion to oppose any change in the present international controls over such trade."

He said he "expressed appreciation of the Japanese economic problem," but added that he "stated that the American Government contemplates no change in its present policy."

Hoover, on a fact-finding tour of Japan, Korea, Formosa and the Philippines with American foreign aid chief John B. Hollister, left for Korea following the press conference.

By the Associated Press. They started early in the afternoon, but their plane was forced to turn back because of engine trouble. They took off in another plane a few hours later.

Japan Wants Trade. Japan now hews to an international agreement to sell no strategic nor potential war materials to Red China. There has been a considerable clamor among Japanese business men for more trade with the Reds.

The newspaper Asahi said Tanaka Ishibashi, minister of international trade and industry, reported he soon will submit a list of goods which Japan would like to see removed from the proscribed list.

These would include iron and steel products, construction and mining machinery, ships and railway rolling stock. All these are in great demand in Red China, now trying to build up industry.

A diplomatic source at the United Nations in New York said yesterday Red China in its ambassadorial talks with the United States at Geneva had greater trade with Japan as one objective.

GUATEMALAN-RED CLASH

GUATEMALA, Oct. 6 (AP)—Police and Communists clashed yesterday for the third time in two weeks. There was an exchange of gunfire from a downtown house where Communists were meeting, and one man was killed, two were wounded and 15 captured, police said.

The police surrounded the house and broke down the front door when the group inside refused to surrender.

GRAVOIS MERCHANTS DON'T LIKE REVERSIBLE LANES

Petitions protesting continuation of the city's reversible traffic lane plan on Gravois avenue, between Geyer avenue and Chippewa street, recently instituted to speed the flow of traffic during morning and evening rush hours, have been signed by 250 business men along the affected stretch of Gravois.

This was announced today by Eugene Ash, owner of the Paint Supply Co., 3712 Gravois, who said he plans to submit the petitions to Traffic Commissioner Charles G. Gontier and the Board of Aldermen. City officials have reported the plan to speed traffic by having reversible center lanes has proved effective.

Objections of the business men who signed the petitions, Ash said, are based upon the fact that parking has been prohibited on both sides of Gravois between the hours of 7 and 9 a.m. and 4 and 6 p.m. The bar on parking is detrimental to business, they contend.

KUBITSCHKEK TAKES LEAD IN BRAZILIAN BALLOTING

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 6 (UP)—The men favored to win the offices of President and Vice President in Brazil's national election took the lead in vote counting for the first time today.

Juscelino Kubitschek, Communist-backed Social Democrat, led for president. Joao Goulart, his running mate who is leader of the Labor party, went ahead in the separate contest for vice president.

The election was held Monday, with an estimated 10,000,000 votes cast. Final results are not expected to be known before next week.

With about one-fourth of the votes counted, the national radio said the tally gave for President: Kubitschek, 906,263 votes; industrialist Adhemar de Barros, 894,476; Gen. Juarez Tavora, 829,058; and Plinio Salgado, 285,811.

70 M.P.H. WINDS DISRUPT SHIPPING IN BRITISH ISLES

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP)—Lions with gusts up to 70 miles an hour hit the British Isles today, disrupting shipping and leaving a trail of damage along the west coast. No deaths were reported.

The winds tied the 83,673-ton liner Queen Elizabeth, carrying 1186 passengers, to its Southampton berth, forcing to delay sailing to New York. The liner will try to sail on the high tide tomorrow afternoon. The 53,329-ton United States, which was at another Southampton berth, was able to get away with the wind at its stern.

The winds brought heavy rains and floods to some parts of the country.

Signatures on Bond Election Petition Checked in County

Council Must Pass Ordinance Not Later Than Oct. 17 for Nov. 22 Vote on $39,711,829 Issue.

Signatures on petitions for an election in St. Louis county Nov. 22 on a proposed $39,711,829 civic improvement bond issue were being checked by the county election board today following their submission to the county council yesterday.

The petitions, bearing about 2700 signatures, were presented to the council by Girard C. Varnum, president of the County Chamber of Commerce. The number was well over the 2112 required.

Verification of the signatures before next Tuesday was asked by the council, which must pass an ordinance for the Nov. 22 date not later than Oct. 17. Next Tuesday will be the last regular meeting day of the council before Oct. 17. A special meeting, however, could be called if necessary.

Action Urged. The council was urged by the county health department yesterday to authorize action by appropriate local officials to solve the problem created by the State Attorney General's finding last month that the new and strengthened nursing home law was unconstitutional.

Basis of the finding was that religious, charitable and not-for-profit institutions were excluded from the law's provisions. The Attorney General pointed out also that this exclusion might result in withholding of federal welfare grants aggregating $60,000,000 a year.

Dr. John C. Murphy, director of chronic diseases for the health department, pointed out the exclusions, which were added as amendments to the nursing home bill, would result in seven county institutions and a third of all county patients being exempt from regulation. The original bill was drafted in the county, where 10 per cent of all the nursing homes in the state are situated.

At Request of Sects. "It is my assumption," Dr. Murphy wrote, "that this amendment was at the request of certain religious sects which do not recognize usual medical practice and wish to be exempt from regulations requiring medical supervision."

"To the best of my knowledge no religious, charitable or non-profit institution, including the faith-healing groups, has expressed any desire to avoid minimum standards for fire prevention, sanitation and many other non-medical aspects of licensing."

He recommended that the health department be authorized to extend its inspection services to institutions requesting them.

Supervisor Luman F.

APPEALS PENALTY BY POLICE COURT, JURY ADDS A FINE

When a defendant appeals a police court sentence and asks for a jury trial, the jury rarely assesses a punishment greater than the police judge's, but Charles M. Mitchell of Hematite, Mo., found out, yesterday that this is not always the case. Mitchell, 23 years old, a mechanic, was arrested May 19 in the 9400 block of South Broadway after an 80-mile-an-hour chase during which, police said, he violated three stop signs and an electric signal. He denied the charges.

In police court the next day, Mitchell was sentenced to serve 30 days in the Workhouse for careless driving. He appealed, and yesterday testified before a jury in the court of Judge David W. FitzGibbon, of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Mitchell said he had spent an hour in a tavern but had consumed only one bottle of beer. He insisted there had been no careless driving. The jury, finding him guilty, assessed punishment at 30 days in the Workhouse and added a fine of $200.

INTER-CONTINENT MISSILE WORK IS SPEEDED UP

Scientific 'Break-Throughs' Achieved in Several Fields in Atlas Project.

By ANSEL E. TALBERT
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A speed-up in America's efforts to build the world's first inter-continental ballistic missile accurate enough to destroy a military target 5000 miles away with a hydrogen bomb is now in progress.

The swifter development is made possible by new research tools and scientific "break-throughs" achieved in several fields related to long-range missiles by some of the world authorities in aerodynamics, mathematics, astrophysics and nuclear fission who have been called in on the project.

Convair division of General Dynamics, which built the giant B-36—world's first intercontinental bomber—is known officially to be at work on the Atlas ballistic missile.

Atlas is being designed to describe a very high trajectory and fall back at an enormous velocity many thousand miles an hour to strike a target in the manner of a huge flaming meteor.

Convairs has a panel of scientists working for the company on special problems connected with missile systems under Dr. Frederic De Hoffman, former deputy at Los Alamos to Dr. Edward Teller, prime developer of the hydrogen bomb.

"Hypersonic Shock Tunnel"

Dr. Teller also is a Convair consultant, as is Dr. Hans A. Bethe, nuclear physicist of Cornell University who helped to design the first atom bomb.

At the Cornell aeronautical laboratory in Buffalo, N.Y., one of the nation's top research centers, the first known "hypersonic shock tunnel" capable of testing the heat tolerances of advanced type guided missiles at speeds greater than 10,000 miles an hour is now operating.

The chief tool for studying flight both slower and faster than sound in the past has been the wind tunnel of aeronautical laboratories. Older ones cannot simulate all conditions which an inter-continental ballistic missile would encounter.

The Cornell new "shock tunnel" is believed to be the first ever developed capable of duplicating air temperatures found in hypersonic flight "at and above Mach 5"—five times faster than sound.

Orders Placed.

Substantial production orders now are being placed with America's aircraft, ordnance and electronics companies which will step up the output greatly and pave the way for production of "the ultimate missile."

The increasing importance of the entire program is being reflected in actions by several of the nation's major aircraft companies to separate missiles engineering from their ordinary engineering functions.

Douglas Aircraft, one of the nation's oldest aviation firms currently engaged on eight missile projects for the Air Force, Army and Navy, this week is setting up a new missiles engineering department at Santa Monica, Calif.

Among many outstanding scientists participating in the nation's search for a missile which can be shot from continent to continent are Dr. Theodore Von Karman, former advisor on aerodynamics to the North Atlantic Treaty organization; Dr. Fred L. Whipple of Harvard, astrophysicist and authority on the upper atmosphere; Dr. John A. Wheeler of Princeton, a top authority on nuclear fission, and Dr. Robert F. Mehl, metallurgist of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

3 NEW POLIO CASES HERE, TOTAL SO FAR FOR YEAR IS 60

Three new polio cases were reported yesterday. The victims, all admitted to St. Anthony Hospital, brought the number of polio patients in the city and county this year to 60 as compared with 102 at this time last year.

They are Albert Quentin Jr., 14 years old, 225 Redmond avenue, Ferguson; Mrs. Laverne Backer, 29, of 9832 Ravensbrook drive, Affton, and Miss Irene McLafferty, 18, of 6623 Virginia avenue.

CEA HEAD URGES U.S. BE ALERT TO INFLATION SIGNS

Burns Says Nation Is on Threshold of a 400 Billion-Dollar Annual Output.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—Arthur M. Burns, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said today that despite many elements of strength in the current economic situation, the country must be alert for inflationary signs and act to combat them.

Burns told of many "favorable" factors in the nation's prosperity, but added in a speech to the New York State Chamber of Commerce:

"We must recognize, however, that in an economy like ours, poised on a high plateau, neither the threat of inflation nor of recession can ever be very far distant."

Narrow Road.

"We live in a world in which the sources of economic change, both domestic and foreign, are many. When both our political parties joined in the Congress to pass by an overwhelming majority the Employment Act of 1946, we in effect resolved as a people to travel henceforth the narrow road that separates the swamps of recession, on the one side, from the cliffs of inflation on the other."

"If we are to stay firmly on this narrow road, the federal government must pursue monetary, fiscal, and housekeeping policies with skill and circumspection."

"That means, among other things, that we must be alert to changes in economic conditions and be ready to adapt our policies promptly to them. A program of monetary and fiscal restraints could be carried too far, just as it could stop short of what is needed."

Burns made no mention of the recent fluctuations of the stock market. But he said that thanks to Government measures taken so far in 1955, including credit curbs, "although we have not escaped entirely the excesses of prosperity during the past year, we have succeeded to a considerable degree in keeping them in check."

390 Billion Output.

He said the gross national product—the dollar value of the nation's total output of goods and services—has reached an annual rate of 390 billion dollars or better, and continued:

"We have thus arrived at the threshold of a 400 billion dollar economy. The challenge posed by today's prosperity is to cross this line and go well beyond it."

"We may be confident of doing so in the near future if public policies continue to encourage individual initiative and enterprise . . . and if private citizens together with their government continue to resist courageously any tendencies that may develop toward either recession or inflation."

Among the favorable factors Burns mentioned were high production and employment, "satisfactory" profits, investment going forward at a good pace, and unemployment "close to an irreducible minimum" except in some scattered localities.

He said not all branches of agriculture, however, are enjoying a full measure of prosperity, adding:

"Obstinate surpluses of several crops have tended to restrict or reduce growers' incomes. Drouths, freezes, and floods have wreaked havoc on crops in scattered sections. Pockets of relative poverty, urban as well as rural, are still to be found."

MORE TIME ON SIGNAL FOR RAIL CROSSING SOUGHT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—St. Louis Terminal Railroad Association today asked the Missouri Public Service Commission for a one-year extension of an order to install automatic rail crossing protection equipment on North Market street in St. Louis.

The commission last May ordered the railroad to install protective equipment at the North Market crossing of terminal tracks. The installation to be completed by Dec. 1, 1955.

Additional time was necessary, the company reported, because it did not have a sufficient force of signal workers to carry on all of its signal installations, within the time fixed; labor contracts prohibited employment of outside contractors, and because of delay in materials deliveries.

ADENAUER TELLS CABINET ABOUT TALKS ON SAAR

Chancellor, Faure Pledge Saar Will Be Free If It OK's European Status.

BONN, Oct. 6 (AP)—Chancellor Adenauer reported to his Cabinet today on his discussions in Luxembourg with French Premier Faure.

Adenauer and Faure took a cautious step toward saving the project to "Europeanize" the Saar territory by pledging that it must continue to enjoy full political freedom if it agrees to become a European territory.

The 900,000 German-speaking Saarlanders vote on Europeanization in a plebiscite Oct. 23. Three pro-German parties in the Saar are fighting for a rejection of a European status as the best way to bring the Saar back to Germany.

No Joint Appeal.

There had been speculation that Adenauer and Faure would issue a joint appeal to the Saarlanders to approve the Europeanization statute. Adenauer once before issued a similar appeal, but it did not bring the pro-German parties.

Apparently Faure and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay favored a new appeal. Reports from Luxembourg said Adenauer declined to sign. The result was the statement that the Saar Europeanization plan forms a part of a French-German understanding and pro-European policies.

The statement called for closer French-German co-operation and efforts by France and West Germany to promote European unity.

The French leaders in turn promised Adenauer that France will not veto a final peace treaty with Germany to keep the Saar under permanent European status.

The French also pledged full political freedom in the Saar if the new statute is approved and recognized that the Saar's "moral and material interests" should be respected.

In Bonn, the opposition Socialists promptly declared that Adenauer and Faure "are laboring under false assumptions when they take the position that the Saar population will approve Europeanization."

Intervention Charge.

"It should also be considered if the Adenauer-Faure statement constitutes intervention in the Saar plebiscite campaign," the Socialists said.

The Bonn and Paris governments have pledged that they will keep hands off the campaign that arrays the pro-German parties in the Saar against forces led by Premier Johannes Hoffmann.

The Saar, a rich coal and iron producing territory which was German before World War II, now is virtually autonomous while tied to France economically.

Asked what would happen if the Europeanization plan is rejected, Pinay said the Saar would remain under French domination.

Other points which Faure and Adenauer discussed included the Big Four Foreign Ministers' conference in Geneva Oct. 27 and Adenauer's recent visit to Moscow.

SARK ISLANDERS CAN SLASH TAXES BY LOOKING SEEDY

SARK, Channel Islands, Oct. 6 (AP)—Sark has doubled its tax but an islander may escape the increase—if he cares to—by looking twice as seedy as he did yesterday.

There is no law on this British island between England and France to force a man to disclose his bank balance—and the tax assessment is based on a man's appearance.

Until yesterday, the tax assessment was one shilling on every 20 pounds (14 cents on every $56) an islander is presumed to have.

If an islander feels he has been overtaxed he has the right to appear before the island judge and swear he is not worth his assessment. The judge must accept the petitioner's word.

At last census there were 611 residents—none especially lavishly attired.

WORKERS RELUCTANT TO FILE DISCRIMINATION COMPLAINTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (UP)—The President's committee on Government contracts said today that workers have been reluctant to file complaints about job discrimination by Government contractors.

The committee said it has received 147 complaints since mid-1953. It said there has been a "slight increase" in complaints in recent months.

"But the fact remains that people are generally reluctant to file complaints against other people regardless of what the cause or the issue may be," the committee concluded.

"Certainly the objection offered that the complaint procedure will become a device for harassing industry has not been borne out by the record," it said.

The committee, which is headed by Vice President Richard M. Nixon, acts as a "watch-dog" to see that the Government's contract clause prohibiting employment discrimination based on race, color, religion or national origin is carried out by firms doing business with the Government. The committee has no enforcement power, however.

ILLINOIS VETERANS OFFICIAL

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (INS)—Raymond A. Byers, Springfield, has been appointed supervisor of research in the central office of the Illinois Veterans Commission in Springfield by Gov. Stratton.

Byers has long been active in veteran and civic affairs and previous to the new appointment was a training specialist with the Veterans Administration rehabilitation program covering 26 counties in Central Illinois.

RADIO POWERED BY VOICE BUILT BY SIGNAL CORPS

FORT MONMOUTH, N.J., Oct. 6 (UP)—The Army Signal Corps has developed a radio transmitter powered by the voice of the broadcaster using it.

Successful broadcasts have been made over distances of more than 600 feet with the device, the Signal Corps engineering laboratories announced yesterday.

Until now, electricity from some outside source, such as batteries, has been needed to operate radio transmitters.

speaks, the radio works, and his voice is broadcast.

When the speech strikes the microphone, part of its power is transformed into electricity to operate the radio, while the rest goes into the broadcast.

Further development is expected to lead to a companion radio receiver weighing only three ounces to be powered by the same voice energy. This would be built up and stored in the set when sending, and later used for receiving. Transmission up to a mile is expected when the device, still in its experimental stages, is improved.

Bonn Court Rules Saar Still Is Part of Reich

KARLSRUHE, Germany, Oct. 6 (UP)—The West German constitutional court ruled today that the disputed Saar is "now as before" a part of the German Reich.

The court said the fact that the valley was separated from Germany by the French occupation power is not recognized by the Federal Republic.

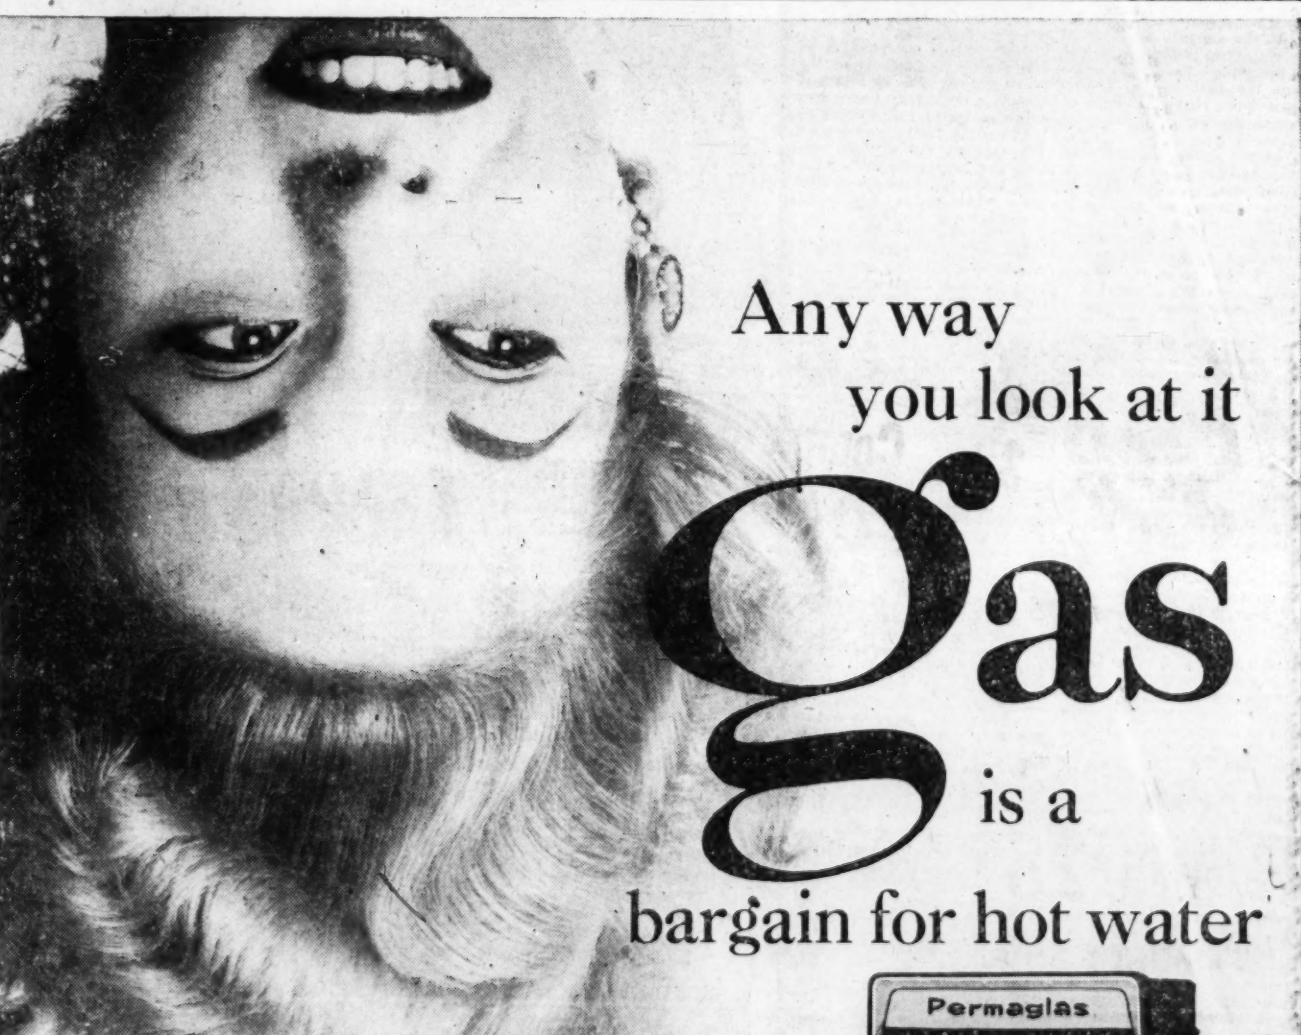

The same court last May upheld the Franco-German Saar statute which would "Europeanize" the 991-square mile territory.

SENTENCED TO 12 YEARS IN $115 STORE ROBBERY

John Majett, former convict, was sentenced yesterday to 12 years in prison by Circuit Judge Francis E. Williams after he pleaded guilty of robbing Edward Zabel, operator of a haberdashery at 2642 Franklin avenue, of $115 last May 14.

Majett said he had been released a week before the robbery from the state penitentiary in Jefferson City after completing a four-year sentence for assault with intent to rob. He and a companion, Curtis Beasley, took the money from Zabel after a struggle. Beasley, who served most of a 15-year term for murder in the Missouri Training School for Boys at Booneville and in the state penitentiary, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to seven years last week by Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh.

The robbers, both Negroes, were arrested after police had been called by Abe Zuckerman, owner of a store at 2707 Franklin, who became suspicious when he saw them lock the door of Zabel's store from the inside.

MAN SAID TO ADMIT TRYING HAZELWOOD SCHOOL HOLDUP

A man who identified himself as Gilbert E. Pounds, 3600 block of Elm drive, St. Ann, admitted today that he made a half-hearted effort to hold up three employees of Hazelwood school with a toy pistol yesterday, police reported.

Nicholas Pezold, maintenance man, and Mrs. Louis Buenger and Mrs. Carrie Able, cooks at the St. Louis county school, had reported they dissuaded the robber by telling him they were working people and had no money.

Pounds, unemployed, was arrested last night after another man pointed him out to police in a confectionery at 3510 Penrose street. The man said Pounds told him he intended to hold up the confectionery. Pounds, who was carrying a blackjack and a toy pistol, was quoted by police as saying he had no intention of robbing the confectionery and merely wanted to scare the Hazelwood school employees.

Casey Liked the Last One.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—In the deserted clubhouse of the Yankees, a white-tiled mausoleum left now to the bats and ovals, there was a notice on the wall having to do with travel insurance for the forthcoming tour of Japan. "Binders have been obtained," it began, "covering death and dismemberment." It seemed indecent to read further. A kind of dismemberment had already taken place, and in Brooklyn there was carnival.

In Manhattan a man said to Casey Stengel: "It was a good series, Casey, a real good show." Casey said, "I liked the last game," Casey said, "We got beat, that's all. Some of the other games—well, after we win the first two we shouldn't ever let 'em get to a seventh game and bring the pitcher back."

The manager of the Yankees had only admiration for the Dodgers' professionals who won the World Series, only praise for Johnny Podres, the stout-hearted pitcher. "But there were a couple of times," he said, referring to Yankee rallies which were still-born in the last game, "when he might of had a chance to show even more guts than he did show."

Casey was remaining in New York a few days to "re-build," he said, he said he wanted three new pitchers—as what manager doesn't? He talked much of next year, but returned always to the only World Series ever lost under his direction.

The Hits That Didn't Come.

BOR TULLY, Don Larsen and Bob Grim, the pitchers who started for the Yankees in Ebbets Field, never had worked in a World Series before, especially against power hitters in a snug park. As he had during the series, Casey implied that young pitchers got care less after getting two strikes on batters like Duke Snider.

He said that perhaps he was wrong to play for the big hit in the seventh game when Brooklyn's Walter Alston played for bunts and singles. Casey was still playing to win it in one piece in the eighth inning when he had Yogi Berra take a pitch with a count of three balls, no strikes.

Brooklyn was ahead, 2-0, and the Yankees had runners on first and third. A long hit was needed to tie the score, but if Berra should walk and fill the bases, then a single could send in two runs. If the count went to three-and-one as it did, Casey could still have his men running because Roy Campanella couldn't call for a pitch-out. So on the three-and-one pitch, Yogi hit a fly, too short to score anybody.

The Yankees were running and Gil McDougald was trying to score the tying run from first base when Sandy Amoros made his remarkable catch-and-throw double-play in the sixth. Berra is a pull hitter and the defense must play toward right field. Berra wouldn't find fault with McDougald for rounding second on the fly, though he conceded that he himself would have pulled up a stride short of the bag.

These Little Things.

MAYBE he gave Brooklyn a run unnecessarily, he said, by replacing Tommy Byrne, a three-hit pitcher, with three on and one out in the sixth. Byrne wasn't failing and he didn't want to go out. "I'm ready for the double-play," he told his manager. This, however, was the last game of a world series, when a manager uses all his pitchers if necessary.

Casey was aware that Gil Hodges, the batter, led the National League in sacrifice flies. Hodges is also good at grand slam home runs, at hitting hard ground balls into double plays and at taking third strikes. Grim, replacing Byrne, got two pitches low trying to make Hodges hit on the ground, then one came up and Gil hit a scoring fly.

Although Podres got through the full third game for Brooklyn, he had been considered a six-inning pitcher since his arm was hurt in June. Casey knew this, and in the last two innings his batters took the first pitch to make a tiring pitcher keep working. Podres, tired but defiant, fired in fast balls for strikes.

What Casey didn't mention was his own flawless handling of his pitching staff. Refusing to panic when the Dodgers were winning three straight in Brooklyn, he gave Whitey Ford and Byrne four full days of rest each, and got splendid work from both. Alston's first two starters had five and four days off—and haven't been seen since.

Luck, Be a Lady.

BEFORE the last game, Byrne and Podres posed shaking hands for photographers. They parted, and then Byrne turned back. "John," he called. Podres halted. "Yes, what?" "Good luck."

"Oh, Uh, thanks."

ONLY BOARD'S OKAY OF NEW REDBIRD BOSS IS REQUIRED

By Jack Rice

The Cardinals' board of directors met late this afternoon to consider the merits of hiring Frank Lane as a general manager and to act upon Vice President Bill Walsingham's letter of resignation.

Walsingham tried to get the message through yesterday. He succeeded well enough on a national scale, but local delivery was slower. Cardinal President August Busch Jr. said, "I hadn't heard a word about it," when questioned at his home several hours after wire services were describing Walsingham's exit as the first big change to result from Lane's status as a man delivered, sealed and about to be signed.

Technically, there was no connection. Lane will be replacing Dick Meyer, brewery executive full-time and general manager part-time. Meyer began briefing Lane on the official Cardinal atmosphere during the world series. Lane came here yesterday to meet Busch and he dipped in more Cardinal atmosphere. The 46-year-old Walsingham, saturated in 29 years' worth of Cardinal atmosphere, dictated his resignation. He had been considering it for "about 10 days."

Worked Under Breadon.

The departing vice president has been with the Cardinals under four presidents: his uncle, Sam Breadon; Bob Hannegan; Fred Saigh and Busch. He was listed as "assistant to the president" in Breadon's last year; was doing a solo as club vice president in Saigh's final year as owner, and was one of three vice presidents, in addition to an executive vice president, in this year's club director.

Joining a corps of vice-presidents wasn't the Walsingham future, as it once was mapped. In his statement, he wrote, "I understand Mr. Busch is contemplating moves which he believes will be helpful to the Cardinals. I, too, am tremendously interested in the Cardinals' welfare and future, as only one who has worked here for 29 years could be. Therefore, I am notifying him of my decision to terminate my contract because I believe that a ball club can not be successfully run by two people, both of whom are confident they are qualified to do the job."

When Eddie Stanky was fired, Walsingham was not given advance knowledge. He was a "spokesman" honestly able to say he knew of no substance to the rumors. Asked if that was a fair sample, a thing that rankled, Walsingham laughed and said, "I don't want to look back—in this game, you've got to look forward."

His statement was a most temperate piece of writing, but it left no doubt he was not staying in the figurehead business. He intended to stay in baseball. Walsingham said he would if possible. He is, among other things, highly regarded as an authority on baseball law.

"I don't want just any job," he said, answering a question on his prospects. "There's nothing more frustrating than to be in a job you're qualified to do, and not having any authority to do it."

Lane's Contract Ready.

Lane spent about 45 minutes with Busch, in the brewery president's office, yesterday afternoon. With them were Meyer, double-duty executive John Wilson, and Counselor Tony Buford. Lane said all was satisfactory. The contract was drawn up. All it needs is board approval of him, and his signature, in that order.

The salary is "in excess of" the arrangements he made for a living from the Chicago White Sox, he said. Negotiations with

Ol' Case Hopes Tour of Japan Will Produce Regular Yankee Shortstop—Maybe Billy Martin

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (UP)—Casey Stengel, eager again and excited on the eve of "spring training" in Japan, hoped that the six-week tour would produce the Yankees' new regular shortstop for 1956.

Putting the painful memory of the World Series loss to Brooklyn behind him, Stengel attended to some personal matters in his Yankee Stadium office yesterday and expressed the hope the forthcoming trip might help his club as much as a similar one during the fall of 1953 aided the Giants.

"There are a lot of different things I can try on this trip," Stengel said enthusiastically. "I'm gonna play Billy Martin at short and anyone else I care to. We're just liable to find a regular shortstop like that. Didn't the Giants 'discover' some of their men when they went over?"

Stengel referred to Outfielder Dusty Rhodes and Relief Pitcher Merv Griffin, both of whom impressed Leo Durocher so favorably on the Giants' tour of Japan, that he used them far more often in 1954 and was rewarded when both played key roles in winning the world championship.

In addition to his search for a shortstop, Stengel intends to "get a much better look at some of my young pitchers" on the trip which starts Saturday when a vanguard of Yankee players departs here by plane for San Francisco.

Southpaws Bob Wiesler and Rip Coleman and Right-handers Bob Grim, Don Larsen and Johnny Kucks are the young hurlers Stengel has in mind.

"I want Wiesler especially to get more work," said the Yankee skipper. "There's a young fella who could really turn out to be something if he works on his control. It got better this year but it has to be even better yet." (Weisler lives in St. Louis.)

Stengel reiterated his intention to be back at the Yankee helm next year and even conferred at length with General Manager George Weiss regarding player personnel for next season.

The grey-haired 65-year-old Stengel insisted "we're good enough to win the American League championship again," but he added certain improve-

Hutchinson to Be New Field Manager Of Birds, Paper Says

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 6 (UP).

FRED HUTCHINSON, manager of the 1955 pennant-winning Seattle club in the Pacific Coast League, will be named field manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer said today.

In a front-page story, Sports Editor Royal Brougham wrote that Hutchinson is the No. 1 choice of Frank Lane, who is slated to take over as general manager of the Cardinals.

Brougham predicted the Redbirds would sign Hutchinson next week. He said the only things standing in the way were contract terms and that Lane would have to convince Cardinal President August A. Busch of Hutchinson's managerial ability. Hutchinson, former manager of the Detroit Tigers, would succeed Harry Walker as pilot of the Redbirds.

Harris Signs To Lead Tigers Next Season

DETROIT, Oct. 6 (AP)—

Bucky Harris today signed a one-year contract to manage the Detroit Tigers again in 1956. The Tigers also announced that Coach Schoolboy Rowe was being dropped from the staff and would be given a minor league managerial post.

Coaches Billy Hitchcock and Jack Tighe were retained. Harris said the Tigers "have several men under consideration" to take Rowe's place. Rowe, a standout Detroit pitcher in the mid-1930s, was Detroit's first base coach for the past two seasons.

President Walter O. (Spike) Briggs said the Tigers were looking for someone with a Detroit baseball background to take Rowe's place. He refused to name prospects, however.

Harris, 58, picked the Tigers to a fifth-place finish the past season. The Tigers had a 79-75 won-lost record and were 17 games behind the league-leading Yankees.

Mack Comes Through Operation 'Very Well'

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6 (UP)—

Connie Mack's physician hoped today there would be "no complications" as a result of the hip operation on the 92-year-old former owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Dr. Illarion I. Gopadze, Mack family physician, and Dr. Robert A. Barnett performed the two-hour-and-40-minute operation on his fractured right hip yesterday. They said Mack came through "very well."

Mack's hip was pinned in the operation in an attempt to speed recovery, Gopadze said. He added that "fragments" of the fractured bone were secured in good position.

Globe-Trotting Joe Ezar Home Again, Plans New Golf Course

Joe Ezar, an old golfing globe trotter recently on a minor expedition to South America where, he said, he managed to keep one jump ahead of the revolutionists, is back in St. Louis turning to a different golf venture.

Ezar, the trick-shot performer, has an idea St. Louis needs more golf courses because, he said, real estate development seems to be threatening some of the fee courses now existing.

So Joe is planning to build a course "near Kirkwood," he said, refusing for the moment to give the exact location because he just has an option on the land.

"I'd like to find out first if there is a sufficient number of golfers who would like to help make it a semi-private club," Ezar said, "so I'm going to hold a meeting Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Kingsway Hotel." Whether or not there is such interest, he's going to build the course anyhow, Ezar asserted. Ezar, who has based his operations in St. Louis for the last several years, has been a teaching pro at Nelson's Driving Range. A trick-shot expert, he made a five-week exhibition tour that took him from Panama to Mogota to Guayaquil to Lima.

"I put on a show for the caddies one morning at the 'Tam o' Shanter' (Chicago) tournament and one of the South American professionals invited me to make the exhibition tour, sponsored by the South American P.G.A.," Joe said.

"The crowds were good down there, but the golf courses were something else. They had Bermuda greens which they let grow as long as our lawns. Some of our tees are better than their greens."

Weber and Bluth Roll 1541, Break U.S. Mark Set in 1938

New Star Gets 814 At Floriss

Dick Weber, the 25-year-old bowling flash from Indianapolis who joined the Budweisers for this season, helped break a 17-year-old national two-man team record last night at Floriss Lanes.

Weber, bowling a season three-game high of 814, and Ray Bluth, tallying 727, had a combined score of 1541 to top by 47 pins the old mark of 1494.

The Budweiser team made its mark on Floriss alleys No. 5 and 6.

A pair of Cleveland bowlers, Charles Lausche and Frank Franz, had shot the 1494 on Feb. 13, 1938. Earl Cleveland and Charles Clardo of Milwaukee held the No. 2 spot with 1482 on April 10, 1932.

Weber, shooting as a member of the Budweiser twosome in the All-Star Doubles League, had games of 258, 298 and 258. Bluth shot 268, 243 and 216.

Weber and Bluth won three games from the Math Hermanns, Jim Petrov had 728 and Earl Sterling 623 for the Hermanns.

Don Carter (279-760) and Pat Patterson Jr. (692) of the Busch Lager five had a combined 1452 to beat Fix, 3-0. Strikes for Cash won the odd game from Fulanki.

Weber and Patterson each had a 679 series to pace the Greater St. Louis Masters' League. The Buds had team high single of 1128 and team high three of 3294. The Buds now have won 18 straight games in the league action.

The previous city season's high three-game mark was also held by Weber with a 787 series. Ken Rothermich topped the 1954-55 season with an 813.

No Challenger for Marciano in N.B.A. Ratings

Tourney Suggested By Saddy

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 6 (UP)—Fred Saddy, head of the National Boxing Association rating committee, today suggested an elimination tournament between Hurricane Jackson, Nino Valdes and Bob Baker, with the winner to fight Rocky Marciano for the world heavyweight championship.

"Marciano has punched his way out of good opponents," Saddy said. He recommended the tournament as the best way to select a contender. He made the suggestion in the N.B.A. quarterly ratings.

Marciano, the Brockton (Mass.) heavyweight champion, knocked out light heavyweight king Archie Moore recently to defend heavyweight crown. The match left him without a challenger.

Moore's only challenger in the light heavyweight ranks is the fast-rising Floyd Patterson.

Filipino Little Czar

Averages Recent Loss

MANILA, Oct. 6 (AP)—Little Cezar, the bouncing bantam king of the Philippines, evened the score last night by stopping Thailand's Sanong in the second round of a scheduled 10-round non-title bout. Each weighed 121 pounds.

A crowd of 9000 roared when battered Sanong quit in two minutes and 18 seconds of the second round.

The Thai fighter previously had knocked out Cezar in the second round of a Manila bout.

Sanong went down twice in the opening round. A series of savage body blows pocked the Thai fighter in the second. He walked over to his corner and, despite pleas from Manager Devit Chatanavij, refused to come out.

Chatanavij later said his boy could not see. He said Sanong was out early in the first round and was "punching automatically" in the second.

Alouettes Drop Kincaid

Chavez Defeats Glen Flanagan; 'Crowd' Is 615

RICHMOND, Calif., Oct. 6

(AP)—Boxing fans who stayed away by the thousands from last night's nationally televised bout between Eddie Chavez and Glen Flanagan congratulated themselves today. They were able to turn off their sets.

The 615 who paid their way into Richmond Auditorium weren't that lucky. They sat through—but not silently—a dull 10-round in which Chavez, of San Jose, was given an unanimous decision over Flanagan of St. Paul, Minn. "Somebody hit somebody," pleaded the fans who paid $2468 gross. "It won't hurt much."

The way they were going it wouldn't have, either. Chavez, a notorious powder-puff puncher, appearing to be trying on occasion but the veteran Flanagan preferred wrestling, and that's the way it went. So successful was the Minnesota Irishman that twice he succeeded in hurling Chavez between the ropes, both times squarely in front of the television cameras.

Flanagan, who weighed 139½ to Chavez's 139, was on his bicycle most of the time with the exception of the early rounds. Chavez caught up with him often enough, but immediately was caught himself in an octopus-like tangle of arms. Flanagan was warned repeatedly for holding by Referee Frankie Brown, but was not penalized for his tactics.

In fairness to Flanagan it should be pointed out that he was only a substitute. Cisco Andrade of Compton, Calif., was scheduled to meet Chavez but was stricken with a throat infection over the weekend. Flanagan, an insurance salesman in St. Paul, took the bout on 24-hour notice.

The two-confestants, despite the slim paid attendance, reportedly pocketed $4000 each as the result of the TV guarantee.

Referee Brown scored the bout 58½-51½. Judge Jack Downey 58-52, Judge Ray Flores 58-51, and the Associated Press 56½-53½—all for Chavez.

Robert Ruark's straight-talking column on his 30-day test of Thom McAn's

Columnist and author tells exactly what he thinks of Thom McAn looks and fit after one-month trial. Here...all facts and no fiction...is what Robert Ruark found

Ruark's report, in his own words:

FOR ABOUT ten years during my high school and college days I didn't know anybody else made shoes except Thom McAn. So when the Thom McAn people asked me to serve on their Shoe Jury, it was not really a new boy they were tapping. It was, in fact, an older man in the firm than anybody but Thom McAn himself.

I was interested to renew my acquaintance—for old times' sake, maybe. I also was glad to have the chance of making and sending along some extra dough to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund, which can always use a buck or two.

Can I wear Thom McAn nowadays? So I went down to the Thom McAn shop and chose up a nice, new assortment of foot-gloves. I was really curious to try them again.

I live in the country, and knock about in the woods a lot, so I am afraid my choices ran more to loafers and burly brogues than to fancy city stuff. But I did come down for a pair of pick-toed black calf, city-slicker shoes, and by sight and feel I can't tell 'em from a similar pair I bought in London.

It's sort of funny, but when I first hit New York and the column got going pretty good, I went all out as a dude and started paying the fifty bucks for shoes and the two hundred certificates for suits—maybe because I was afraid of everybody and everything, and wanted to be a big shot.

An old customer returns

Then all of a sudden I began living a good piece of the time in Spain, where the best tailormade you can buy is a forty-buck suit, and I cut my clothes budget down by about 160 dollars per rag. Now I'm back in the McAn lodge again.

This is real funny, to me, because I spent a lot of time writing a book called "Something of Value," which the Book of the Month is running, and which MCM is making into a movie, so now for the first time I could afford to spend a chunk on clothes—and won't.

I can't honestly say that my McAns will last as long and hold as well as a much more expensive shoe, because time and tread alone determine that. But they sure are a big buy, and on looks they don't have to back down to anybody else.

And they fit my feet, which is what a shoe is for.

Robert Ruark

Personal Postscript—A lot of my city friends have accused me of being 21 before I had a pair of shoes on. That is a gross falsehood. I had Thom McAns as early in life as 15. The real truth is that I was 21 before I ever had two pairs of shoes, and they were both McAns.

Veiled Prophet Visits on Rainy Night

RETURN OF THE PROPHET

Glowing procession of floats, their lights mingling with street lamps and the headlights of escorting vehicles, brilliantly illuminates Olive street as parade marking the triumphant return of the Veiled Prophet moves slowly west. Glittering procession, headed by the ornate float of His Mysterious Majesty, was greeted by eager spectators massed along the seven-mile route. View is from the top of the Post-Dispatch building.

Enthroned in regal splendor, the Veiled Prophet heads the 20-float procession as it moves along Washington avenue between Seventh and Eighth streets. Creations of artist Fred Conway, the floats illustrated the parade theme "What Shall I Be?" Huge papier-mache models depicted a series of colorful figures in various professions, from the ever-popular Davy Crockett to the President of the United States.

QUEEN'S SPECIAL FLOAT

Wearing the magnificent gown in which she was crowned, Miss Audrey Faust Wallace makes her first public appearance as the Veiled Prophet's Queen of Love and Beauty as procession moves east in Washington avenue between Seventh and Eighth streets. Breaking with the tradition of previous years, the Queen rode in a float of her own, in order that she could be seen more clearly by spectators.

MOTHERHOOD THEME

A float for future homemakers, the appealing Mother display moves east in Lindell at the Grand boulevard intersection. One of the prized vantage points in the parade route, the corner was jammed with Veiled Prophet enthusiasts enjoying the annual spectacle.

WEATHER WISE

Special Maids of Honor, riding in float immediately behind the Queen's, were undismayed by the light downpour as the parade got under way. Warned by dark skies and showers earlier in the day, they came prepared for the worst. Holding large umbrellas, they smile their greetings at spectators equally as unconcerned about the weather. From left are Miss Elizabeth Overton Busch, Miss Eunice Whitney Olin, Miss Kate Edmonstone Borders (partly hidden), and Miss Mary Talbot Leland.

Deep in the Ozarks

A Pleasant Trip to Peck Ranch Refuge

By Leonard Hall

EVERY time we drive down into the Current river country and cross that beautiful stream, we're overcome with nostalgia for its swift rapids and deep pools and breeze-swept gravel bars. And we long for the days when our canoe was familiar with each twist and turn and when, during the course of a summer, we'd build our fires at a score of different campsites between June and October. Somehow the years of drouth have increased the problems and complexities of farm life to a point where such joys as canoeing and fishing go by the board—though we're hoping things will be better when the rains come again.

We did play hooky, one day last week, to drive down and show a young nephew a bit of the deep Ozark country. Our destination was "Possum Holler," the timber tract in Carter county which we see all too seldom, and our route lay south to Ellington, then across Highway 106 and so by a somewhat circuitous route through the Peck Ranch Wildlife Refuge and down Mill creek to the site of the spring. Current river, where we crossed on the ferry at Powder Mill, was lower than I've seen it in 35 years, an observation which was concurred in by our old friend Frank Sutton, the ferryman. There was barely enough current to move the barge along on its cable and Frank, who has lived on the river all his life, said the stream had been dropping steadily for many weeks. Yet it was clear as a bell and a group of Bales Boating Co. guides who were waiting for a party of fishermen to arrive told us the bass had been striking well.

SOUTH OF THE RIVER a few miles we turned aside on the Winona road, then eastward again on the Forest Service truck trail that runs to Steagal Mountain Fire Tower and on down to Peck Ranch headquarters. Along the way we picked up Herb Davis who handles maintenance and patrol on the Refuge, and Ken Sadler, biologist for the Conservation Commission, who is directing the work of management and restoration of the wild turkey flocks on the area. We talked with them about the progress of the work, for this refuge has been operating less than a year, and then borrowed a key so we could open the gate on the road that leads down Mill creek.

PECK RANCH REFUGE is one of the newer projects of the Missouri Conservation Commission, aimed not only at restoring the remnants of the turkey flocks, but eventually at producing enough of the native wild birds to use in stocking other suitable areas throughout Missouri. It embraces some 25,000 acres of wild, cut-over timber land which has been owned and operated for some years as a State Forest and was chosen as a turkey refuge for a number of reasons. First of all, it was a big block of land in an area of low human population and with a rather small timber potential, at least for a good many years to come. And one thing required for the propagation of wild turkeys is such an area where the birds can range and forage with little disturbance from human beings and livestock. In addition to this, there were a number of broods of native wild birds already raising on the area each season, although they were badly thinned out each year by human predation and poaching. One of the things necessary for turkey restoration also, is to have this wild stock to start from, since most experiments with semi-wild birds show they lose much of their ability to survive in a wild environment.

WE STOPPED at Refuge headquarters to visit with Ken and hear something about his work and were intrigued, among other things, by a small glass aquarium on a shelf in which were confined three huge tarantulas, along with a small and somewhat inoffensive looking scorpion. As far as could be determined, there were two male and one female tarantula, the female being the largest. All had thick, furry bodies and a leg-spread of four or five inches. And despite stories of the fierceness of these huge spiders, they seemed to be dwelling amicably together and with no hard feelings toward the scorpion, often crawling over it without seeming to notice it.

CONTRARY TO COMMON BELIEF, the tarantula is not poisonous and its bite is painful chiefly because of its extremely strong jaws that are used for crushing insects. In captivity it seems to be a light feeder, dining on other spiders and such insects as grasshoppers. While we were watching, two of the big spiders approached each other and locked legs, rearing up and rocking back and forth. This was perhaps the preliminary activity of the mating ceremony, since it was obviously not conflict, and it was probably the ceremony from which comes the name of the Iberian dance, the tarantella. The scorpion, since its bite is poisonous and it has a bad habit, after its nocturnal hunting expeditions, of crawling for shelter into such places as shoes or clothing. Yet as an insect destroyer, the scorpion has its place in the great pyramid of nature.

SOME IDEA of the severity of the drouth in the Ozarks could be gained from seeing the vast number of trees that have died on the steep hillsides and poorer timber sites. And when with difficulty we had negotiated the rough creek bottom road to our big spring, we found it completely dry. Normally flowing more than 1,000,000 gallons per day and furnishing most of the permanent flow of Mill creek which runs down to Current river, it was mute evidence of the underground water shortage. As usual we found the valley badly over-grazed by hogs and cattle, with all available forage devoured by the hungry animals. In tremendously marked contrast was the cover on the old fields of Peck Ranch, where protection for a single season has produced heavy growth of lespedeza, as well as many native grasses and other plants. This over-grazing is one of the great problems of the Ozark country, always worse in times of drouth and low prices, which will eventually be solved by a state-wide law closing the open range.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Carr

IN 17 years as a stellar pitcher in the American League, "Lefty" Gomez, of the Yankees, didn't exactly knock down the fences with his bat. In fact, he averaged about four scratch singles a season. One day he closed his eyes, took a hefty swing, and to everybody's amazement, including his own, smacked a solid triple to left center. Poised on third, the triumphant "Lefty" boasted to Coach Art Fletcher, "Hey, Art, I think I can steal home."

Fletcher shuddered and begged, "It's taken you four months to get this far: don't blow it!"

Vermouth Is for Something Different

It Can Be a Big Help to the Amateur Chef; Here Are Some Recipes

By Hoyt Alden

GETTING back to the subject of vermouth, it's the subject itself of a lot of stories these days, like the one about the bartender who was explaining how he made his martinis so dry. He merely places the gin bottle beside the vermouth bottle, and lets the shadow of the vermouth fall on the gin.

To many people vermouth is just something that goes in a greater or lesser degree, into a martini. Not many people know its potentialities as an aid to the amateur chef who wants to turn out something a little different. As a matter of fact vermouth is one of the best wines for cooking for the simple reason that it is already flavored with aromatic herbs and a few other wines can make this statement.

Vermouth, in case you don't know about it and would like to, is a pretty tricky beverage. It takes time to make good vermouth. It's basis is white wine. This wine is fortified with spirits up to about 15 per cent alcohol and then poured in casks and allowed to lie out in the sun for a couple of years.

In the meantime another batch of wine is fortified to about 50 per cent alcohol and charged with various aromatic herbs and tonics. This batch is laid out in the sun also. When both batches have reached the proper pitch, they are combined in proportions which produce a beverage which has a very distinctive flavor and an alcoholic content of about 17 per cent.

Vermouth is generally divided into two types, the Italian, which is sweeter and darker, and the French, which is lighter and drier. One company has come up with a third type, called Clin, which is a French type, but extra dry.

SINCE we mentioned vermouth as an aid to cooking a while back, we have received some enthusiastic response, some good recipes, and some requests for recipes calling for vermouth. So we'll just pass along the ones we have.

First, Beef Bretonne, made like this: Get three pounds of round steak about an inch thick and cut it in one-inch cubes. Dredge it with seasoned flour and brown it on all sides in a third of a cup of cooking oil, along with a couple of large Spanish onions, sliced thin and a couple of pounds of whole mushrooms.

Then add a half teaspoon of tabasco sauce, a teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, three fourths of a cup of Italian vermouth, a half cup of strong coffee, a half cup of water and a pint of sour cream.

Cover it and let it simmer for an hour. Serve it in a hot chafing dish, along with rice or noodles and sprinkled with paprika. The strong coffee, says the contributor of this recipe, brings out the piquancy of the vermouth.

HERE'S something that would be out of the ordinary in the way of curried chicken, even without vermouth. It's called Curried Chicken Verona:

Cut up a couple of two and a half pound milk fed chickens and saute them in butter for 20 minutes until they're light brown. Take out the chicken and put in two tablespoons of chopped onion. Cook them until they're light brown, and then add three tablespoons of curry powder.

Let it cook for a minute and then add a cup of chicken broth and a cup of rich white sauce.

Then add two diced tomatoes, two tablespoons of Italian vermouth, a heaping tablespoon of chutney and three tablespoons of freshly grated coconut.

Let it all cook for five minutes, and then put the chicken back in. Let it simmer slowly for another 15 minutes, and serve it with plenty of fluffy rice.

IF YOU like scallops, try this: Poach two pounds of scallops in water and a little lemon juice for 10 minutes, or until they're tender. Drain and save the liquid. Drain a can of button mushrooms, and save that liquid too.

Make a roux by heating four tablespoons of butter until it bubbles and then add four tablespoons of flour and blend and cook it over the fire. Add to a half cup of the scallop liquid, the liquid from the mushrooms, and then add sufficient milk to this combination to make two cups of liquid.

Slowly add this to the roux and proceed as with cream sauce. When it is smooth and thick, add two tablespoons of extra dry French vermouth.

Prepare some mashed potatoes and beat a couple of egg yolks into them. Butter a flat, oblong baking dish. Take half your sauce, thin it with a little cream, and add it to the scallops. Put the scallops in the baking dish and cover them with the rest of the sauce. Put the mushrooms in a row down the middle, and then make a border of mashed potatoes. Brush a little melted butter on the potatoes, and then put the works under the broiler long enough for the potatoes to become crisp.

Vermouth does things to some vegetables, notably broccoli. Heat a fourth of a cup of oil in a heavy skillet, and saute two chopped cloves of garlic. Take out the garlic and put in a bunch of fine broccoli, chopped. Turn the fire up and broil the broccoli, stirring it constantly.

Add three ounces of dry vermouth and turn the heat down to a simmer. Season with salt and pepper, cover the pan and let it cook until the broccoli is tender, but not too tender.

Two Kinds of Security--- True and False

By Fulton J. Sheen

IN these days when security is identified with happiness, and when people seem more interested in having plenty of life belts on the boat, rather than in knowing where they are going, it might be considered an entirely different philosophy of life. A treasure to any man is what relieves his poverty.

Fulton J. Sheen treasure to the avaricious and learning to the student. The treasure is what man wants most and for which they will give up the lesser things.

Hence Our Divine Lord said that the Kingdom of Heaven is like a merchant looking for rare pearls; when he has found one of great cost, he sells all that he has to buy it. The fact that Christ should have used the example of a pearl is rather singular, because that stone is mentioned in the Old Testament.

PERHAPS THE EXAMPLE of the pearl was used because it is the only precious stone that is a product of a living organism. Diamonds, rubies and emeralds are products of the earth and its heat; but a pearl is the product of suffering. It is the one stone that is born of sacrifice. When an oyster is injured, such as by a grain of sand getting into it, the oyster covers it over with successive layers of nacre until the pearl is formed.

Nature is full of examples of how trials and defeat are converted into blessings as a wound is made a pearl. Because Christ came to preach the law of sacrifice, it is very likely that he introduced into the Scriptures this jewel, which portrayed His Life better than any other stone.

In the face of the worship of security, Our Divine Lord comes forward with a recommendation to give up false security for the true security that is the possession of a soul in union with His Divine Father. His excursion into the problem of security reveals that a man can be clothed, and yet be naked; he can be well fed, and yet hungry; he can wear jewels on his fingers, and yet be without an inner treasure.

NO ONE BUT A FOOL will deny the value of having a sufficiency of all that is necessary for our state in life; that is not the point of the story of the pearl. It does not mean giving up your home and your income and your insurance; but it does mean that all of these suffer from the limitation of satisfying only a tiny little corner of the demands of the heart. One can have all of these and not be at peace.

When a heart loves, it understands this well. A gift to one we really love never seems to satisfy the heart—it falls so short of being a symbol of the depths of affection. We tear price tags off the gift of the lover and the love of the giver. The whole created universe, if it were ours to give, would be too little. In like manner, when the heart finally discovers the Love of God and all that it means, then nothing on this earth seems worthy of comparison with it. One is ready to trade and sell all that one has, if it be to possess the Pearl of great price.

The great treasure of true peace of soul is something like a treasure in a field that one may have passed over a thousand times without noticing it. Familiarity blinds us to the fact that inner happiness is within the reach of everyone. If the Pearl is hidden, it is not because God hid it; it is because we are looking for some other treasure and have thus blinded ourselves to the treasure of real worth. What holds us up in finding the treasure is since grace and faith are like a pearl, it is found only by sacrifice, by getting rid of pride, passion, self-will and all that keep us from the Divine. But since all the security and wealth is in God, we do have the best of the bargain if we throw away the things which presently make us unhappy and in exchange we find the Son of the Living God.

The Car Pool

By Stan Delaplane

SAN FRANCISCO.

COMES the golden autumn day when all good men must come to the aid of the car pool.

My car pool this year is lively. We have three young ladies in the 7-year-old bracket and two femmes fatales of 12. The 12-year-olds sit in front with me and discuss what boys they would not be caught dead with, not for anything! The 7-year-olds sit in the back and take the jack apart. The jack is an expensive and complicated thing, guaranteed to raise a truck.

When three 7-year-olds get through investigating it, it develops hernia and isn't supposed to lift anything.

The car is a station wagon. This is fortunate because it gives us plenty of room to take the boxer dog. He sits in the very back and tries to climb through the windows and murder other dogs we pass en route. We have a lively car pool.

ALL MY CAR POOL PEOPLE wear the gingham dresses and green pinafores of Dominican. People who pass us know that we are on our way to school. The ladies are freshly scrubbed and, at a distance, I imagine I look thoughtful and kindly.

"Look at the nice man and the little girls on their way to school," they say. They should be inside the car. "Mr. Delaplane. Did you hear about the boy who was murdered?"

"No, tell me."

"Well, there was this man, you know. And he took this boy and he cut him all in pieces like a chicken!"

"Where was this?"

"I don't know. Somewhere."

"Well, where did you hear about it?"

"I don't know. Somewhere. Do you know my aunt?"

Well, she visited us and she had to sleep in my grandmother's bed and she said if she had to sleep there anymore she wouldn't visit us. And my grandmother said she was a stupor old thing."

"What's that got to do with the boy cut up like a chicken?"

"Nothing. I got cut up under my big toe. Would you like to see it?"

There is plenty of information in my car pool!

MY CAR POOL covers about 10 miles and we have five stops. We pass beagles and schauers and Pomeranians and collies and boxers. My boxer rages up and down in his area like a lion. The noise is terrific!

The 7-year-olds cheer him on. "Get him, Mike! Sic 'em, boy!"

The cheery young ladies in the front seat are too old for this sort of small play. They discuss boys.

I know they would not go out with Richard. Richard has hands on his teeth. The fact that Richard has not asked them or the fact that they have hands on their teeth has nothing to do with the problem.

The other night a boy called on the phone. He did not give his name. But we think it was Richard. But they would not go out with him. I should say not.

"Even if he begged me, I wouldn't. Ugh!"

"Why not?" I have seen Richard. Aside from the fact that he is a vacant looking child whose mouth hangs open, he does not seem bad.

"I just wouldn't. He's real dumb. He could send me flowers or anything. I wouldn't."

Poor Richard.

WE HAVE MUSIC in our car pool. We turn on the radio real loud. We have a girl assigned to run up and down the dial.

"There! That's one! Stop there. Oh, that's real neat!"

"What is that one?" I yell.

"That's 'Rocket Davy Crockett.' Oh, it's real neat!"

We have a lively car pool. Murder and Richard and dogs and 'Rocket Davy Crockett.' It is no wonder that people give us such friendly smiles when we pass by.

THE 13-year-old tends to be much more of a joy to his teacher than he was at 12. He has a better sense of responsibility. He is more dependable. Thirteen's conduct in the classroom is definitely related to his attitude toward his teacher. Most like some of their teachers, dislike others. Boys and girls tend to be very critical of teachers at this age. They watch them closely, evaluate their actions, and may come up with a favorable verdict or an unfavorable one. They may approve of her with a comment, "She treats us like people." Or they may burst out with feelings against her, "You're insulting," "always criticizing," "keeps interrupting," "is too strict," "is not strict enough," "is boring," "cracks jokes at people's expense."

Thirteen loves things said in fun and especially things which infer jokingly that he is on the bad side. Thus, if after he has been absent the teacher greets him with, "I knew you were absent yesterday because it was so peaceful her," it makes him feel real perky inside.

HE SEEMS TO HAVE an intuitive sense about when a teacher is a good teacher, though it is a little hard for him to communicate this: "The good ones just seem to know what they are talking about and can keep discipline." It is not hard for Thirteen to respect such a teacher.

But if his teacher hasn't managed to win his respect, he tries to get away with things. Usually he isn't alone in his hostile feelings and works with the group to play practical jokes on the teacher. Sometimes it may be something no more original than a thumbtack in her chair (which, unfortunately, knowing 13-year-olds, he usually sees ahead of time.)

THIRTEEN LIKES—in school or elsewhere—to be independent and to feel independent. But at the same time he wants and needs a teacher who can give him rope but at the same time keep things well in hand.

However, when he is resisting some task such as learning the complications of English grammar, and strenuously feels that he "won't need to know this stuff in life," he is only further upset by a teacher who agrees with him. At that very moment he is almost begging for authority—an authority which says that there are certain things you have to do in life whether you like it or not.

'At the Other Kids Are Allowed to---

That's One of Four Major Ways Children Use to Get Own Way—There Are Answers to Them

By Howard Whitman

Fifth Article in a Series on "Parenthood Without Hokum."

HERE are four major strategies which children use to get around their parents. The youngsters don't mean any harm; they're just being human. But if parents are taken in, they may become very ineffective parents indeed—and the children will be the ones who are harmed.

Strategy No. 1—"All the other kids are allowed to—"

What parent has not had to face this one? It is the strategy most frequently used and the one most difficult to meet. It makes you, as a parent, feel like an old sportsman, a killjoy, the only sourpuss in the neighborhood. And that is a hard lead to bear. For this very reason the "comparison gambit" is an excellent strategy—and the youngsters know it.

Case Work Director Dorothy Thomas, of the Family and Child Services of Washington, D.C., suggests an effective way of coping with it. Check up! Perhaps it just isn't true that "all the other kids are allowed to—"

Take the case of Mrs. B. Her daughter Jane, 13, wanted to go on an evening swimming party at the beach with a group of boys and girls. Mrs. B., trying to be reasonable, suggested the party be held in the afternoon rather than in the evening when it soon would be getting dark. That's when Jane came back at her, "Oh Mom, all the other kids are allowed to."

I don't see why I have to be the only one who can't go. Gee!"

Mrs. B. brooded about it, not wanting to be a restrictive parent, and finally picked up the telephone and called Mrs. R., the mother of one of the other girls. She was quite surprised by what she heard. "My goodness, my husband and I don't approve of it at all," Mrs. R. exclaimed. "Why we thought we were the only ones who felt that way—and we were about to say yes to our Martha just because we didn't want to be the only ones to hold back."

Subsequent to other mothers revealed that they, too, did not approve of an evening beach party at all but were about to be pressured into it because each parent felt that she was all alone in her views.

The beach party was changed from evening to afternoon and all the youngsters had a wonderful time.

But suppose individual parents do stand alone? Suppose there is something which all the other kids are allowed to do, but for your own reasons you feel that your child should not?

HERE is a chance for children to learn that human beings are not sheep. Later in life there will be many times when they won't be able to do what everyone else does—perhaps for financial reasons, perhaps for health reasons. An occasional childhood experience which prepares them for missing out on something once in a while can actually be constructive preparation for life.

Strategy No. 2—Begging and pleading. Every parent knows what this is but perhaps doesn't realize that it is a testing operation. If the child cannot shatter parental opposition in a single blow, he simply attempts to gain the same objective by abrasion.

Sometimes the preferred form is a play on sympathy. The parent is made to feel, "If you say no it will mean you don't really love me." A parent who truly loves his child lets this bounce off harmlessly. But a parent who has doubts about his love may easily succumb to it.

Sometimes the nagging approach is preferred. Here the hope is that incessant begging and pleading will be too much for the parent to bear and he will give in. Some parents allow nagging to reach the point of sheer torture. An effective defense against it is to label it; make it clear to the child that he is nagging, and, if he continues, the nagging will have to be handled as an offense in itself.

The begging and pleading strategy may also take the form of luring the parent into a promise. The child asks for something in an unguarded moment when the parent will say yes and then throws it back at the parent later with the passionate allegation, "You promised!" This gambit would get a child into gobs of trouble later on if he were encouraged in it; the parent's job is to make clear just what a promise is and, of course, to make none he is not prepared to keep.

Strategy No. 3—"You did when you were young." Most parents, when they were young, did many of the things which they now don't want their children to do. They stayed out later than they should have. They did things which they now consider terribly dangerous. And surely there were times when mischief was done and the gravest rules were broken. They probably even thought their own parents were killjoys and sportsmen.

But—what parent believes he knew more when he was an adolescent than he does today? Today he recognizes that though he did certain things, that doesn't make them right (and he remembers how his own parents objected). If he is wise he will further recognize that it is a youngster's place to want to stretch and break the rules, and it is a parent's place to maintain and preserve them. If each does his job, no harm will be done.

The feeling of adolescents that they know so much more than their parents do does not stem from confidence and certainty, but from the opposite. As one psychologist put it, "Adolescents' cockiness stems from under-confidence. It is not that they know so much but that they know so little."

Next time your children call you old-fashioned, it might help to remember that in 10 or 15 years, when they are rearing their own children, they do not want to be thought of as old-fashioned.

Strategy No. 4—Playing one parent against the other. This is a natural tactic for any child to try; in fact it is a tribute to his intelligence that he does try it. But it can sow a great deal of confusion in a family.

Where there are three parties concerned—father, mother and child—one party always stands a better chance of getting his way if he can get the other two fighting. This is divide-and-conquer on a family scale.

It can be extremely harmful to the child. His world becomes a schizophrenic one, in which reality flip-flops from one extreme to the other. Rather than learning to face reality, he simply tries to switch it on and off.

At the Evanston (Ill.) Hospital, the Child Psychiatric Clinic treated a girl of 8 who was so disturbed she could not be kept in school for more than half a day. At home she had played her mother against her father constantly; if she couldn't get "yes" out of her mother she got it out of her father. Often she left them quarreling while she gaily tripped away, having won whatever she desired.

She then attempted to use this strategy upon her friends at school. When it failed, she threw other children off of playground equipment and disrupted her classes. The major therapy for this child was to show her parents the need for consistency. They must stand together and each must bolster and support the authority of the other. This was vital to the mental health of their child.

When children try to get around their parents, they are not being "bad" children. They are being normal, intelligent human beings. The strategies they use are instinctive, and the parents' job is not to blunt those instincts but to civilize the child so that he gains a true view of reality. There may be a squawk or two, but in the long run the child is strengthened.

WHAT TIME TO GET HOME

It may surprise a good many parents, but there is mounting evidence that teen-agers really don't want to stay out as late as they lead us to believe. What's more, we actually help them by setting a deadline. Here are two typical cases:

Arthur, age 16, went out on Saturday nights with the other boys in his crowd. For a time he came home about midnight. But after a while he began staying out until 12:30 or 1 o'clock. When eventually he didn't drift in until 2 o'clock one Sunday morning his father decided it was time for a serious chat.

"I don't want to be the first one to break it up and go home. I don't want to seem like a child," Arthur candidly explained.

A long discussion bore out that each member of Arthur's crowd felt the same way. The increasing lateness of the hour stemmed from each boy's natural desire to prove that he was not a child anymore but quite a man. Thus as the weeks went by there was virtually a contest to see one another in staying out late.

Arthur's father got in touch with the fathers of the other boys and all agreed that 12:30 would be the deadline. The next Saturday night when the boys met, each one understood that there would be a good, full evening of fun—but not an endurance contest. Since 12:30 was the deadline for all of them, none need vie anymore to prove his manliness.

"Arthur actually seemed relieved by the arrangement," his father reported. The boy's relief is quite understandable. He no longer needs to run the gauntlet between his parents' disapproval and the need to prove his manliness to his friends.

Now the case of Carol, age 15. When she first was permitted to go out with boys to school dances and to friends' parties, her mother thought she was helping the child by taking the attitude, "I'll leave it up to your good judgment. Carol, you come in when you think best."

It wasn't long before the plan failed and Carol's mother had to set a specific coming-home time for each event. The failure wasn't Carol's fault. Since the decision had been left up to her, the boy she was with kept prodding her to stay out another half hour, and another, and another. She was forced into the dilemma of being a mama's girl on the one hand or falling in her mother's trust on the other.

This made her very uncomfortable about going out altogether and she, too, was greatly relieved when her mother gave her a set time to come home—not an absolutely rigid time but a reasonable time, give or take half an hour.

Experienced family counselors repeatedly find that this is how youngsters react if the arrangement is explained to them in a friendly reasonable way. Director Clarence Pretzer, of the Family Service Society of Metropolitan Detroit, reported, "We find that it is easier on the child if the coming-home time is set. It is also a protection for the young girl. Rather than face challenges or arguments, she can simply tell her boyfriend that she is required to be home at 11 o'clock or midnight as the case may be."

Also, the boyfriend is relieved of the burden of proving what a bigshot he is by keeping the girl out until all hours.

Most counselors agree that coming-home times should be flexible, that as one of them put it, "The child should not feel that if he doesn't open the door at precisely 11 p.m. he will be shut out of the house."

It is a good idea to take the youngsters into the discussion with you when these times are set. You may be pleasantly surprised at how reasonable they can be, if reasonably approached.

A group of parents in Bridgeport, Conn., told me of a system they had developed to avoid staying out worrying until the youngsters got in (as what parent doesn't?). If Junior is to be home at 12:30 the alarm clock is set for 1 a.m. (giving him a half-hour's leeway) and placed at the top of the stairway.

Then Mother and Dad go calmly off to sleep. If Junior arrives on schedule, or thereabouts, he simply comes up the stairs and turns off the alarm clock and proceeds to bed, while Mother and Dad go right on sleeping. If, however, Junior isn't in by 1 o'clock the alarm clock clangs and, as one father put it, "Then we can wake up and start worrying."

SECOND to staying out late, taking the family car is a major friction point. Here, the modern counselor espouses the view that use of the family car is not a privilege to which the teen-ager is automatically entitled, but rather a privilege he earns. This is as realistic as the fact that his mother and father aren't entitled to the use of a car either, unless they earn it.

Test after test has proven that youngsters, from the standpoint of mechanical ability and reaction time, are better drivers than adults. But often their short suits are attitude and judgment. The automobile, instead of a vehicle of transportation for joy-riding and sometimes for racing and hi-jinks.

Miss Margaret Averill To Be Presented Today

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

MISS MARGARET LAMY AVERILL, eldest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hollis Averill's four daughters, will make her debut late this afternoon at her parents' home, 930 Cella road, Ladue.

About 200 guests, contemporaries of her parents, have been invited to meet the debutante at a cocktail party from 5 to 7 o'clock. They will greet her and Mr. and Mrs. Averill in the wide entrance leading to the living room in a red and white setting afforded by red roses and white spider chrysanthemums.

The blossoms have been arranged in the living room on the piano and mantel, in the pine-paneled play room and in the dining room where, on an Italian lace and linen banquet cloth long in the family, they form a centerpiece. White candles in silver candelabra stand at either side of an English crystal and silver epergne filled with the flowers.

Miss Averill's coming-out gown is white, a lace bodice strapless and pointed in front and back, is attached to a voluminous tulle skirt over tulle underskirts, the first one made of many small ruffles. Her flowers, in keeping with the color scheme, are red and white roses in a nosegay. Light blue lace will be worn by Mrs. Averill, whose flowers are to be white orchids. The gown, on princess lines with full bustle, is ornamented in back by matching velvet bows.

The debutante, a graduate of Villa Duchesne, attended Loretto Heights College, Denver. She is now a second year student in physical therapy at St. Louis University. Granddaughter of Mrs. C. Oscar Lamy and the late Mr. Lamy, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hollis Averill, she is the sister of Miss Ann, Susan, Carol and Barbara Averill.

On Dec. 26 the Averills and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Corley will give a ball at the University Club for her and the Corleys' daughter, Miss Catharine Betts Corley.

My Day

Meeting of Florida's U.N. Group

By Eleanor Roosevelt

MIAMI BEACH, Oct. 6.

Woke this morning to the most beautiful sunshine. Last night I had seen the moon cast a pathway of silver across the ocean and this morning I saw the sunrise light up the same scene. It is really beautiful to be quartered high in a hotel, facing the ocean and looking down on an endless line of buildings and yet feel as far from them as you can at this height. Clark Eichelberger, Miss Baillargeon and I had breakfast out on my porch, and it was a very pleasant beginning to what has been a busy day.

Shortly after 9 o'clock we went to the University of Miami accompanied by Mrs. Joseph Gordon. After a brief reception by some foreign students who gave me a lovely little corsage of red roses, the real business of the state meeting began.

THE ASSEMBLY WAS WELL ATTENDED and a new chairman was elected—Dr. Franklin Johnson, a professor at Rollins College in Winter Park. Our former chairman, Col. Frank Dunbaugh, felt that for personal reasons he could not continue and at the same time said that it would be better to have a chairman from the central part of the state. Thus located, the new chairman could reach the other parts of the state more easily and help to start new chapters.

WE DISCUSSED many other problems during our state meeting and all in all, I think, it was a very good meeting.

Finally, I was introduced to all the teachers of English from foreign countries who are studying here. I did not count them but I think there were about 20 present. A number came from Japan, Portugal, Italy, and several South American

OPINION

MY DAUGHTER who is now 24 years old ran off and married a boy three years younger who is just no good. He has a job but it doesn't pay much. I'll admit he's never been in trouble, but he just isn't the right kind of person for her. I refused my permission so they eloped and when they came back we had a pretty bad argument. I told them what I thought in no uncertain terms and he said some things to me I'll never forget, about interfering with their lives. I'll never accept him, Martha, but I do want to see my daughter. And she says she won't come back unless he comes with her. MOM.

I hope you'll forgive my saying so but even though I can't countenance rudeness, perhaps you deserved some of those charges of interference. Maybe you don't like him, but he is your daughter's choice and if you really want to be a big and generous person you'll do what you can to accept him for his good qualities and hope he can make your daughter happy. It's worth a try.

Dear Martha: I HAVE KNOWN A MAN three weeks and like him a lot. We have had four dates but early this week I was to meet him downtown for dinner and he didn't show up. I haven't heard from him since. He is such a nice man. We met at a party and I liked him right away. He seemed to like me and he took me home from the party and asked me for a date the next day. Do you think I should take him back again if he calls? UNCERTAIN.

You may not get a chance to take him back. He may be long since gone. However, give him the benefit of the doubt. He may be ill, or out of town. But I have an idea he would have written or called if he really had wanted to come back. I'm not sure he's worth worrying about.

IN ANSWER TO Class of 12: I think some of you might talk with your teacher to see if perhaps she can't plan a "civility" program wherein both the girls and boys could learn what constitutes good manners. Otherwise, try not to get upset about it, and if the girls themselves are courteous and refined, the boys may some day take a hint and begin to act like young gentlemen.

IN ANSWER TO Anna Lee: Talk to the Adult Education Council about obtaining your high school diploma. The address is 611 Chemical building, telephone CHestnut 1-2632.

How about a Halloween party? Martha Carr's free leaflet will suggest games, decorations and refreshments. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

What to Wear

By Louise Trescott

HOME sewers have their problems. To make over worn garments with flair and imagination requires the genius of an Einstein. Rewards only come with patience in planning the use of every pressed piece. And new fabric, carefully cut from a perfect pattern, sometimes develops a snag that seems unsolvable. Such is the dilemma of this woman, who writes:

"I do considerable sewing and decided to make my winter coat. I spent $60 on fabric, lining and findings—and a very good pattern from a line that has never failed to fit me before.

"There is something wrong with my coat. The underarm seams swing forward, one side more than the other. I have carefully steamed and pressed it. The fabric is bulky fleece and does not respond. I am simply sick. Do you know of anything to do?"

I BELIEVE your coat is a little long in the upper back, a common cause of forward-swinging side seams. To correct, shorten the back at the shoulders. Take out sleeves and open collar to two inches in front of shoulder seams. Open shoulder seams. Lift the back up on shoulders until your side seams hang straight. Pin to front shoulders. Pin the collar to back of coat so that it sets well and mark new collar line. Easy does it as usually very little adjustment is required to remedy this fault. Proceed most carefully and do not cutting until absolutely sure. Then work sleeves back into armhole by patient shrinking.

If your coat has dolman type shoulders, the problem is much simpler as a lift in the back is all that is needed.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

ARE you frankly 40? Or artificially 40? There is a difference. And please do take my advice and forget your birthdays. Concentrate on you. Also I advise you to stop looking at the calendar, and start looking at yourself. Middle age isn't so bad, though I prefer to call it maturity. Accept it. Don't fight it. You will find yourself happier and healthier. Do everything you can to make yourself attractive. Not only physically but mentally as well.

I think that you should be frankly 40 and be your age. Your best, your most interesting—your most charming 40, 50, 60 or whatever.

Women who are over 40 have an untapped wealth of background. To use this background wisely is a tremendous step forward for happier, better living. To be artificially 40 is to be overly anxious to look young, too young, to try to remove every line and wrinkle, which give character and interest to your face. I am not advocating a wrinkled skin. You know me too well for that. But no woman over 40 can have the skin of her youth. That would make her look artificial. A well-cared-for skin, a well-done makeup, yes, by all means. I honestly believe that any woman can achieve beauty after 40 and that doesn't mean just her face. To me it means a background, a mental attitude, her charm of manner, her interest, not only in others—but in herself. I want you to think about yourself. Just cross off the birthdays on the calendar. Give your birthday date away. I did. It's a great relief!

Remember that maturity can give you things that youth could not. You can find great happiness in being over 40.

Famous Treasure Coming to St. Louis

Historic Crown of the Andes on Tour Before Being Broken Up

By Mary Kimbrough

A STORY of gratitude that threads back across the centuries to the year 1590 and to a proud village nestled high in the mountains of South America is told in the Crown of the Andes, a fabulously jeweled treasure of gold and emeralds.

Men once swore to protect it with their lives. It became a coveted pawn in battles between pirates and noblemen, between revolutionaries and loyalists. Many times, threatened by would-be conquerors, its protectors separated it into six pieces and buried each in a secret place.

But the crown today is a museum piece owned by Americans and now being taken on tour before it is broken up and its individual jewels—one of them weighing over 45 carats—sold to private buyers. Heavily guarded, it will be on display Oct. 10 through Oct. 15 in the downtown store of Mermod-Jaccard-King, with a special lecture showing at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18, at the firm's Clayton store. Speaker will be Orlando S. Paddock, certified gemologist and head of the diamond department.

It was nearly four centuries ago that the Spanish noblemen of the South American town of Popayan called in the world's finest artisans and commissioned them to fashion the crown which they would wear on the statue of the Madonna in the town's great cathedral. Their village had been spared the deadly effects of a plague sweeping the country and this was to be their thanksgiving. It must be, they said, larger and more elaborate than the crown of any earthly ruler. To give less would dishonor Our Lady of the Andes.

More than 20 artists worked continuously for six years, fashioning the crown literally from a solid block of pure Incan gold.

THE CROWN OF THE ANDES... ITS PURCHASE PRICE IN 1936, ALTHOUGH NEVER OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED, HAS BEEN ESTIMATED AT $4,000,000 TO $5,000,000.

The original gold weighed 100 pounds. The crown, filigreed and jeweled, weighs 12.

Into the treasure were poured gems which the Spaniards had seized from the Incas of Peru. It contains 463 emeralds with a total combined weight of 1521 carats, and the jewel chosen for the center arch is the famous Atahualpa emerald which weighs more than 45 carats. This stone, say historians, was worn by Atahualpa, the last Inca King of Peru, on the day he was captured by Pizarro, conqueror of Peru.

The 17 pear-shaped emeralds attached as pendants inside the crown are solid stones weighing from 12 to 14 carats each and the jeweled cross contains 10 pure gems.

A half-century after the crown was placed on the statue of the Madonna in an elaborate and worshipful ceremony, the little village was attacked by English pirates who captured the crown and held it for three days before it was recovered in a battle which proved fatal to many defenders as well as would-be conquerors.

Again in 1812, the crown became a pawn between armies in the war of revolution in which Gen. Simon Bolivar freed the South American colonies from Spanish rule. When peace was declared, it was restored to the cathedral.

But Popayan, ceded to the Republic of Colombia, gradually fell from glory to poverty. Orphans needed homes. The sick needed hospitals. Their crown was the last vestige of their wealth, so the cathedral trustees decided to sell the treasure.

First to bid was the Czar of Russia, Nicholas II. That was in 1909, but five years were required to obtain a special dispensation from the Vatican, and the throne of the Czar was tottering. By the time the necessary papal documents reached Popayan, the world was embroiled in war and the revolution which cost the lives of Nicholas and his family.

So again, the crown was available for sale to groups sufficiently wealthy to finance the transaction. Not until 1936 was the purchase finally completed, with the crown removed from Popayan and sold outright to a Chicago group headed by the late Warren J. Piper, an international authority on precious stones. Piper never announced the purchase price, but estimates range between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

What will be the fate of the Crown of the Andes, once the most prized possession of devout and wealthy villagers? Piper once said he would like to keep it intact, but no museum could purchase such a valuable relic. So ultimately it must be separated into individual gems and the story of gratitude threading back across the centuries will come to an end.

of the house and the lady is so exquisite that I have turned to it often in memory when I myself was in a bad mood. That, and the love poems of Andre Rivoire have helped to straighten me out.

Another day I'll write about Rivoire, a minor poet, but worth knowing.

The Dean Speaks Up A Troubled Wife Who Needs Peace

By Adele Starbird

A WOMAN whom I had not met previously came to see me to ask if there could be a second chance for her; would her husband ever come back to her?

She is middle-aged, not unattractive, highly intelligent and amazingly objective and searching. She has suffered a great deal, and realizes that she has caused some of her own unhappiness.

She has lived her whole life in turmoil, smarting under hurts, and hurting others in return. Her own family had been quarrelsome; she hoped that her marriage would provide an escape from the dreary quarrels. But her new home was as stormy as the old. Both she and her husband have relatives here, all of them with raw and sensitive nerves; the telephone provides a perfect network of insults and recriminations. The children have been a grief to her. Her husband has left her. Yet she is fundamentally kind, with a capacity for tenderness and self-sacrifice. I am convinced that her bad temper is a habit which she has not tried seriously to correct. I liked her for the honesty with which she reported disgraceful rows in which she did not play an admirable role. It must be

I COULDN'T TELL HER that her husband would come back. But I could tell her that he would not come back until she had created peace within and without. She has to work from the inside out. There must be peace in her heart, in her home, with her children, her parents, her husband's family and her neighbors. It is hard to change the habits of a lifetime, but it has been done. If she can learn to be still, if she can get cool within her own mind, as the Quakers say, if she can let the muddy water stand until it grows clear, if she can sow peace instead of dissension, then she can save her children and herself. And under those circumstances, her husband may return to her. That, too, has happened before.

THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL published a remarkable story years ago by Margaret Deland; I'm sorry that I have forgotten the title. It was the story of a gentle Quaker lady and her turbulent husband. Their house was built beside a quiet inlet, and the tranquil movement of the water was reflected on the white ceiling of the living room. The silent flow of the reflection and the wife's serenity created a mood that brought calm to the stormy master of the house. When she died, he tried to admitted also that she had plenty of provocation. The old doctor pointed out that such a violent action would prevent his ever finding her. He would be off schedule, he would get lost, he would miss her. But if he followed the Lord's timetable for him, and took his departure at the appointed hour, then he would find her waiting.

The mood of peace created by Mrs. Deland's description
